The statutory provisions relating to the commutation of obligations<sup>24</sup> do not apply to obligations imposed by the provisions set out above<sup>25</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'ordinary watercourse' see PARA 573 note 16. The powers of the Environment Agency in relation to a main river include the powers which under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25 are exercisable in relation to an ordinary watercourse by the drainage board concerned; and the provisions of that section and s 27 (see PARA 600) have effect accordingly: Water Resources Act 1991 s 107(3) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the meaning of 'main river' see PARA 574.

2 'Mining operations' is not defined for these purposes. As to the duty of the responsible person to carry out remedial measures if a drainage system is affected by mining subsidence see MINES, MINERALS AND QUARRIES vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 243 et seq.

3 In relation to any ordinary watercourse: (1) the drainage board concerned is the drainage board for the internal drainage district in which the watercourse is situated; and (2) the local authority concerned is the local authority for the area where the land as respects which the powers are exercisable is situated; but references to the drainage board concerned must, in relation to a watercourse which is not in an internal drainage district, be construed as references to the Environment Agency: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25(2) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 191). As to internal drainage boards and internal drainage districts see PARA 569. As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 573 note 14. As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 569 note 2.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/B. CONTROL OF OBSTRUCTIONS AND STRUCTURES/600. Appeal against notice to remedy condition of watercourse.

600. Appeal against notice to remedy condition of watercourse.

A person<sup>1</sup> served with a notice to remedy the condition of a watercourse<sup>2</sup> may appeal to a magistrates' court<sup>3</sup> within 21 days from the date on which the notice is served on him on any of the following grounds<sup>4</sup>:

- 1290 (1) that the notice or requirement is not justified by the statutory provisions<sup>5</sup>;
- 1291 (2) that there has been some informality, defect or error in, or in connection with, the notice<sup>6</sup>;
- 1292 (3) that the body that served the notice<sup>7</sup> has refused unreasonably to approve the carrying out of alternative works, or that the works required by the notice are otherwise unreasonable in character or extent, or are unnecessary<sup>8</sup>;
- 1293 (4) that the period within which the works are to be carried out is not reasonably sufficient for the purpose<sup>9</sup>;
- 1294 (5) that the notice might lawfully and should equitably have been served on another person<sup>10</sup>;
- 1295 (6) that some other person ought to contribute towards the expenses of carrying out any works required by the notice<sup>11</sup>.

On the hearing of the appeal the court may make such order as it thinks fit with respect to the person by whom any work is to be carried out and the contribution to be made by any other person towards the cost of the work<sup>12</sup>, or as to the proportions in which any expenses which may become recoverable by the body that served the notice are to be borne by the appellant and that other person<sup>13</sup>. The court must have regard to the degree of benefit to be derived by the different persons concerned<sup>14</sup> and, as between an owner and an occupier, to the terms and conditions, whether contractual or statutory, of the tenancy and to the nature of the works required<sup>15</sup>.

A person aggrieved by an order, determination or other decision of the magistrates' court may appeal to the Crown Court<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 I.e. a notice under Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25 (see PARA 599), or that provision as applied in relation to a main river by the Water Resources Act 1991 s 107(3) (see PARA 599 note 1).

3 The procedure on such an appeal is by way of complaint for an order and in accordance with the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(2). The appellant may serve a copy of his notice of appeal on any other person having an estate or interest in the part of the watercourse where the impediment occurs or land adjoining that part: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(5)(a). As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 569 note 2. As to magistrates' courts see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 583 et seq.

4 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1). For the purposes of the time limit for bringing such an appeal, the making of the complaint is treated as the bringing of the appeal: s 27(3).

5 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(a). The statutory provisions referred to are those of s 25 (see PARA 599), and those provisions as applied by the Water Resources Act 1991 s 107(3) (see PARA 599 note 1).

6 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(b). In so far as the appeal is based on this ground, the court must dismiss it if satisfied that the informality, defect or error was not a material one: s 27(4).

7 As to the bodies with power to serve such a notice see PARA 599.

8 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(c).

9 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(d).

10 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(e). Where the appeal is brought on this ground or on the ground set out in head (6) in the text, the appellant must serve a copy of the complaint on each other person referred to: s 27(5)(b).

11 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(1)(f). See also note 10.

12 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27(6)(a). Where on an appeal the court varies or reverses the decision of the body that served the notice, it is the duty of that body to give effect to the order of the court: s 27(9).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/B. CONTROL OF OBSTRUCTIONS AND STRUCTURES/601. Failure to comply with the notice.

601. Failure to comply with the notice.

Subject to the right of appeal<sup>1</sup>, if the person<sup>2</sup> upon whom a notice is served requiring him to carry out works to remedy the condition of a watercourse<sup>3</sup> fails to carry out the works indicated by the notice within the period so indicated, the body that served the notice<sup>4</sup> may itself carry out the works and recover from that person the expenses reasonably incurred by it in doing so<sup>5</sup>. In proceedings for the recovery of these expenses it is not open to the defendant to raise any question which he could<sup>6</sup> have raised on an appeal to the magistrates' court<sup>7</sup>.

Without prejudice to the right of the body concerned to exercise this power to execute works and recover its expenses, a person who fails to comply with a notice served on him is guilty of an offence<sup>8</sup>.

1    le the right of appeal under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 27: see PARA 600.

2    As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

3    le a notice under Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25 (see PARA 599), or that provision as applied in relation to a main river by the Water Resources Act 1991 s 107(3) (see PARA 599 note 1).

4    As to the bodies with power to serve such a notice see PARA 599.

5    Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25(6)(a). Nothing in these provisions affects the right of an owner or occupier to recover from the other under the terms of any lease or other contract the amount of any expenses recovered from him by the body concerned: s 25(8).

6    The statutory wording is 'could not'; but it is submitted that the inclusion here of the word 'not' is a drafting error. That word is omitted from the Public Health Act 1936 s 290(7) which applied before the consolidation of the flood defence/land drainage legislation, but appeared in and has been brought through from the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 18(6) (repealed). The clear intention must be, however, that a person should not raise in recovery proceedings matters which he might have raised on an appeal.

7    Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25(7).

8    Land Drainage Act 1991 s 25(6)(b). The penalty for such an offence is, on summary conviction, a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale: s 25(6)(b). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/B. CONTROL OF OBSTRUCTIONS AND STRUCTURES/602. Obstructions in ordinary watercourses.

602. Obstructions in ordinary watercourses.

No person<sup>1</sup> may, without the written<sup>2</sup> consent of the drainage board concerned<sup>3</sup>: (1) erect any mill dam, weir or other like obstruction to the flow of any ordinary watercourse<sup>4</sup> or raise or otherwise alter any such obstruction<sup>5</sup>; or (2) erect any culvert that would be likely to affect the flow of any such watercourse or alter any culvert in a manner that would be likely to affect any such flow<sup>6</sup>. Where an application is made to the drainage board concerned for its consent the consent must not be unreasonably withheld<sup>7</sup>; but the board may require an applicant for such consent to pay a fee on the making of an application<sup>8</sup>. If the drainage board concerned fails to notify a decision in writing to the applicant within two months<sup>9</sup> of the relevant day<sup>10</sup>, it is deemed to have consented to that application<sup>11</sup>. However, nothing in these provisions applies to: (a) any works under the control of a navigation authority<sup>12</sup>, harbour authority<sup>13</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>14</sup>; or (b) any works carried out or maintained under or in pursuance of any Act or any order having the force of an Act<sup>15</sup>.

If any obstruction is erected, or is raised or otherwise altered, or any culvert is erected or altered, in contravention of the above provisions, it constitutes a nuisance in respect of which the drainage board concerned may serve a notice<sup>16</sup> requiring the abatement of the nuisance within a specified period<sup>17</sup>. The notice may be served on the person by whom the obstruction has been erected or raised or otherwise altered, if that person has at the time when the notice is served power to remove the obstruction<sup>18</sup>. In any other case, the notice may be served on any person having power to remove the obstruction<sup>19</sup>.

If any person acts in contravention of, or fails to comply with, any such notice, he is guilty of an offence<sup>20</sup>; and if the contravention or failure is continued after conviction, he is liable to a further fine<sup>21</sup>. In addition, and without prejudice to such court proceedings, the drainage board concerned may take such action as may be necessary to remedy the effect of the contravention or failure<sup>22</sup>, and recover from the person in default the reasonable expenses of doing so<sup>23</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 As to the meaning of 'written' see PARA 22 note 1.

3 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(1). 'Drainage board concerned' means: (1) in relation to a watercourse in an internal drainage district, the internal drainage board for that district (s 23(8)(a)); and (2) in relation to any other watercourse, the Environment Agency (s 23(8)(b) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 191)). As to internal drainage districts and boards see PARA 569. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

Under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 8 the powers of an internal drainage board under s 23 are exercisable concurrently with the Environment Agency: see PARA 582. For other powers of control over culverts by local authorities see the Public Health Act 1936 ss 262-265; and PARA 98 et seq. However, these public health powers may not be exercised with respect to any stream, watercourse, ditch or culvert within the jurisdiction of a land drainage authority except after consultation with that authority: s 266(1)(i).

4 As to the meaning of 'ordinary watercourse' see PARA 573 note 16. For similar provisions applicable to main rivers see PARA 603.

5 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(1)(a).

6 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(1)(b).

7 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(3)(a). Any question whether consent has been unreasonably withheld is to be referred to a single arbitrator to be agreed between the parties or, failing such agreement, to be appointed on the application of either party by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers: s 23(5). The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-84) apply to any such arbitration: see s 94; and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1209.

8 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(2). The amount of the fee is to be £50 or such other sum as may be prescribed: s 23(2) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 192(1)). For these purposes, 'prescribed' means specified in, or determined in accordance with, an order made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers, and any such order may make different provision for different cases, including different provision in relation to different persons, circumstances or localities: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(7A) (added by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 192(2)). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(7). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. The statutory wording in s 23(7A) above is 'an order made by the ministers'. As to the meaning of 'the ministers', and as to the abolition of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, see PARA 569 note 9. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. The functions of a Minister of the Crown under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

9 As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 23 note 10.

10 'Relevant day', in relation to an application for a consent, means whichever is the later of: (1) the day on which the application is made (Land Drainage Act 1991 s 23(4)(a)); and (2) if at the time when the application is made an application fee is required to be paid, the day on which the liability to pay that fee is discharged (s 23(4)(b)).

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/B. CONTROL OF OBSTRUCTIONS AND STRUCTURES/603. Erection of structures in, over or under a main river.

603. Erection of structures in, over or under a main river.

No person<sup>1</sup> may erect any structure in, over or under a watercourse<sup>2</sup> which is part of a main river<sup>3</sup> except with the consent of, and in accordance with plans and sections approved by, the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup>. Nor may a person, without such consent, carry out any work of alteration or repair on any structure in, over or under such a watercourse if the work is likely to affect the flow of water in the watercourse or to impede any drainage work<sup>5</sup>. These prohibitions do not, however, apply to any work carried out in an emergency<sup>6</sup>.

Similarly, a person must not erect or alter any structure designed to contain or divert the floodwaters of any part of a main river except with the consent of and in accordance with plans and sections approved by the Agency<sup>7</sup>.

A consent or approval under the above provisions must not be unreasonably withheld<sup>8</sup>; but the Agency may require the payment of an application fee by a person who applies to it for such consent<sup>9</sup>. Consent may be given subject to any reasonable condition as to the time at which and manner in which any work is to be carried out<sup>10</sup>. If consent or approval is neither given nor refused within the relevant period<sup>11</sup> it is deemed to have been given<sup>12</sup>. If any question arises whether any consent or approval is unreasonably withheld or whether any condition imposed is reasonable and the parties agree to arbitration, the question is to be referred to a single arbitrator appointed by agreement between the parties or, in default of agreement, by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers<sup>13</sup>. If the parties do not agree to arbitration, the question is to be referred to and determined by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>14</sup>.

If any person carries out any work in contravention<sup>15</sup> of these provisions, the Agency may remove, alter or pull down the work<sup>16</sup>, and recover the expenses incurred in doing so from that person<sup>17</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions affects any enactment<sup>18</sup> requiring the consent of any government department for the erection of a bridge or any powers exercisable by any government department in relation to a bridge<sup>19</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

4 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(1) (ss 109, 110(1) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the similar provisions in respect of obstructions on ordinary watercourses see PARA 602. As to the powers of local authorities in relation to culverts see PARA 98 et seq.

5 See the Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(2) (as amended: see note 4). As to the meaning of 'drainage' see PARA 573.

6 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(5). A person carrying out any work under this exception must, however, inform the Agency in writing as soon as practicable of the carrying out of the work, and of the circumstances in which it was carried out: s 109(5)(a), (b) (as amended: see note 4). As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

7 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(3) (as amended: see note 4). No exception is made in this case for work carried out in an emergency.

8 Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(2)(a). It is always open to the Agency, when it has concerns over the validity of an application under s 109, to refuse consent on a without prejudice basis, and then to seek the determination of the court as to the validity of the application; if a court declares an application valid, there is no question of it being valid as from the date of that decision, but it will be declared to have been valid at all times: see R (on the application of Amberley House Investments Ltd) v Environment Agency [2004] EWHC 2394 (Admin), [2004] 43 EG 143 (CS), [2004] All ER (D) 110 (Oct).

9 Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(1) (as amended: see note 4). The amount of the fee is to be £50 or such other sum as may be prescribed: s 110(1) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 147(1)). For these purposes, 'prescribed' means specified in, or determined in accordance with, an order made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers; and any such order may make different provision for different cases, including different provision in relation to different persons, circumstances or localities: see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(6) (added by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 147(3)). The power to make such orders is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(5). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made. The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 110, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

10 Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(2)(c).

11 The 'relevant period' is: (1) in the case of a consent, the period of two months after whichever is the later of the day on which application for the consent is made and, if at the time when that application is made an application fee is required to be paid, the day on which the liability to pay that fee is discharged (Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(3)(a)); and (2) in the case of an approval, the period of two months after application for the approval is made (s 110(3)(b)). As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 23 note 10.

12 Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(2)(b). See R (on the application of Amberley House Investments Ltd) v Environment Agency [2004] EWHC 2394 (Admin), [2004] 43 EG 143 (CS), [2004] All ER (D) 110 (Oct).

13 Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(4)(a). The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-84) apply to any such arbitration: see s 94; and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1209.

14 See the Water Resources Act 1991 s 110(4)(b) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 147(2)).

15 As to the meaning of 'contravention' see PARA 20 note 5.

16 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(4)(a) (as amended: see note 4).

17 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(4)(b) (as amended: see note 4). The summary power under s 109(4) is, as a matter of good public administration, subject to the Agency's own enforcement policy, which requires the Agency's officers to consider, inter alia, whether a consent would have been issued. Further, if a structure has been erected over a watercourse in contravention of s 109, the Agency's enforcement powers under s 109(4) are not taken away by another application to erect a similar structure over the watercourse: see R (on the application of Amberley House Investments Ltd) v Environment Agency [2004] EWHC 2394 (Admin), [2004] 43 EG 143 (CS), [2004] All ER (D) 110 (Oct).

18 As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

19 Water Resources Act 1991 s 109(6). The provisions of the Water Resources Act 1991 which protect the undertakings of certain undertakers do not exempt such undertakers from the need to apply for consent under s 109 for their own works: see Sch 22 para 2(2); and PARA 490. Nor does anything in the British Waterways Act 1995 s 21 relieve any person of the obligation to obtain consent under these provisions: see s 21(9); and PARA 794. The Water Resources Act 1991 s 109 does not, however, apply to any structure constructed under any of the powers conferred by the Cardiff Bay Barrage Act 1993 s 1: see s 25(1).

603 Erection of structures in, over or under a main river

TEXT AND NOTES--Water Resources Act 1991 s 109 further amended: Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 s 82 (not yet in force).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/B. CONTROL OF OBSTRUCTIONS AND STRUCTURES/604. Diversion of watercourses by other authorities.

604. Diversion of watercourses by other authorities.

Where any watercourses<sup>1</sup> under the control of the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> or an internal drainage board<sup>3</sup> pass under or interfere with, or with the improvement or alteration of, any river, canal, dock, harbour, basin or other work (including any towing path adjacent to it) which belongs to or is under the jurisdiction of any navigation authority<sup>4</sup>, harbour authority<sup>5</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>6</sup>, that authority may, at its own expense, and on substituting for those watercourses other equally effective watercourses, take up, divert or alter the level of those watercourses<sup>7</sup>, and do all such matters and things as may be necessary in connection with the works authorised to be done by it<sup>8</sup>. If any question arises whether any watercourses substituted or proposed to be substituted are as effective as the existing watercourses, that question is to be referred to a single arbitrator appointed by agreement between the parties or, failing agreement, by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers on the application of either party<sup>9</sup>.

Similar powers are conferred on the Agency and internal drainage boards in respect of sewers, drains, pipes, and culverts vested in a sewerage undertaker which pass under or interfere with, or with the improvement of or alteration of, any watercourses under their jurisdiction<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'watercourse' see PARA 573 note 10: definition applied, in the case of the Water Resources Act 1991, by s 180(3).

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

4 As to the meaning of 'navigation authority' see PARA 189 note 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/C. BYELAWS/605. Power to make byelaws.

C. BYELAWS

605. Power to make byelaws.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup>, an internal drainage board<sup>2</sup> or a local authority<sup>3</sup> may make such byelaws as it considers necessary<sup>4</sup>: (1) for securing the efficient working of any drainage system<sup>5</sup>; or (2) for regulating the effects of any drainage system on the environment<sup>7</sup>. Without prejudice to the generality of the above provisions, the Agency, board or local authority<sup>8</sup> may, in particular, make byelaws for any of the following purposes:

- 1296 (1) regulating the use and preventing the improper use of any watercourses<sup>9</sup>, banks<sup>10</sup> or works vested in it or under its control or for preserving any such watercourses, banks or works from damage or destruction<sup>11</sup>;
- 1297 (2) regulating the opening of sluices and flood gates in connection with any of the works mentioned in head (1) above<sup>12</sup>;
- 1298 (3) preventing the obstruction of any watercourse vested in it or under its control by the discharge into the watercourse of any liquid or solid matter or by reason of any such matter being allowed to flow or fall into it<sup>13</sup>; and
- 1299 (4) compelling the persons<sup>14</sup> having control of any watercourse vested in it or under its control, or of any watercourse flowing into any such watercourse, to cut the vegetable growths in or on the banks and, when cut, to remove such growths<sup>15</sup>.

An internal drainage board may not, however, make byelaws in connection with a main river<sup>16</sup> or its banks or any drainage works in connection with a main river<sup>17</sup>; and a local authority may make byelaws only as far as necessary for the purpose of preventing flooding or remedying or mitigating damage caused by flooding<sup>18</sup>.

No byelaw made under these powers may conflict with or interfere with the operation of any byelaw made by a navigation authority<sup>19</sup>, harbour authority<sup>20</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>21</sup>.

Byelaws made under these provisions are not valid until they are confirmed<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

3 I.e. except (subject to the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(8)) an English county council: s 66(1) (s 66(1), (2) amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 22(5), Sch 11 para 4(11)). The exercise of the powers under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66 by a local authority is subject to s 16(1), (3) (see PARA 589) as those provisions apply in relation to the powers conferred by s 14: see s 66(8)(a). An English county council may therefore make byelaws only in the circumstances permitted by s 16(1), (3). As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 573 note 14.

4 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(1); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(1) (Sch 25 paras 2, 5 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to the possible relationship between the exercise of control under a byelaw and being in occupation under the Occupiers' Liability Acts 1957 and 1984 see Collier v Anglian Water Authority (1983) Times, 26 March, CA.

5 As to the meaning of 'drainage' see PARA 573.

6 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(1)(a) (s 66(1)(a), (b) substituted by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 100(3)); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(1)(a) (Sch 25 para 5(1)(a), (b) substituted by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 100(1)). In the case of an internal drainage board or local authority the drainage system must be in its district or area: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(1)(a) (as so substituted). As to internal drainage districts see PARA 569.

7 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(1)(b); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(1)(b) (both as substituted: see note 6). In the case of an internal drainage board or local authority the drainage system must be in its district or area: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(1)(b) (as so substituted).

8 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(2) (as amended: see note 3); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 2 (as amended: see note 4). The Environment Agency also has byelaw powers which may affect watercourses in relation to navigation (see PARA 709), pollution prevention (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 333), fisheries (see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 847 et seq), and the protection of land and waterways (see PARA 685). The power of local authorities and parish councils under the Public Health Act 1961 s 54 to provide boating pools is subject to consultation with the Environment Agency or any internal drainage board if the existence of a boating pool is likely to interfere with any water flowing directly or indirectly out of or into any watercourse vested in or controlled by the Agency or that board: see s 54(4) (amended by the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(1), Sch 1 para 11(a); and SI 1996/593); and OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 559. Nothing in the Public Health Act 1961 s 54 authorises any contravention of byelaws made under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66 or the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5: see the Public Health Act 1961 s 54(10) (amended by the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(1), Sch 1 para 11(b)).

9 As to the meaning of 'watercourse' see PARA 573 note 10: definition applied in the case of the Water Resources Act 1991 by Sch 25 para 5(5).

10 As to the meaning of 'banks' see PARA 574 note 2: definition applied in the case of the Water Resources Act 1991 by Sch 25 para 5(5). When a byelaw prohibited the construction of any structure on the bank of a river and tanks filled with earth and hardcore were placed along a river bank, the tanks were held to be a structure within the meaning of the byelaw: Hobday v Nicol [1944] 1 All ER 302, DC.

11 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(2)(a); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(2)(a) (as amended: see note 4). No byelaw for these purposes is valid if it would prevent reasonable facilities being afforded for enabling a watercourse to be used by stock for drinking purposes: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(4); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(3).

12 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(2)(b); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(2)(b).

13 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(2)(c); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(2)(c) (as amended: see note 4). Byelaws under this head are for securing the efficient working of the drainage system and in particular for preventing the obstruction of a watercourse by a discharge flowing or falling into it; they are not therefore aimed at pollution prevention. As to water pollution see further ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 270 et seq.

14 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

15 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(2)(d); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(2)(d) (as amended: see note 4). As to other statutory provisions restricting the cutting of vegetation in or on a watercourse and the removal of vegetation when cut see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 90(2); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 293.

16 As to the meaning of 'main river' see PARA 574.

17 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(3)(a).

18 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(3)(b).

19 As to the meaning of 'navigation authority' see PARA 189 note 1.

20 As to the meaning of 'harbour authority' see PARA 189 note 2.

21 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(9); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(4). As to the meaning of 'conservancy authority' see PARA 189 note 3.

22 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(5); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 1(1); and PARA 606. As to the enforcement of byelaws see PARA 607.

UPDATE

605 Power to make byelaws

NOTE 11--See further Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(3A), (3B) (added by Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 s 84) (not yet in force).

NOTE 21--Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5(4) amended: Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 Sch 11 para 3 (partly in force).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/C. BYELAWS/606. Confirmation and revocation of byelaws.

606. Confirmation and revocation of byelaws.

A byelaw<sup>1</sup> made by the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> or an internal drainage board<sup>3</sup> is not valid until confirmed by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>4</sup>, who may, with or without a local inquiry<sup>5</sup>, refuse to confirm any byelaw or confirm it either without or, if the Agency or board consents, with modifications<sup>6</sup>. The relevant minister may fix the date on which any confirmed byelaw is to come into force; and if no date is fixed, a byelaw comes into force at the end of one month from the date of confirmation<sup>7</sup>.

A byelaw made by a local authority<sup>8</sup> also requires ministerial confirmation before it is valid<sup>9</sup>, and the procedure to be followed is that of the Local Government Act 1972<sup>10</sup>.

If it appears to the relevant minister that the revocation of a byelaw made by the Agency or an internal drainage board is necessary or expedient, he may revoke the byelaw<sup>11</sup>. Before revoking such a byelaw he must, however, give notice to the Agency or, as the case may be, to the board that made the byelaw, and consider any objections raised by it<sup>12</sup>; and if the Agency or board so requires, he must hold a local inquiry before revoking the byelaw<sup>13</sup>.

The production of a printed copy of a byelaw purporting to be made by the Agency or an internal drainage board upon which is indorsed a certificate, purporting to be signed on its behalf, stating that the byelaw was made by the Agency or, as the case may be, that board, that the copy is a true copy of the byelaw, that on a specified date the byelaw was confirmed, and the date (if any) fixed for the coming into force of the byelaw, is prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the certificate and without proof of the handwriting or official position of any person purporting to sign the certificate<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the power to make byelaws relating to drainage see PARA 605. The procedure for the confirmation of byelaws also applies to byelaws made by the Environment Agency in relation to navigation (see PARA 709), and the protection of land and waterways (see PARA 685).

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

4 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(5)(a); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 1(1) (Sch 26 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to the meaning of 'relevant minister' in the Land Drainage Act 1991, and as to the transfer of functions under that Act to the Welsh Ministers, see PARA 569 note 9. For the purposes of byelaws made by virtue of the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5 (see PARA 605) and which have effect in the area of a regional flood defence committee the whole or the greater part of whose area is in England, the 'relevant minister' means the minister (as to the meaning of which see PARA 15 note 1) (see Sch 26 para 7(a)); and in relation to other such byelaws (and other byelaws made by the Agency under Sch 25: see PARA 605) the 'relevant minister' means the Secretary of State (Sch 26 para 7(c)). The functions of any Minister of the Crown under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 (except that of the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food under Sch 26 para 7(a)), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Secretary of State, and as to the abolition of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to regional flood defence committees see PARA 559. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

At least one month before application is made for a byelaw to be confirmed, the Agency or, as the case may be, the board must cause a notice of its intention to be published in the London Gazette and in such other manner as it thinks appropriate or best adapted for informing persons affected and serve notice on any persons carrying out functions under any enactment, or any public authorities, that appear to be concerned: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 1(1); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 1(2) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 23 note 10. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. As to the service of documents see PARA 22. A copy of the proposed byelaw must be deposited at one or more of the offices of the Agency or, as appropriate, the offices of the board where reasonable facilities for its inspection must be afforded free of charge; and on application to the Agency or board any person is entitled to be furnished free of charge with a printed copy of the byelaw: Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 1(2)-(3); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 1(3)-(5) (as so amended).

5 As to local inquiries under the Land Drainage Act 1991 see PARA 657.

6 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 2(1); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 2(1) (as amended: see note 4). If so directed by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers, the Agency or board must cause notice of any proposed modifications to be given in accordance with such directions: Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 2(2); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 2(2) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'modifications' in the Water Resources Act 1991 see PARA 141 note 20.

7 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 3; Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 3. Upon confirmation the byelaw must be printed and deposited at one or more offices of the Agency (including, if there is one, an office in the area to which it applies) or at the office of the internal drainage board that made the byelaw, and copies of it must be available at those offices at all reasonable times for inspection by the public free of charge: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 paras 4(1), 7; Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 4(1) (as amended: see note 4). On application to the Agency or board, and on payment of a reasonable sum determined by it, any person is entitled to be furnished with a copy of a byelaw which has been so deposited: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 5 para 4(2); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 26 para 4(2) (as so amended).

8 As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 573 note 14. As to such byelaws see PARA 605.

9 Such confirmation is given by the Secretary of State in relation to any area of England, and by the Welsh Ministers in relation to any area of Wales: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(5)(b), (c).

10 The Local Government Act 1972 s 236 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARAS 556-557) has effect for these purposes: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(5).

607. Enforcement of byelaws.

If any person<sup>1</sup> acts in contravention<sup>2</sup> of, or fails to comply with, any drainage byelaw<sup>3</sup> made by the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup>, an internal drainage board<sup>5</sup>, or a local authority<sup>6</sup>, he is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup>; and if the contravention or failure is continued after conviction he is liable to a continuing penalty<sup>8</sup>. Without prejudice to any such proceedings, the Agency, internal drainage board or local authority which made the byelaw may take such action as may be necessary to remedy the effect of the contravention or failure<sup>9</sup>, and may recover the expenses reasonably incurred by it in doing so from the person in default<sup>10</sup>. Where, however, a local authority acts in default to remedy a contravention and this remedial action involves the carrying out of drainage works<sup>11</sup>, it must obtain the prior approval of, and comply with any reasonable conditions imposed by, the Agency<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 As to the meaning of 'contravention' in the Water Resources Act 1991 see PARA 20 note 5.

3 Ie any byelaw made under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66 or the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 5: see PARAS 605-606.

4 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

5 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

6 As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 573 note 14.

7 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(6); Water Resources Act 1991 s 211(4). The penalty for such an offence is, on summary conviction, a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(6)(a); Water Resources Act 1991 s 211(4)(a). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18. As to offences by bodies corporate under the Water Resources Act 1991 see PARA 185.

8 If the contravention or failure is continued after conviction, the person is liable to a further fine not exceeding £40 for every day on which the contravention or failure is so continued: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(6)(b); Water Resources Act 1991 s 211(4)(b).

9 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(7)(a); Water Resources Act 1991 s 211(5)(b) (s 211(5) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to powers of entry for these purposes see PARA 608.

10 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66(7)(b); Water Resources Act 1991 s 211(5)(c) (as amended: see note 9). However, nothing in the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 66 authorises the carrying out of any works by an internal drainage board or local authority in connection with a main river: see s 66(8). As to the meaning of 'main river' see PARA 574.

11 As to the meaning of references to the carrying out of drainage works see PARA 574 note 3.

12 Ie the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 17 (see PARA 589) applies in relation to the carrying out by a local authority of any drainage works authorised by s 66(7) (see the text to note 9) as it applies in relation to the carrying out of any drainage works authorised by s 14(1): s 66(8)(b).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/D. POWERS OVER LAND/608. Powers of entry.

D. POWERS OVER LAND

608. Powers of entry.

Any person<sup>1</sup> designated in writing for the purpose in question by the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> may enter any premises or vessel for enforcement or certain other purposes<sup>3</sup>.

Any person authorised by an internal drainage board<sup>4</sup> or a local authority<sup>5</sup>, after producing, if so required, a duly authenticated document showing his authority, may at all reasonable times:

- 1300 (1) enter any land<sup>6</sup> for the purpose of exercising any function of the board, or any function of the local authority under the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>7</sup>;
- 1301 (2) without prejudice to head (1) above, enter and survey any land (including the interior of any mill through which water passes or in connection with which water is impounded) and take levels of the land and inspect the condition of any drainage<sup>8</sup> work on it<sup>9</sup>; and
- 1302 (3) inspect and take copies of any Acts of Parliament, awards or other documents in the possession of any internal drainage board, local authority or navigation authority<sup>10</sup> which relate to the drainage of land and confer any powers or impose any duties on that board or authority<sup>11</sup>.

Except in an emergency, admission to any land may not be so demanded as of right unless written<sup>12</sup> notice of the intended entry has been given to the occupier<sup>13</sup>; and, if the land is used for residential purposes or the demand is for admission to any land with heavy equipment, notice must be given not less than seven days before the demand for entry is made<sup>14</sup>. A person so authorised to enter any land may take with him such other persons and such equipment as may be necessary<sup>15</sup>; and if the land is unoccupied he must, on leaving it, leave it as effectually secured against trespassers as he found it<sup>16</sup>.

Where injury is sustained by any person by reason of the exercise of any of these powers by an internal drainage board or local authority, the board or authority is liable to make full compensation to the injured person<sup>17</sup>. In case of dispute, the amount of compensation payable must be determined by the Lands Tribunal<sup>18</sup>.

Any person who intentionally obstructs or impedes any person authorised by an internal drainage board or a local authority exercising a power conferred by the above provisions is guilty of an offence<sup>19</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 See the Water Resources Act 1991 s 169 (powers of entry for enforcement purposes: see PARA 476) and s 172 (powers of entry for other purposes: see PARA 479).

4 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

5 As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 573 note 14.

6 As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 569 note 2.

7 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 64(1)(a). The powers of entry conferred by s 64 do not apply in relation to land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or the Duchy of Lancaster, in relation to land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall or in relation to land belonging to a government department: s 64(7). Section 64 is without prejudice to any other enactment conferring powers of entry: s 64(8). As to the general powers of internal drainage boards and local authorities to carry out works see PARA 589. In R (on the application of MWH & H Ward Estates Ltd) v Monmouthshire County Council [2002] 45 EG 154 (CS), [2002] All ER (D) 463 (Oct), CA it was held, in relation to an entry onto land to construct a new drainage channel, that the independent right of entry under the Land Drainage Act s 64 without the owner's consent was not a breach of the right to the peaceful enjoyment of property under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (1950), Protocol I art 1, now incorporated into domestic law by the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1 Pt II art 1 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 165).

At the date at which this volume states the law, draft legislation proposes the abolition of the Lands Tribunal and its replacement by the Upper Tribunal (as to which see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) para 13A).

For a case which confirmed that properly exercised powers of entry give rise to a claim in compensation and not to damages for trespass or nuisance, and confirming the width of the powers of entry provisions see Pattinson v Finningley Internal Drainage Board [1970] 2 QB 33, [1970] 1 All ER 790.

19 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 64(6). The penalty for such an offence is, on summary conviction, a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale: s 64(6). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18.

608 Powers of entry

TEXT AND NOTE 18--Reference to the Lands Tribunal is now to the Upper Tribunal: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 64(5) (amended by SI 2009/1307).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/D. POWERS OVER LAND/609. Acquisition and disposal of land.

609. Acquisition and disposal of land.

For any purposes in connection with the performance of any of its functions, the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> may acquire any land<sup>2</sup> by agreement<sup>3</sup>; and may be authorised<sup>4</sup> to purchase compulsorily any land anywhere in England<sup>5</sup> and Wales which is required by the Agency for the purposes of, or in connection with, the carrying out of its functions<sup>6</sup>. Likewise, an internal drainage board<sup>7</sup> may, for any purpose in connection with the performance of any of its functions, acquire land<sup>8</sup> inside or outside its district by agreement<sup>9</sup> or, if authorised<sup>10</sup>, acquire any such land compulsorily<sup>11</sup>. An internal drainage board may exercise such powers so as to acquire interests in or rights over land by way of securing the creation of new interests or rights in its favour (as well as by acquiring interests or rights already in existence)<sup>12</sup>.

The Agency or an internal drainage board may generally dispose of land held by that Agency or board in any manner that it wishes<sup>13</sup>; but certain restrictions on this right are imposed in the case of land which has been compulsorily acquired<sup>14</sup>. Except with the consent of the relevant minister, an internal drainage board must not dispose of land, otherwise than by way of a short tenancy<sup>15</sup>: (1) for a consideration less than the best that can reasonably be obtained<sup>16</sup>; or (2) which has been acquired by it compulsorily, or by agreement at a time when it was authorised to acquire that land compulsorily<sup>17</sup>.

The exercise of the powers conferred on local authorities by the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>18</sup> is included in the purposes for which the council of any district or London borough or Welsh county or county borough or the Common Council of the City of London<sup>19</sup> may be authorised by the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to purchase land compulsorily<sup>20</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the functions of the Environment Agency see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 72 et seq.

2 As to the meaning of 'land' generally see PARA 14 note 21.

3 See the Environment Act 1995 s 37(1)(b); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 73.

4 By the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers: see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 154(1). The power of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers includes power: (1) to authorise the acquisition of interests in, and rights over, land by the creation of new interests and rights (s 154(2)(a)); and (2) by authorising the acquisition by the Agency of any rights over land which is to be or has been acquired by the Agency, to provide for the extinguishment of those rights (s 154(2)(b) (s 154 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128)). Enactments relating to compensation and the provisions of the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965 are modified in their application in relation to the compulsory acquisition under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 154(1) of a right over land by the creation of a new right: see s 154(5), Sch 18. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

The functions of any Minister of the Crown under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 154, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. Where an internal drainage board exercises its powers so as to acquire compulsorily an interest in or right over land by way of securing compulsorily the creation in its favour of a new interest or right: (1) the enactments relating to compensation for the compulsory purchase of land, in their application to such acquisition, have effect with the necessary modifications (s 62(5)(a)); and (2) the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 and the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965 (see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND), in their application to such compulsory acquisition, have effect with such modifications as may be prescribed (Land Drainage Act 1991 s 62(5)(b)). 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations under s 65 (see PARA 583): s 72(1). As to the provision made see the Internal Drainage Boards (Acquisition of New Interests and Rights) Regulations 1977, SI 1977/84, which continue to have effect by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 1.

609 Acquisition and disposal of land

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iii) Powers of Drainage Bodies/D. POWERS OVER LAND/610. Accretion of land.

610. Accretion of land.

If the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> certify that, as the result of:

- 1303 (1) any drainage<sup>3</sup> works carried out or improved or proposed to be carried out or improved by the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup> in connection with the tidal waters of a main river<sup>5</sup>; or
- 1304 (2) any drainage works transferred<sup>6</sup> from a drainage body<sup>7</sup> to the Agency<sup>8</sup>, there has been or is likely to be any accretion of land<sup>9</sup>, the powers of the Agency<sup>10</sup>, for the purpose of carrying out its functions, to acquire land or any interest in or right over land by agreement or compulsorily include power so to acquire<sup>11</sup>:

- 1305 (a) the accretion of land or the land to which the accretion will, if it takes place, be added, together with any right to reclaim or embank the accretion<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1306 (b) such other land as is reasonably required for the purpose of reclamation of the accretion or for the enjoyment of it when reclaimed<sup>13</sup>.

Where the value of any land or right is increased by the carrying out or proposed carrying out of drainage works by the Agency, the amount of the increase is not to be taken into account in assessing the compensation in respect of its compulsory acquisition<sup>14</sup>.

Where, by reason of a certificate having been given by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers under these provisions in relation to any drainage works, the Agency acquires any land or right and a grant has been made out of public money for defraying the cost or part of the cost of the carrying out of the works, the Agency must, on being so required by the Crown Estate Commissioners<sup>15</sup>, transfer the land or right to the Commissioners or to any person<sup>16</sup> nominated by them<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 155, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

- 16 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.
- 17 Water Resources Act 1991 s 155(5) (as amended: see note 5). The Commissioners must pay to the Agency the sum paid by the Agency in respect of the acquisition of the land or right, together with the amount of any costs incurred by the Agency in connection with the acquisition: s 155(5)(b) (as so amended). If the Agency fails to transfer the land on being so required, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers may by a vesting order transfer the land or right to the Commissioners or to a person nominated by them: s 155(6) (as so amended). For this purpose, the Secretary of State or Welsh Ministers are a competent authority within the meaning of the Law of Property Act 1925 s 9 (see REAL PROPERTY vol 39(2) (Reissue) PARA 246): Water Resources Act 1991 s 155(6). As to grants to the Environment Agency see the Environment Act 1995 s 47; and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 93.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/611. Financing of flood defence and land drainage expenditure.

(iv) Finance and Revenue

A. IN GENERAL

611. Financing of flood defence and land drainage expenditure.

Whereas the other functions of the Environment Agency are mainly financed by direct charges<sup>1</sup>, the main source of finance for flood defence works is by way of levy on local authorities<sup>2</sup> and central government grants<sup>3</sup>. The Agency may also require contributions from internal drainage boards<sup>4</sup> and receive contributions from local authorities<sup>5</sup> or payments from other bodies in connection with arrangements for the carrying out of the Agency's flood defence functions<sup>6</sup>.

The Agency also has powers to raise a general drainage charge for the area of a local flood defence district<sup>7</sup> and a special drainage charge in respect of areas defined in a scheme for the carrying out of particular drainage works in the interest of agriculture<sup>8</sup>. It may recover expenses from owners of land in respect of schemes for the drainage of defined small areas<sup>9</sup> and receive central government grants for, inter alia, the improvement of existing works or the construction of new flood defence works<sup>10</sup>. Except for: (1) amounts set aside towards research or related activities or towards meeting the Agency's administrative expenses<sup>11</sup>; or (2) amounts to be paid by way of contribution towards expenses incurred by the Agency or any regional flood defence committee<sup>12</sup>, revenue raised by the Agency for flood defence purposes<sup>13</sup> in a local flood defence district must be spent only in the carrying out of the Agency's flood defence functions<sup>14</sup> in or for the benefit of the local flood defence district in which it was raised<sup>15</sup>. For this purpose, so much of the area of a regional flood defence committee as is in an area in relation to which no local flood defence scheme<sup>16</sup> is in force is to be treated as a single local flood defence district<sup>17</sup>.

On the other hand the expenses of internal drainage boards are met by drainage rates on agricultural hereditaments<sup>18</sup>, levies on local billing authorities<sup>19</sup> and contributions from the Agency<sup>20</sup>. An internal drainage board may receive grant-in-aid from central government towards expenditure incurred in carrying out drainage schemes<sup>21</sup>. A local authority and any other drainage body may receive a grant in the same way as an internal drainage board<sup>22</sup>. The land drainage expenses<sup>23</sup> of the council of a metropolitan district or London borough<sup>24</sup> are defrayed as general expenses, or, if and so far as the council thinks fit, as special expenses chargeable on such parts of the metropolitan district or borough as it thinks fit<sup>25</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the power of the Agency to impose charges see PARA 273 et seq. See also ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 97.

2 As to levies on local authorities for flood defence expenditure see PARA 612.

3 As to grants to the Environment Agency see the Environment Act 1995 s 47; and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 93. In relation to Wales, the power to make such grants is exercisable by the Welsh Ministers free from the requirement for Treasury approval, but concurrently with any other Minister of the Crown by whom the power is exercisable: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1; Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

4 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569. As to contributions from and precepts on such boards see PARA 613.

5 As to contributions from local authorities see PARA 656. These contributions are at the discretion of the local authority and are not demanded by the Agency as a levy. Payments may also be made by a local authority on a transfer of liabilities from a local authority to the Agency: see PARA 575.

6 As to such payments see PARA 590. As part of its general powers to borrow money, the Environment Agency may borrow money required to meet its flood defence functions: see the Environment Act 1995 s 48; and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 94.

7 As to such charges see PARA 614. As to local flood defence districts see PARA 559 et seq.

8 As to such charges see PARA 615 et seq.

9 As to such expenses see PARA 595.

10 As to the carrying out, and the meaning, of maintenance and improvement works see PARA 589.

12 Water Resources Act 1991 s 118(3)(b) (as amended: see note 11). The contribution referred to is a contribution under arrangements made for the purposes of s 106(1)(b) (see PARA 573): s 118(3)(b) (as so amended). As to regional flood defence committees see PARA 559.

13 The revenue raised by the Agency in a local flood defence district: (1) by virtue of any regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 74 (power to issue levies: see PARA 612); (2) by general drainage charges under the Water Resources Act 1991 ss 134, 135 (see PARA 614); (3) by special drainage charges under ss 137, 138 (see PARAS 615, 618); or (4) by contributions required under s 139(1) (see PARA 613): s 118(2) (as amended: see note 11). Any amount specified in a resolution under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 58(1)(b) (see PARA 613) in relation to any local flood defence district (allocation of revenue in lieu of contributions) is treated for these purposes as if it were revenue actually raised by contributions required under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 139(1) (see PARA 613): s 118(4). Additionally, the following sums, ie: (a) any sums held by the Agency by virtue of any transfer of property, rights or liabilities from a water authority in accordance with a scheme under the Water Act 1989 s 4(1)(b), Sch 2 (see PARA 108), in so far as those sums represent amounts which the water authority was required by virtue of the Water Act 1973 Sch 3 para 31 (repealed) to spend only in the discharge of its land drainage functions in or for the benefit of a particular local land drainage district; and (b) any sums raised by the Agency in a flood defence district by virtue of a precept issued under the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 46 (repealed), are treated as revenue raised by the Agency as mentioned in heads (1)-(4) above in the corresponding local flood defence district or, as the case may be, in that local flood defence district: Water Resources Act 1991 s 118(5) (as so amended).

14 As to the meaning of 'flood defence functions' see PARA 573 note 18.

15 Water Resources Act 1991 s 118(1)(a) (as amended: see note 11). Such revenue is disregarded in determining the amount of any surplus for the purposes of the Environment Act 1995 s 44(4) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 90): Water Resources Act 1991 s 118(1)(b) (as so amended).

25 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 61(1). This provision is expressed to be subject to any express provision to the contrary contained in the Land Drainage Act 1991 or in the Water Resources Act 1991 Pt VI Ch II (ss 125-145): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 61(1). As to financing the expenditure of local authorities see further PARA 641.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/612. Levies on local authorities.

612. Levies on local authorities.

For the purposes of its flood defence functions<sup>1</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> is a levying body<sup>3</sup> within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1988<sup>4</sup>. In order to meet its expenses<sup>5</sup> in respect of a local flood defence district<sup>6</sup>, the Agency may issue a levy to a local council<sup>7</sup> in respect of any financial year<sup>8</sup>. A levy must be issued before 15 February in the financial year preceding that in respect of which it is issued, but is not invalid merely because it is issued on or after that date<sup>9</sup>. A levy is subject to a prescribed maximum amount<sup>10</sup>.

The Agency must secure that such of its expenses in respect of a flood defence district as are to be met by levies so issued are borne by the local councils, if more than one, in a proportion to be determined by reference to the council tax base<sup>11</sup> for the financial year in question for the area of each local council or part which falls within that district<sup>12</sup>. The qualifying expenses to be apportioned among the relevant local authorities in respect of a local flood defence district for any financial year are ascertained by deducting from the relevant expenditure<sup>13</sup> any amount defrayed out of any reserve fund, replacement fund or sinking fund and any amount of income not derived from the levies issued to those authorities and adding any amount required by way of new working capital<sup>14</sup>.

If the Agency has issued a levy in respect of a flood defence district for a financial year it may issue a levy in substitution, provided that the amount of the new levy is not greater than the amount of the levy for which it is substituted<sup>15</sup>. Where, however, the old levy has been quashed because of a failure to fulfil the apportionment requirements<sup>16</sup>, the amount of the new levy may be greater than the amount of the old to the extent that is necessary to enable those requirements to be fulfilled<sup>17</sup>. If the amount of the old levy exceeds that of the new levy, the amount in excess must be repaid if the local council by which it was paid so requires<sup>18</sup>. In any other case, the amount in excess must either be repaid or credited against any subsequent liability of the local council in respect of any levy issued by the Agency<sup>19</sup>.

A local council to which a levy is issued in respect of a financial year must pay the amount of that levy<sup>20</sup> to the Agency in that financial year at such time and in such instalments (if any) as may be agreed between the Agency and the council or, in default of such agreement, at the prescribed<sup>21</sup> times<sup>22</sup>.

A local council which is a billing authority<sup>23</sup> or a county or county borough council may, in making calculations<sup>24</sup> for a financial year, anticipate a levy to be issued to it for the year by the Agency in any case where such a levy has not been issued by the Agency to that authority at the time the calculations are made, and the Agency issued a levy for the preceding financial year<sup>25</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'flood defence functions' see PARA 573 note 18.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to other sources of income for these functions see PARA 611.

3 Ie within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 74 (power to make regulations authorising a levying body to issue a levy: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 530); and s 74 has effect accordingly: Water Resources Act 1991 s 133.

4 Water Resources Act 1991 s 133 (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). The Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, have been made: see the text to notes 5-25. See also the Water Authority Expenses (Limitation of Precepts) Order 1980, SI 1980/2017 (amended by the Water Act 1989 s 136(2), Sch 15 para 1(1), 18; and by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 233(1)) which are preserved for the purpose of, or in connection with, what are now the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, by the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 2(5).

5 'Expenses' of the Environment Agency for a financial year means qualifying expenses ascertained in accordance with the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 45(2) (repealed with savings: see note 10), the reference in that section to sums received otherwise than by virtue of s 46 being taken as a reference to sums received otherwise than by virtue of any levy issued under the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61: reg 1(2) (the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, amended in their entirety by the Environment Act 1995 s 120, Sch 22 para 233(1)). The Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, apply in relation to any expenses of the Environment Agency or levy in respect of any financial year beginning on or after 1 April 1993: reg 2 (as so amended).

6 le a local flood defence district created by a scheme under what is now the Environment Act 1995 s 17 (see PARA 563) or which is treated as such by virtue of the Water Resources Act 1991 s 134(3) (see PARA 614) or continues to be so treated under the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 14(1): Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 1(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(a).

7 'Local council', in relation to a local flood defence district, means the council of any county, county borough, metropolitan district or London borough any part of whose area is comprised in that district and, if any part of the City of London is comprised in that district, the Common Council of the City of London: Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 1(2) (definition amended by virtue of the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 ss 1-3). As to local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to the London boroughs and their councils see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 35 et seq. As to the Common Council of the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 51-55.

8 See the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 3(1) (as amended: see note 5). When issuing such a levy to a local council, the Agency must notify the council whether the levy or any portion of it relates to part only of the council's area and, if it does, which part: reg 3(2) (as so amended).

9 Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 4(1), (2). This does not apply to a substituted levy issued in accordance with reg 8 (see the text to notes 15-19): reg 4(3).

10 A levy so issued is subject to the provisions of the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 46(5)-(7) (ss 45-47, 89, 110 repealed with savings by the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 ss 2(2), 3(1), Sch 2 para 2(5), Sch 3 Pt I): see the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 5(1) (as amended: see note 5). The aggregate amount for which levies may be issued for any one financial year to a local authority may not, unless special consent has been obtained, exceed the amount for the financial year determined for the relevant area in accordance with the prescribed provisions: see reg 5(1), (3) (as so amended); Land Drainage Act 1976 s 46(5), (6) (as so repealed). As to the prescribed provisions see the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 5(2), (4) (reg 5(2) as so amended). 'Special consent' means a consent given (1) in the case of a local flood defence district with a local flood defence committee, by a majority of the whole number of the local authority members of that committee; and (2) in the case of any other local flood defence district, by a majority of the whole number of those of the local authority members of the regional flood defence committee who were appointed to that committee by or on behalf of constituent councils any part of whose area is in the district: s 46(7) (as so repealed; amended by virtue of the Water Act 1989 s 136(2), Sch 15 para 1(1)(d) (repealed)). The Agency is under a duty to prepare a statement of the purposes to which the amount demanded by any levy is intended to be applied, and for the basis on which it is calculated; and a local authority is not liable to pay the amount demanded by any such precept until it has received such a statement: see the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 46(8) (as so repealed; amended by virtue of the Environment Act 1995 ss 1-3; and by virtue of SI 1993/61).

11 The council tax base is, where the levy is issued in respect of: (1) the whole of the area of a billing authority which is a local council, the amount calculated by that authority as its council tax base for the year in accordance with the rules for the time being effective as regards that year under regulations made under the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 33(5); (2) the whole of the area of a county or county borough council, the aggregate of the amounts calculated by the billing authorities to which that council has power to issue precepts as their council tax bases for the year for their areas in accordance with the rules for the time being effective as regards that year under regulations made under s 44(5); (3) part of the area of a billing authority which is a local council, the amount calculated by that authority as its council tax base for the year for that part of its area in accordance with the rules for the time being effective as regards that year under regulations made under s 34(4); or (4) part of the area of a county council, the aggregate of the amounts calculated by the billing authorities to which the county council has power to issue precepts as their council tax bases for the year for their areas, or, as the case may require, for the parts of their areas falling within the part of the area of the county council to which the levy relates, in accordance with the rules for the time being effective as regards that year under regulations made under s 45(4): Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 6(3). Where, however, a billing authority has calculated and, where required, notified to a county council within the prescribed period its council tax base for certain purposes set out in the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 33(1), 44(1), 34(3) or 45(3), the council tax base is the amount so calculated: see the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 6(4). See further LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 1 et seq; RATING AND COUNCIL TAX.

12 Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 6(1), (2) (reg 6(1) as amended: see note 5). A billing authority which is a local council, or to which a county or county borough council which is a local council for these purposes has power to issue a precept, must, within the period beginning on 1 December and ending on 31 January in each financial year, inform the Agency of its council tax base for its area or the part or parts of its area in respect of which a levy will be issued or it anticipates that a levy will be issued in the immediately following financial year: reg 7(1)-(3) (reg 7(1), (3) as so amended).

13 'Relevant expenditure' in relation to any local flood defence district, means expenditure by the Agency in the performance of its flood defence functions in or for the benefit of that district, including an appropriate proportion of the Agency's administrative expenses and of the expenses of its research and related activities: Land Drainage Act 1976 s 45(3) (as repealed with savings and amended: see note 10).

14 See the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 45(2) (as repealed with savings and amended: see note 10). The Agency's other income may include income from drainage charges and contributions from internal drainage boards: see PARA 613 et seq.

19 Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 8(5)(b) (as amended: see note 5).

20 For these purposes, references to payment of a levy are references to the payment of a levy after the deduction of any amount credited against the liability of the local council in respect of that levy in accordance with the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 8(5)(b) (see the text to note 19): reg 9(2).

21 Ie by four equal instalments due on 1 May, 1 July, 1 October and 1 January in the financial year or, if the levy is issued after 30 April in the financial year, by equal instalments or by a single payment due on as many of those dates as remain after the date of issue of the levy or, if none so remain, by a single payment due 30 days after that date of issue: Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 9(1)(b)(i), (ii).

22 Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/61, reg 9(1)(a), (b) (as amended: see note 5).

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/613. Contributions by and to internal drainage boards.

613. Contributions by and to internal drainage boards.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> must by resolution require every internal drainage board<sup>2</sup> to make towards the Agency's expenses such contribution as the Agency considers to be fair<sup>3</sup>. Unlike the calculation of levies on relevant local authorities<sup>4</sup>, the legislation does not provide any statutory formula for the calculation of such contributions; but where an internal drainage district<sup>5</sup> (the 'main internal drainage district') comprises two or more other internal drainage districts ('minor internal drainage districts'), the Agency must not require the board of the main internal drainage district to contribute, except in respect of such part of the district as is not situated within any minor internal drainage district<sup>6</sup>. The Agency may, however, require the board of the main internal drainage district to pay direct to it an amount equal to the aggregate of the contributions which the Agency has determined should be made by the boards of the minor districts<sup>7</sup>, in which case the board of the main district must raise the amount so paid to the Agency by means of drainage rates<sup>8</sup> levied by that board within, or special levies issued in respect of, the main district or such part of it as is situated within a minor district<sup>9</sup>. A resolution may be acted upon by the Agency forthwith, notwithstanding that the time for bringing an appeal<sup>10</sup> has not expired or that an appeal so brought is pending<sup>11</sup>.

Where, on the other hand, it appears to an internal drainage board that, by reason of the quantity of water which its district receives from lands at a higher level<sup>12</sup>, or by reason of the period that will elapse before its district obtains any relief from the operations of the Agency on a main river<sup>13</sup>, it is fair that a contribution towards its expenses should be made by the Agency, it may apply to the Agency for a contribution<sup>14</sup>, and the Agency may resolve to make to the board such contribution, if any, as may be specified in the resolution<sup>15</sup>. Such a resolution may be acted upon by the Agency forthwith, notwithstanding that the period for bringing an appeal<sup>16</sup> has not expired or that an appeal so brought is pending<sup>17</sup>.

If an internal drainage board is aggrieved by a resolution of the Agency determining the amount of a contribution<sup>18</sup> or refusing to make a contribution<sup>19</sup>, or if a county, county borough or London borough council is aggrieved by such a resolution on the ground that the amount of a contribution required from a board is inadequate<sup>20</sup> or that a contribution to be made to the board by the Agency is excessive<sup>21</sup>, the board or council may appeal to the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>22</sup>. On such an appeal the relevant minister may, after considering any objections made to him and, if he thinks fit, holding a public local inquiry<sup>23</sup>, make such an order in the matter as he thinks just<sup>24</sup>. Where the Agency has acted on a resolution<sup>25</sup> and an appeal is brought in respect of the resolution, the relevant minister must by his order direct such adjustment to be made in respect of any sums recovered or paid in pursuance of the resolution as may be necessary for giving effect to his decision<sup>26</sup>.

The Agency may issue precepts to internal drainage boards requiring payment of any amount required to be contributed<sup>27</sup> by those boards<sup>28</sup>, and a board must pay any amount so demanded<sup>29</sup>. The Agency must prepare in a prescribed form<sup>30</sup> a statement of the purposes to which the amount demanded is intended to be applied<sup>31</sup> and of the basis on which it is calculated<sup>32</sup>, and the board is not liable to pay the amount until it has received such statement<sup>33</sup>.

Where the Agency is the drainage board for an internal drainage district by virtue of a scheme for reorganisation of districts<sup>34</sup> or of an order for transfer of functions<sup>35</sup>, the Agency may by resolution specify the amount of any contribution which, if it were not the internal drainage board, it would make to<sup>36</sup> or require from<sup>37</sup> that board under the above provisions<sup>38</sup>. Where an amount is so specified then, according to whether it is specified in respect of a contribution to or from a board, expenses incurred by the Agency as the drainage board for the internal drainage district in question must, to the extent of that amount, be defrayed out of revenue received by the Agency otherwise than as that board<sup>39</sup>, or expenses incurred by the Agency as such must be defrayed out of sums received by it as that board<sup>40</sup>. Where a sufficient number of qualified persons<sup>41</sup> or the council of any county, county borough or London borough is aggrieved by such a resolution<sup>42</sup>, by the amount specified in such a resolution<sup>43</sup>, or by the failure to pass such a resolution<sup>44</sup>, they or it may appeal to the relevant minister<sup>45</sup> who may, after considering any objections made to him, make such order in the matter as he thinks just<sup>46</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/614. Raising of general drainage charge.

614. Raising of general drainage charge.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> may raise and levy<sup>2</sup> on occupiers of chargeable land in a local flood defence district<sup>3</sup> a charge to be known as a general drainage charge at an amount per hectare of that land<sup>4</sup>. 'Chargeable land' means the agricultural land<sup>5</sup> and agricultural buildings<sup>6</sup> in so much of the area of a regional flood defence committee<sup>7</sup> as does not fall within an internal drainage district<sup>8</sup>, excluding rough grazing land<sup>9</sup> and woodlands other than commercial woodlands<sup>10</sup>. The Agency may not, however, raise a general drainage charge in respect of any local flood defence district unless the regional flood defence committee for the area in which that district is situated has recommended that such a charge should be raised<sup>11</sup>, and where no local flood defence scheme<sup>12</sup> is in force in the area of a regional flood defence committee, that area is to be treated as a single local flood defence district<sup>13</sup>.

A general drainage charge raised by the Agency for a local flood defence district for any year must be at a uniform amount per hectare<sup>14</sup> of chargeable land in that district<sup>15</sup>, and is ascertained by multiplying the relevant quotient<sup>16</sup> by one penny and by such number as may be specified by order made by either the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers for that purpose<sup>17</sup>.

5 'Agricultural land' means: (1) land used as arable, meadow or pasture ground only; (2) land used for a plantation or a wood or for the growth of saleable underwood; and (3) land exceeding 0.10 hectare used for the purpose of poultry farming, market gardens, nursery grounds, orchards or allotments, including allotment gardens within the meaning of the Allotments Act 1922 (see s 22(1); and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 510), but does not include land occupied together with a house as a park, gardens (other than as mentioned above) or pleasure grounds, or land kept or preserved mainly or exclusively for purposes of sport or recreation, or land used as a racecourse: Water Resources Act 1991 s 145. A broiler house is not agricultural land: Gilmore (Valuation Officer) v Baker-Carr [1962] 3 All ER 230, [1962] 1 WLR 1165, CA.

6 The Water Resources Act 1991 s 145 applies the definition of 'agricultural buildings' contained in the General Rate Act 1967 s 26(4) (repealed). As to agricultural buildings for the purposes of non-domestic rating under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 45 et seq. Cf, however, the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 72(1); and PARA 627 note 6. A broiler house is not an agricultural building: Gilmore (Valuation Officer) v Baker-Carr [1962] 3 All ER 230, [1962] 1 WLR 1165, CA.

7 As to regional flood defence committees see PARA 559.

8 As to internal drainage districts see PARA 569.

9 'Rough grazing land' means land of either of the following descriptions, ie: (1) land used as pasture ground on which the vegetation consists solely or mainly of one or more of bracken, gorse, heather, rushes and sedge; or (2) land so used which is unsuitable for mowing by machine and on which the vegetation consists solely or mainly of grass of poor feeding value: Water Resources Act 1991 s 145.

10 Water Resources Act 1991 s 145. 'Commercial woodlands' means woodlands managed on a commercial basis with a view to the realisation of profits: s 145.

11 Water Resources Act 1991 s 134(2) (as amended: see note 4).

12 As to local flood defence schemes see PARA 563.

13 Water Resources Act 1991 s 134(3). Any parts of such an area in relation to which no local flood defence scheme is in force are treated as included in a single such district: s 134(3).

14 Where the area of chargeable land in respect of which a sum is payable by any person by way of a drainage charge consists of or includes a fraction of a hectare, then for the purpose of calculating that sum the fraction is disregarded if it is less than one-half and treated as one hectare in any other case: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 7(2). The sum payable by way of a drainage charge in respect of chargeable land consisting of commercial woodlands is calculated as if the area of the land were one-fifth of its actual area (Sch 15 para 8(1)); and in the application of Sch 15 para 7(2) to such land, the area so ascertained, and not the area of which it is one-fifth, is treated as the area in relation to which Sch 15 para 7(2) has effect (Sch 15 para 8(2)). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

15 Water Resources Act 1991 s 135(1) (as amended: see note 4).

16 'Relevant quotient' means a quotient determined for the year concerned in accordance with rules contained in regulations made by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers: s 135(7) (added by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(1), Sch 13 para 96(3)). As to the making of regulations see PARA 21. As to the regulations made see the General Drainage Charges (Relevant Quotient) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/165. The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 135, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

17 Water Resources Act 1991 s 135(2) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(2), Sch 13 para 96(1), Sch 14). The number specified in such an order for these purposes, apart from any adjustment made to it to take account of rough grazing land, must be such as the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers consider will secure that, so far as reasonably practicable, the aggregate amount produced by any charge levied by reference to a relevant quotient will be equal to the aggregate amount which, if the chargeable land in the local flood defence district had been liable to be rated in the financial year beginning in 1989, would have been produced by a rate levied on the land at an amount in the pound (of rateable value) equal to that quotient multiplied by one penny: see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 135(3) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 Sch 13 para 96(2), Sch 14). An order may be made so as to apply either to all general drainage charges or to the general drainage charges proposed to be raised in any one or more specified local flood defence districts, and any such order applying to more than one local flood defence district may make different provision as respects the different districts to which it applies: Water Resources Act 1991 s 135(4). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 135(6). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516. As to the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. At the date at which this title states the law, no such order of general application had been made. Orders of local application only are not recorded in this work. ### 615. Power to make scheme for raising a special drainage charge.

Where it appears to the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> that the interests of agriculture<sup>2</sup> require the carrying out, improvement or maintenance of drainage<sup>3</sup> works in connection with any watercourses<sup>4</sup> in the area of any regional flood defence committee<sup>5</sup>, the Agency may submit a scheme with respect to those watercourses to the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>7</sup> for confirmation<sup>8</sup>. Such a scheme with respect to any watercourses is a scheme: (1) designating those watercourses and any watercourses connected with them<sup>9</sup>; and (2) making provision for the raising<sup>10</sup> of a charge, known as a 'special drainage charge', for the purpose of meeting the expenses of drainage works<sup>11</sup> in connection with the designated watercourses and any expenses arising from such works<sup>12</sup>.

A scheme must designate so much of the area of the regional flood defence committee as consists of land which, in the Agency's opinion, is agricultural land that would benefit from drainage works in connection with the designated watercourses<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 As to the meaning of 'agriculture' see PARA 209 note 20. Cf, however, the statutory definition of 'agricultural land' in s 145: see PARA 614 note 5.

3 As to the meaning of 'drainage' see PARA 573. As to the carrying out, maintenance or improvement of drainage works see PARA 589.

4 As to the meaning of 'watercourse' see PARA 573 note 10: definition applied by the Water Resources Act 1991 s 137(8).

5 As to regional flood defence committees see PARA 559.

6 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

7 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 137, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

8 Water Resources Act 1991 s 137(1) (s 137(1), (3) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). Such a scheme may provide for any of the matters referred to in the Water Resources Act 1991 s 108(1), (2) (see PARA 575) (s 137(5)(a)); and may provide for the revocation or amendment of, and for the retransfer of property rights, powers, duties, obligations and liabilities transferred by, any previous such scheme (s 137(5)(b)). As to submission of the scheme see PARA 616; and as to confirmation of the scheme, and the right to challenge the making of the scheme, see PARA 617.

10 In accordance with the Water Resources Act 1991 s 138: see PARA 618.

11 For these purposes, the reference to expenses of drainage works is a reference to expenses incurred in the construction, improvement or maintenance of drainage works: Water Resources Act 1991 s 137(7)(a). The expenses of any drainage works which may be necessary in consequence of other drainage works, and so much of any contribution made to an internal drainage board under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 57 (see PARA 613) as is fairly attributable to such expenses, are deemed to be expenses arising from these other drainage works: Water Resources Act 1991 s 137(7)(b). The expenses of any drainage works are taken, without prejudice to s 221(5) (see PARA 131 note 6), to include a proper proportion of the cost of the officers and buildings and establishment of the body carrying them out: s 137(7)(c).

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/616. Submission of special charges scheme.

616. Submission of special charges scheme.

Before submitting a special charges scheme<sup>1</sup> to either the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>3</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup> must consult<sup>5</sup> organisations appearing to it to represent the interests of persons<sup>6</sup> engaged in agriculture<sup>7</sup> in the area designated in the scheme<sup>8</sup>. As soon as any special charges scheme has been so submitted, the Agency must send copies of the scheme to the council of any county, county borough, district or London borough wholly or partly within the relevant area<sup>9</sup>, the drainage board for any internal drainage district<sup>10</sup> within the relevant area<sup>11</sup>, and every organisation appearing to the Agency to represent the interests of persons engaged in agriculture in that area<sup>12</sup>. The Agency must also publish, in one or more newspapers circulating in the area affected by the scheme, a notice stating that the scheme has been so submitted<sup>13</sup>, that a copy of it is open to inspection at a specified place<sup>14</sup>, and that representations with respect to the scheme may be made to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers at any time within one month<sup>15</sup> after the publication of the notice<sup>16</sup>.

Where the Agency submits a special charges scheme which designates any watercourse<sup>17</sup> wholly or partly within an internal drainage district, then, unless the Agency is the drainage board for that district<sup>18</sup>, the scheme must be accompanied either by a statement of the drainage board for that district that it has consented to the designation<sup>19</sup>, or by a statement that it has not consented and a further statement setting out the reasons why the watercourse should nevertheless be designated for the purposes of such a scheme<sup>20</sup>.

1 'Special charges scheme' means a scheme under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 137 (see PARA 615): Sch 16 para 10(1).

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

3 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 137, Sch 16, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/617. Confirmation of special charges scheme.

617. Confirmation of special charges scheme.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> to whom a special charges scheme<sup>3</sup> has been submitted<sup>4</sup> may by order<sup>5</sup> confirm the scheme either with or without modifications<sup>6</sup>. However, neither the Secretary of State nor the Welsh Ministers may confirm a scheme unless satisfied that it is reasonable and financially sound, having regard to all the circumstances, particularly to any contributions from local authorities<sup>7</sup> and internal drainage boards<sup>8</sup> which are likely to be available to the Environment Agency<sup>9</sup> if the scheme is confirmed, in addition to the special drainage charge authorised by the scheme<sup>10</sup>.

Before either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers makes an order confirming a special charges scheme they must cause notice of the intention to make it<sup>11</sup> to be published in the London Gazette and in such other manner as they think best adapted for informing persons affected<sup>12</sup>. The notice must also be sent to certain specified bodies<sup>13</sup>. Before making an order confirming the scheme, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must consider any objections duly made to the draft order<sup>14</sup>, and may, in any case, cause a public local inquiry to be held in any case with respect to any objections to the draft order<sup>15</sup>. In making a confirming order each of them has power to make such modifications in the terms of the draft as appear to them to be desirable<sup>16</sup>.

After either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers have made an order confirming a special charges scheme, the order must be published (together with a notice that the order has been made<sup>17</sup>), in such manner as they think best adapted for informing the persons affected<sup>18</sup>.

As soon as may be after an unconfirmed order<sup>19</sup> has effect, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers must publish<sup>20</sup> a notice stating that it has come into force<sup>21</sup> and naming a place where a copy of it may be seen at all reasonable hours<sup>22</sup>. If any person aggrieved<sup>23</sup> by an unconfirmed order desires to question its validity on the grounds that it is not within the powers of the Water Resources Act 1991<sup>24</sup>, or that any requirement of the Act has not been complied with<sup>25</sup>, he may make application to the High Court<sup>26</sup>. If the court is satisfied that the order is not within the statutory powers or that the applicant's interests have been substantially prejudiced by any statutory requirements not having been complied with, the court may quash the order either generally or in so far as it affects the applicant<sup>27</sup>. Subject to these provisions, such an order may not at any time be questioned in any legal proceedings whatsoever<sup>28</sup>.

The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may make regulations in relation to the publication of notices under the above provisions, the holding of public local inquiries thereunder and procedure at those inquiries, and any other matters of procedure respecting the making of orders confirming a special charges scheme<sup>29</sup>.

If the scheme is confirmed, the watercourses<sup>30</sup> designated in it are treated<sup>31</sup> as part of a main river<sup>32</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see

PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

3 As to the meaning of 'special charges scheme' see PARA 616 note 1.

4 As to submission of the scheme see PARA 616.

5 An order must be made by statutory instrument: see Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 2(1).

6 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 2(1). As to the meaning of 'modifications' see PARA 141 note 20.

7 As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 187 note 2.

8 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

9 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

10 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 2(2) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). An order confirming a special charges scheme may contain provisions with respect to the persons by whom all or any of the expenses incurred by either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers or by other persons in connection with the making or confirmation of the order, or the making of the scheme, are to be borne: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 2(3). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

11 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 3(1)(a). The notice must state the place where copies of the draft order may be inspected and obtained (Sch 16 para 3(1)(b)) and the period within which, and the manner in which, objections to the draft order may be made (Sch 16 para 3(1)(c)).

12 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 3(1).

13 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 3(1). The specified bodies are: (1) every county council, county borough council or London borough council in whose area any part of the area proposed to be affected by the order is situated and, if any part of that area is situated in the City of London, the Common Council of the City of London (Sch 16 para 3(2)(a) (amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 22(5), Sch 11 para 3(10) (b)); and (2) the Agency and every drainage body and navigation, harbour or conservancy authority known to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to be exercising jurisdiction within the area proposed to be affected by the order (Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 3(2)(b) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128)). 15 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 4(1)(b).

16 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 4(2). Orders made under these provisions, being of local effect, are not recorded in this work.

17 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 5(2)(a). The notice must also state that the order will become final and have effect unless, in respect of an order made by the Secretary of State, within such period of not less than 30 days as may be specified in the notice, a request that the order be subject to special parliamentary procedure is presented to him by a person who is affected by the order and has such interest as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State as being sufficient for the purpose: see Sch 16 para 5(2)(b). As to the making of regulations see PARA 21. As to the regulations made see the Land Drainage (River Authorities) General Regulations 1965, SI 1965/443, reg 6 (amended by virtue of the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 233(1)) which regulations have effect by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 1(1), (2). As to special parliamentary procedure see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 912 et seq. As to Parliamentary procedures in relation to orders made by the Welsh Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

18 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 5(1). If no request that the order be subject to special parliamentary procedure has been made within the specified period in respect of any order confirming a special charges scheme, or every such request has been withdrawn, the Secretary of State must confirm the order and it thereupon has effect: see Sch 16 para 6(1). If such a request has been made in respect of such an order and has not been withdrawn, the order is subject to special parliamentary procedure: see Sch 16 para 6(2). An order confirming a special charges scheme must in any event be subject to special parliamentary procedure if the Secretary of State so directs: see Sch 16 para 6(3). Where the Secretary of State makes an order confirming a special charges scheme, he may, at any time before it has been laid before Parliament, revoke, either wholly or partially, any order that is subject to special parliamentary procedure: see Sch 16 para 6(4).

19 'Unconfirmed order' means an order confirming a special charges scheme, other than one which is itself confirmed under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 s 6 (see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 926): Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 16 para 10(1).

UPDATE

617 Confirmation of special charges scheme

NOTE 27--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/618. Levying and amount of special drainage charge.

618. Levying and amount of special drainage charge.

A special drainage charge<sup>1</sup> must be levied by the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> on the occupiers of chargeable land<sup>3</sup> included in the area designated for the purposes of the charge by the scheme authorising it<sup>4</sup>.

The special drainage charge raised for any year must be at a uniform amount per hectare<sup>5</sup> of the relevant chargeable land<sup>6</sup> as determined by the regional flood defence committee<sup>7</sup> for the area, but must not exceed the amount specified in the scheme as the maximum amount of the charge or any greater amount authorised by an order for the purposes of the scheme made by the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>9</sup> on the application of the Agency<sup>10</sup>. In addition the amount of the charge is subject to a general limit of 25 pence per hectare or such other amount as may be substituted by an order duly made<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to special drainage charges see PARA 614.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 As to the meaning of 'chargeable land' see PARA 614.

4 Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(1) (s 138(1), (3) amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 128). This land is referred to as the 'relevant chargeable land': Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(1).

5 As to the treatment of fractions of a hectare and the assessment of the area of commercial woodlands see PARA 614 note 14.

6 Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(2).

7 As to regional flood defence committees see PARA 559.

8 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

9 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 138, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

10 Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(3)(a) (as amended: see note 4). Before making such an order, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers: (1) must consult with such of the associations and persons concerned as the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers consider appropriate (s 138(4)(a)); (2) must cause a notice of the intention to make the order and of the time, which must not be less than 30 days, within which objections to the proposed order may be made, to be published in such manner as the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers think best adapted for informing persons affected (s 138(4)(b)); (3) if the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers consider it necessary, may afford persons affected an opportunity of being heard by a person appointed for the purpose (s 138(4)(c)); and (4) must consider the report of the person so appointed and any objections duly made (s 138(4)(d)). See also note 11. As to the exercise of the duty to consult see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 627. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. Such orders, being of local effect, are not recorded in this work.

11 See the Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(3)(b). The order must be made by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate the Welsh Ministers; and if made by the Secretary of State, it is subject to approval by a resolution of the House of Commons: s 138(3)(b). Such an order may be made so as to apply: (1) to special drainage charges in general (s 138(5)(a)); or (2) to those proposed to be raised in respect of specified areas of regional flood defence committees (s 138(5)(b)); or (3) to those proposed to be raised in pursuance of one or more specified schemes made under s 137 (see PARAS 615-617) (s 138(5)(c)). Any such order applying to the charges proposed to be raised in respect of more than one area of a regional flood defence committee, or authorised by more than one such scheme, may make different provision for the charges in respect of different areas or the charges authorised by the different schemes, as the case may be: s 138(5). The power of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument; and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 14 (power to revoke or amend orders made by statutory instrument: see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1526) applies to the power to make orders under the Water Resources Act 1991 s 138(3)(a) (see note 10) as it applies, by virtue of this provision, to the power to make orders under s 138(3)(b): see s 138(6). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders of general application had been made. As to the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/619. Raising and publication of drainage charges.

619. Raising and publication of drainage charges.

A drainage charge<sup>1</sup> is raised by the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> in writing<sup>3</sup> under the Agency's common seal<sup>4</sup>, and is deemed to be raised on the date on which the resolution authorising the fixing of the common seal is passed<sup>5</sup>. The charge is for a year ending on 31 March and must be raised before or during the year for which it is raised<sup>6</sup>. The charge is not valid unless notice of it is given, within ten days of the date on which it is raised<sup>7</sup>, in one or more newspapers circulating in the area in respect of which the charge was raised stating its amount and the date on which it was raised<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Drainage charge' means a general drainage charge (see PARA 614) or a special drainage charge (see PARA 615): Water Resources Act 1991 s 145.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

4 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 1(1)(a) (Sch 15 para 1 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128).

5 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 1(1)(b) (as amended: see note 4). As to liability for drainage charges and provisions relating to the payment and recovery of such charges see PARAS 620-625.

6 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 1(2). Without prejudice to their powers by virtue of s 112 (flood defence regulations: see PARA 583), the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers each have power by regulations to prescribe the forms of drainage charges and of demands for drainage charges: see Sch 15 para 1(3). As to the making of regulations see PARA 21. By virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 1(1), (2), the General Drainage Charges (Forms) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/564, have effect as if so made. For the prescribed form of general drainage charge see the General Drainage Charges (Forms) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/564, reg 2, Schedule, Form 1 (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120, Sch 22 para 233(1)); and for the prescribed form of demand for such a charge see reg 3, Schedule, Form 2 (as so amended). No form is currently prescribed for special drainage charges.

The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/620. Incidence and demand of drainage charges.

620. Incidence and demand of drainage charges.

A drainage charge<sup>1</sup> is assessed on the person<sup>2</sup> who at the date of the raising of the charge<sup>3</sup> is the occupier of the relevant land<sup>4</sup>, and the full amount of the charge may be recovered by the Environment Agency from any person who is the occupier<sup>5</sup> of that land at any time during the period for which the charge is raised<sup>6</sup>. A person who is in occupation of the land for part only of that period is liable to bear a proportionate part only of the charge<sup>7</sup>; and if he is required to pay the full amount of the charge, he may (subject to any agreement to the contrary) recover from any other person who has been in occupation of the land for part of that period the amount which that other person is liable to bear<sup>8</sup>. Where the land is chargeable land<sup>9</sup> during part only of the year for which a drainage charge is raised, a proportionate part only of the charge is payable in respect of that land and any amount overpaid must be repaid<sup>10</sup>. During any period when the land is unoccupied, the owner is deemed to be the occupier and is liable accordingly<sup>11</sup>.

In any case where the amount of a drainage charge is insufficient to justify the expense of collection, the Agency is not required to demand or enforce payment<sup>12</sup>.

The Agency may make such amendments in any demand or other documents relating to a drainage charge raised by it for the current or preceding year as appear to it to be necessary in order to make the raising, levying and collection of the charge conform with the Water Resources Act 1991<sup>13</sup>. A notice of any such amendment must be served<sup>14</sup> by the Agency on the occupier of all land affected by the amendment<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'drainage charge' see PARA 619 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

3 As to the date of raising the charge see PARA 619. Where the name of any person liable to be assessed to any drainage charge is not known to the Environment Agency, it is sufficient to assess him to the charge by the description of the 'occupier' of the named premises in respect of which the assessment is made, without further name or description: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 4(4) (Sch 15 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

12 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 12(4) (as amended: see note 3).

13 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 10(1) (as amended: see note 3). In particular, the Agency may: (1) correct any clerical or arithmetical error; (2) correct any erroneous insertions or omissions or any misdescriptions; and (3) make such additions or corrections on a change of occupation or on any property ceasing to be chargeable land as appear to the Agency to be necessary: Sch 15 para 10(2)(a)-(c) (as so amended). Where an amendment is made in pursuance of these provisions, any amount overpaid must be repaid and any amount underpaid may be recovered as if it were arrears of the charge: Sch 15 para 10(4).

14 As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 22 note 1. As to the service of documents see PARA 22.

15 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 10(3) (as amended: see note 3).

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/621. Recovery of drainage charges.

621. Recovery of drainage charges.

Arrears of any drainage charge<sup>1</sup> may be recovered by the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> in the same manner in which arrears of a non-domestic rate may be recovered under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 by a billing authority<sup>3</sup>. In proceedings for the recovery of arrears of a drainage charge the defendant is not entitled to raise by way of defence any matter which might have been raised on an appeal<sup>4</sup> against the demand<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'drainage charge' see PARA 619 note 1.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 12(1) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(1), Sch 13 para 98; Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). The procedure referred to is that under the Local Government Finance Act 1988: see generally RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 170 et seq.

Without prejudice to its powers under the Environment Act 1995 s 37 and Sch 1 para 6 (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 69), the Environment Agency may by resolution authorise any member or officer of the Agency, either generally or in respect of particular proceedings, to institute or defend on its behalf any proceedings in relation to a drainage charge or to appear on its behalf, notwithstanding that he is not qualified to act as a solicitor, in any proceedings before a magistrates' court for the issue of a warrant of distress for failure to pay a drainage charge: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 12(2) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 paras 128, 187(2)). As from a day to be appointed this provision is amended so as to refer to a 'warrant of control' in place of a 'warrant of distress': Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 12(2) (prospectively amended by the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 s 62(3), Sch 13 para 99). ## 622. Agreements for assessment and recovery of drainage charges.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> and any relevant authority<sup>2</sup> may enter into agreements for the doing by that authority, as agent of the Agency, of anything required for the purpose of the assessment to and recovery of a drainage charge<sup>3</sup> in respect of any relevant land<sup>4</sup>; and for the making of payments by the Agency to that authority in respect of anything so done<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 'Relevant authority' means the council of any district or London borough or Welsh county or county borough, or any internal drainage board: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 13(4) (amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 22(5), Sch 11 para 3(9)). As to local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to the London boroughs and their councils see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 35 et seq. As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

3 As to the meaning of 'drainage charge' see PARA 619 note 1. As to the assessment of drainage charges see PARA 620. As to the recovery of such charges see PARA 621.

4 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 13(1)(a) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128). 'Relevant land', in relation to an agreement with any relevant authority, means: (1) where the relevant authority is a district or London borough or Welsh county or county borough council, the chargeable land within the council's area; and (2) where the relevant authority is an internal drainage board, such land as may be specified in the agreement: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 13(4) (as amended: see note 2). As to the meaning of 'chargeable land' see PARA 614.

623. Information.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> may serve on the owner<sup>2</sup> of any land<sup>3</sup> a notice<sup>4</sup> requiring him to state in writing<sup>5</sup> the name and address of any person<sup>6</sup> known to him as being the occupier<sup>7</sup> of that land<sup>8</sup>. The Agency may also serve on any person appearing to it to be the occupier of any land a notice requiring him to furnish, within 28 days beginning with the date of service of the notice on him, a return<sup>9</sup> in writing, and in such form as specified in the notice, containing particulars reasonably required for determining how much, if any, of the land occupied by him is chargeable land<sup>10</sup> and how much, if any, consists of commercial woodlands<sup>11</sup>.

Any person who: (1) fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the requirements of any such notice<sup>12</sup>; or (2) makes any statement in response to such a notice which he knows to be false in a material particular<sup>13</sup>; or (3) recklessly makes any statement in response to such a notice which is false in a material particular<sup>14</sup>, is guilty of an offence<sup>15</sup>.

11 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 9(2)(b) (Sch 15 para 9(2) as amended: see note 8). As to the meaning of 'commercial woodlands' see PARA 614 note 10. The Agency may make arrangements with the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers for the exercise by them of these powers: see Sch 15 para 13(2) (as so amended). Any such arrangements must contain provision for the reimbursement by the Agency of any expenses incurred by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers in pursuance of the arrangements: see Sch 15 para 13(3) (as so amended). The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/A. IN GENERAL/624. Arrangements for payment of drainage charges by owners.

624. Arrangements for payment of drainage charges by owners.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> may make arrangements with the owner<sup>2</sup> of any chargeable land<sup>3</sup> for any drainage charges<sup>4</sup> which may be raised by the Agency for any period in respect of the land to be levied on the owner instead of on the occupier of the land<sup>5</sup>.

The Agency must make an allowance<sup>6</sup> of 10 per cent of the full amount of the charge to an owner who pays drainage charges in pursuance of any such arrangements, if the payment is made either within two months<sup>7</sup> beginning with the date of the service on him of the demand for the charges<sup>8</sup> or before the expiration of one-half of the period for which the charges are raised<sup>9</sup>. The owner who is a party to any such arrangements in respect of the land may recover from the occupier of the land a sum equal to the amount of any drainage charges in respect of the land which, apart from the arrangements, would be payable by the occupier<sup>10</sup>.

The Agency must give notice<sup>11</sup> of any arrangements forthwith after they are made to the occupier of the land affected by them<sup>12</sup>. The occupier of any chargeable land may, by notice<sup>13</sup> given to the Agency, determine (1) that no arrangements under the above provisions must be made in respect of the land<sup>14</sup>; and (2) that any such arrangements previously made must cease to have effect so far as they relate to the land and any drainage charge to be raised for a period beginning after the date on which the notice takes effect<sup>15</sup>. The occupier may also, by a notice so given, revoke any such determination so far as it prohibits the making of any such arrangements in respect of the land<sup>16</sup>. Where any such notice making or revoking a determination<sup>17</sup> is given to the Agency, it is the duty of the Agency to send a copy of the notice to the owner of the land to which it relates<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 As to the meaning of 'owner' see PARA 22 note 9.

3 As to the meaning of 'chargeable land' see PARA 614.

4 As to the meaning of 'drainage charge' see PARA 619 note 1. As to the raising of drainage charges see PARA 619.

5 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 5(1) (Sch 15 paras 5, 6 amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 128). Where such arrangements are made, the charges in question must be levied on the owner, instead of on the occupier (Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 5(2)(a)); and any reference to an occupier in Sch 15 (except in Sch 15 paras 5, 6) is to be construed as a reference to the owner (Sch 15 para 5(2)(b)). As to the meaning of 'occupier' generally see PARA 339 note 8.

6 No such allowance may be made in respect of charges which are otherwise payable for any period by the owner in pursuance of the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 4(5) (see PARA 620): Sch 15 para 5(4).

7 As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 23 note 10.

8 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 5(3)(a) (as amended: see note 5).

9 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 5(3)(b) (as amended: see note 5).

10 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 15 para 5(6). The owner can thus recover the full amount from the occupier and has the benefit of the 10% allowance.

11 As to the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 22 note 1. As to the service of documents see PARA 22.

625. Appeals against demands for drainage charges.

If any person is aggrieved<sup>1</sup> by a demand for a drainage charge<sup>2</sup> made on him as the occupier<sup>3</sup> of chargeable land<sup>4</sup>, or an amendment of such a demand<sup>5</sup>, he may appeal to the county court for the area in which the land or any part of it is situated<sup>6</sup>. On such an appeal, the court may confirm the demand or annul or modify it, as it thinks just<sup>7</sup>.

B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS

626. Register of drainage hereditaments.

It is the duty of an internal drainage board<sup>1</sup> for each internal drainage district<sup>2</sup> to prepare in the prescribed form<sup>3</sup> and within the prescribed period<sup>4</sup>, or such longer period as the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>5</sup> may allow in any particular case, a register containing the prescribed information<sup>6</sup> in respect of the drainage hereditaments in that district<sup>7</sup>, and a map showing the prescribed particulars<sup>8</sup> of those hereditaments of a prescribed description<sup>9</sup>.

It is also the duty of an internal drainage board for each internal drainage district to maintain the register and map so prepared<sup>10</sup>, and to alter either of them in prescribed circumstances<sup>11</sup> within the prescribed period and in the prescribed manner<sup>12</sup>. The board must keep the register and map maintained by it in pursuance of these provisions open to inspection at prescribed places<sup>13</sup> by members of the public at all reasonable times<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

2 As to internal drainage districts see PARA 569.

3 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations under the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 65 (see PARA 583): s 72(1). As to the prescribed form of the register see the Registers of Drainage Boards Regulations 1968, SI 1968/1672, reg 5(1), (2). The Registers of Drainage Boards Regulations 1968, SI 1968/1672, continue to have effect by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 1(1), (2).

4 The register and map must be prepared in the shortest period which is reasonably practicable: see the Registers of Drainage Boards Regulations 1968, SI 1968/1672, reg 3.

5 As to the meaning of 'relevant minister', and as to the transfer of functions under the Land Drainage Act 1991 to the Welsh Ministers, see PARA 569 note 9. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

UPDATE

626 Register of drainage hereditaments

NOTE 11--SI 1968/1672 reg 13 amended: SI 2009/1307.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/627. Raising of drainage rates.

627. Raising of drainage rates.

In so far as the expenses<sup>1</sup> of an internal drainage board<sup>2</sup> for an internal drainage district<sup>3</sup> are not met by contributions from the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup>, they are raised by means of drainage rates on agricultural land<sup>5</sup> and agricultural buildings<sup>6</sup>, or special levies issued by the board under and in accordance with regulations made under the Local Government Finance Act 1988<sup>7</sup>.

The proportion of the expenses of an internal drainage board to be raised from the proceeds of drainage rates must be equal to the agricultural proportion of land values<sup>8</sup> in the internal drainage district determined for the financial year in question in accordance with the following provisions<sup>9</sup>. The proportion of the expenses of the board to be raised from the proceeds of special levies must be such as to raise the balance of the expenses of the board remaining after deduction of the amount to be raised for that year from the proceeds of drainage rates<sup>10</sup>. In order to determine these proportions every internal drainage board for an internal drainage district must, before 15 February in each year, determine in respect of the financial year beginning on the following 1 April:

- 1307 (1) the aggregate annual value of the chargeable properties<sup>11</sup> in the internal drainage district; and
- 1308 (2) the aggregate value of all other land<sup>12</sup> in that district, and the agricultural proportion for any financial year of land values in that district is the amount determined for that year under head (1) above divided by the sum of that amount and the amount determined for that year under head (2) above<sup>13</sup>. Such a determination must be made as at 31 December preceding the financial year in question<sup>14</sup>. The rate is made by the internal drainage board in writing<sup>15</sup> under its common seal<sup>16</sup> in respect of a financial year and, except in certain prescribed circumstances<sup>17</sup>, only one rate may be made in respect of a financial year<sup>18</sup>. The rate must be made before 15 February in the financial year preceding that in respect of which it is made but is not invalid merely because it is made on or after that date<sup>19</sup>.

Drainage rates are now levied on occupiers of agricultural properties<sup>20</sup>, and charges in respect of all non-agricultural properties are comprised in the special levy issued to local billing authorities<sup>21</sup>.

A drainage rate made by a drainage board is not valid unless the board gives notice of it within ten days of its being made<sup>22</sup> stating the amount of the rate<sup>23</sup>, the amounts of the board's expenses to be raised by means of drainage rates and special levies respectively<sup>24</sup>, and the date on which the rate was made<sup>25</sup>. The notice may be given by affixing it in one or more public or conspicuous places in the drainage district<sup>26</sup>, or by publication in one or more newspapers circulating in that district, as the board thinks fit<sup>27</sup>. Every drainage rate must be in the prescribed form<sup>28</sup>.

The board may at any time make such amendments in either the current or last preceding drainage rate as appear to the board to be necessary to make the rate conform with the statutory provisions<sup>29</sup>. It must serve notice of any such amendment on the occupier of any hereditament affected<sup>30</sup>. Where such an amendment is made, any amount overpaid must be repaid or allowed and any amount underpaid may be recovered as if it were arrears of the rate<sup>31</sup>.

1 le under the Land Drainage Act 1991 or any other Act, including any contribution made towards the expenses of the Environment Agency: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 36(1) (amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 191). As to such contributions see PARA 613. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

3 As to internal drainage districts see PARA 569.

4 As to contributions from the Agency see PARA 613.

5 'Agricultural land' is: (1) land used as arable, meadow or pasture ground only; (2) land used for a plantation or a wood or for the growth of saleable underwood; (3) land exceeding 0.10 hectare used for the purpose of poultry farming; (4) anything which consists of a market garden, nursery ground, orchard or allotment, including an allotment garden within the meaning of the Allotments Act 1922 (see s 22(1); and AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 510); or (5) land occupied with, and used solely in connection with the use of, a building which, or buildings each of which, is an agricultural building (see note 6); but does not include land occupied together with a house as a park, gardens (other than market gardens) or pleasure grounds, or land used mainly or exclusively for purposes of sport or recreation, or land used as a racecourse: Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 51, Sch 5 para 2 (applied by the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 72(1)). A broiler house is not agricultural land: Gilmore (Valuation Officer) v Baker-Carr [1962] 3 All ER 230, [1962] 1 WLR 1165, CA. Cf the Water Resources Act 1991 s 145; and PARA 614 note 5.

6 A building is an 'agricultural building' if: (1) it is not a dwelling and it is occupied together with agricultural land and is used solely in connection with agricultural operations on the land, or it is or forms part of a market garden and is used solely in connection with agricultural operations as a market garden; (2) it is used solely in connection with agricultural operations carried on on agricultural land and is occupied either (a) by the occupiers of all the land concerned; or (b) by individuals each of whom is appointed by the occupiers of the land concerned to manage the use of the building and is an occupier of some of the land concerned or a member of the board of directors or other governing body of a person who is both a body corporate and an occupier of the land concerned, and in each case the number of occupiers of the land concerned is less than 25; (3) it (a) is used for the keeping or breeding of livestock; or (b) is not a dwelling, is occupied together with a building or buildings used for the keeping or breeding of livestock and is used in connection with the operations carried on in that building or those buildings; (4) it is not a dwelling, it is occupied by a person keeping bees and is used solely in connection with the keeping of those bees; (5) it is not a dwelling and it is used in connection with agricultural operations carried on on agricultural land and it is occupied by a body corporate any of whose members are, or are together with the body, the occupiers of the land, and the members who are occupiers of the land together have control of the body; or (6) it is not a dwelling and it is used in connection with the operations carried on in a building which, or buildings each of which, is used for the keeping or breeding of livestock and is an agricultural building by virtue of head (3) above and the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 para 7(3)-(5) (see head (i), (ii) and (iii) below) apply as regards the building first mentioned in this head ('the building in question'): Sch 5 paras 4, 5(1), 6(1), 7(1), (2) (Sch 5 para 7 amended by the Housing and Local Government Act 1989 s 139, Sch 5 paras 1, 37(1), (2), 79(3); and by the Local Government Act 2003 s 67(1), (3)); the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 paras 4-7 (as so amended) applied by the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 72(1). In connection with head (6) above: (i) the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 para 7(3) (substituted by the Local Government Act 2003 s 67(1), (4)) applies if the building in question is occupied by a body corporate any of whose members are, or are together with the body, the occupiers of the building or buildings mentioned in head (5) above and the members who are occupiers of the land together have control of the body; (ii) the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 para 7(4) applies if the building in question, and the building or buildings so used, are occupied by the same persons; and (iii) Sch 5 para 7(5) applies if the building in question is occupied by individuals each of whom is appointed by the occupiers of the building or buildings so used to manage the use of the building in question and is either an occupier of part of the building, or of part of one of the buildings, so used or is a member of the board of directors or other governing body of a person who is both a body corporate and an occupier of the building or buildings so used: Sch 5 para 7(3)-(5) (as so amended and applied). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. Heads (ii) and (iii) above do not apply unless the number of occupiers of the building or buildings used for the breeding or keeping of livestock is less than 25: Sch 5 para 7(8) (as so applied). For these purposes, 'control' is to be construed in accordance with the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 416(2)-(6) (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1299); Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 para 7(9) (added by the Local Government Act 2003 s 67(1), (5); and as so applied).

Head (3)(a) above does not apply unless the building is used solely as there mentioned or it is occupied together with agricultural land and used also in connection with agricultural operations on that land, and that other use, together with the use mentioned in that head, is its sole use: Sch 5 para 5(2) (as so applied). Head (3)(b) above does not apply unless the building is used solely as there mentioned or the building is occupied also together with agricultural land and used also in connection with agricultural operations on that land, and that other use together with the use mentioned in that head is its sole use: Sch 5 para 5(3) (as so applied). A building ('the building in question') is not an agricultural building by virtue of head (3)(a) or (b) above unless it is surrounded by or contiguous to an area of agricultural land which amounts to not less than 2 hectares; and in deciding for these purposes whether an area is agricultural land and what is its size, the following are to be disregarded: (A) any road, watercourse or railway, including the former site of a railway from which railway lines have been removed; (B) any agricultural building other than the building in question; (C) any building occupied together with the building in question; and these provisions also apply for the purposes of head (4) above: Sch 5 paras 5(4), (5), 6(2) (as so applied). Head (5) above does not apply unless the use there mentioned, or that use together with the use mentioned in head (6), is its sole use; and head (6) does not apply unless the use there mentioned, or that use together with the use mentioned in head (5), is its sole use: Sch 5 para 7(6), (7) (as so applied). For the purposes of heads (1), (5), (6) above, 'agricultural land' is to be construed in accordance with Sch 5 para 2 (see note 5); and for the purposes of head (B) above, 'agricultural building' is to be construed in accordance with the above provisions: Sch 5 para 8 (as so applied).

7 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 36(1). Drainage rates must be made under and in accordance with Pt IV Ch II (ss 40-54) or, in relation to any time before 1 April 1993, might be made by the provisions saved by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 15: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 36(1)(a). In relation to special levies, the regulations must be made under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 75 (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 530): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 36(1)(b). As to the regulations made see the Internal Drainage Boards (Finance) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/3079; and PARA 633. The expenses of a drainage board which are raised by means of drainage rates in respect of the financial year beginning in 1993 and subsequent financial years must be defrayed out of those rates without regard to the purpose for which any such expenses were incurred: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 36(2). 'Financial year' means the 12 months ending with 31 March: s 72(1).

8 As to land values see PARA 629. As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 569 note 2.

9 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 37(1)(a).

10 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 37(1)(b).

11 'Chargeable property' means a hereditament comprising agricultural land or agricultural buildings in respect of which drainage rates may be assessed under the Land Drainage Act 1991 Pt IV Ch II (ss 40-54): s 72(1). The annual value of a chargeable property is its annual value for the purposes of Pt IV Ch II (see PARA 629): s 37(4). As to the meaning of 'hereditament' see PARA 626 note 7.

12 For these purposes, the value of other land in an internal drainage district is taken to be: (1) in the case of a hereditament shown in the local non-domestic rating list of a billing authority on 1 April 1990, one third of the relevant proportion of the rateable value shown for it in respect of that date in that list on 31 December 1992; (2) in the case of domestic property shown in a valuation list on 31 March 1990, one third of the relevant proportion of the rateable value shown for it in the list on that date multiplied by a factor of 6.73; (3) in the case of a hereditament to which neither head (1) nor head (2) applies but which was shown on 31 March 1990 in the register maintained for the drainage board for that district in accordance with the Registers of Drainage Boards Regulations 1968, SI 1968/1672 (see PARA 626), one third of the annual value shown for that hereditament in that register on that date multiplied by a factor of 8.02; (4) in the case of any land which at 31 March 1990 was in the internal drainage district and to which none of heads (1)-(3) applies and which did not then comprise agricultural land or buildings, a nil value; (5) in the case of any land to which none of heads (1)-(4) applies, the amount calculated by multiplying the area of that land, expressed in hectares and parts of a hectare, by such a unit value per hectare as represents the average value per hectare of all the land to which those heads do apply if the average is calculated by reference to the values determined in accordance with those heads: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 37(5) (amended by SI 1992/3079; and by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 1(2)). 'Relevant proportion', in relation to the rateable value of any hereditament, means the proportion of that value which the area of the part of the hereditament lying within the internal drainage district in question bears to the total area of that hereditament; and 'valuation list' means a valuation list maintained under the General Rate Act 1967 Pt V (ss 67-95) (repealed with savings): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 37(6). As to rating lists for the purposes of non-domestic rating under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 118 et seq.

628. Incidence of and demand for drainage rates.

The drainage board<sup>1</sup> for an internal drainage district<sup>2</sup> may make a drainage rate in respect of agricultural land<sup>3</sup> and buildings<sup>4</sup> in respect of a financial year<sup>5</sup>. Every such drainage rate so made must be assessed and levied<sup>6</sup> on the occupiers of hereditaments<sup>7</sup> in the district<sup>8</sup>.

The following provisions have effect with respect to the assessment of persons<sup>9</sup> to a drainage rate in respect of any hereditament (the 'relevant hereditament') and the liability of the occupier of that hereditament in respect of the rate<sup>10</sup>. Every rate must be assessed on the person who at the date of the making of the rate<sup>11</sup> is the occupier of the relevant hereditament<sup>12</sup>; and every demand for a drainage rate must be in the prescribed form<sup>13</sup>. The full amount may be recovered from any person who is the occupier of that hereditament at any time during the period in respect of which the rate is made; but a person who is in occupation for part only of the period in respect of which a drainage rate is made is liable to bear only a proportionate part<sup>14</sup>, and if he is required under the above provisions to pay the full amount of the rate, he may, subject to any agreement to the contrary, recover from any other person who has been in occupation for part of that period the amount which that person is liable to bear<sup>15</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/629. Assessment of drainage rates.

629. Assessment of drainage rates.

A drainage rate made by the drainage board<sup>1</sup> for an internal drainage district<sup>2</sup> must be assessed, subject to any orders for differential rating<sup>3</sup> or exemption from rating<sup>4</sup> which may be in force, at a uniform amount per pound throughout the internal drainage district on the annual value of agricultural land<sup>5</sup> or agricultural buildings<sup>6</sup> in respect of which it is made<sup>7</sup>. Where the value on which a drainage rate is assessed would otherwise include a fraction of £1, then, if the fraction is greater than 50 pence, it is to be treated as £1 and in any other case it is to be disregarded<sup>8</sup>.

The annual value of any chargeable property<sup>9</sup> is the duly determined<sup>10</sup> amount which is equal to the yearly rent, in respect of a holding comprising the chargeable property, at which the holding might reasonably be expected to have been let by a prudent and willing landlord to a prudent and willing tenant on a tenancy from year to year commencing on 1 April 1988 and on the relevant terms<sup>11</sup>. In determining for these purposes the yearly rents at which a property might reasonably be expected to have been let, any liability for the payment of drainage rates is to be disregarded, but account must be taken of all other relevant factors, including, in every case, the character and situation of the holding (including the locality in which it is situated)<sup>12</sup>, its productive capacity<sup>13</sup> and related earning capacity<sup>14</sup>, and the level of rents for comparable lettings current on 1 April 1988<sup>15</sup>.

The initial determination of the annual value of each chargeable property<sup>16</sup> for these purposes was to be made by the drainage board for every internal drainage district not later than 31 December 1992<sup>17</sup>. Where after that date, any property in an internal drainage district becomes chargeable property<sup>18</sup>, or any property consisting of agricultural land or buildings becomes part of an internal drainage district<sup>19</sup>, then as soon as practicable after the date (the 'valuation date') on which the property becomes chargeable property or, as the case may be, part of the district, the internal drainage board must determine the annual value of the property in accordance with the above provisions<sup>20</sup>. Any such determination has effect from the valuation date<sup>21</sup>; and where such a determination is made the internal drainage board making the determination must serve notice of it<sup>22</sup>, together with a statement in writing<sup>23</sup> of the right of appeal<sup>24</sup>, on the occupier of the property to which the determination relates<sup>25</sup>. For the purpose of enabling an internal drainage board to comply with these obligations, the occupier of a chargeable property must afford reasonable facilities for inspecting the property to the drainage board for the internal drainage district in which the property lies and to the officers and agents of that board<sup>26</sup>.

11 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 41(2). For these purposes, chargeable property is let on the relevant terms if: (1) the tenancy incorporates (a) a covenant by the tenant in the event of the destruction by fire of harvested crops grown on the holding for consumption on it, to return the full equivalent manurial value of the crops destroyed, in so far as the return of that value is required for the fulfilment of his responsibilities to farm in accordance with the rules of good husbandry; (b) a covenant by the tenant to insure all dead stock on the holding and all harvested crops grown on the holding for consumption on it against damage by fire; (c) a power for the landlord to re-enter on the holding in the event of the tenant not performing his obligations under the tenancy agreement; and (d) a covenant by the tenant not to assign, sublet or part with possession of the holding or any part of it except with the landlord's consent in writing; and (2) the property is let on the terms relating to maintenance, repair and insurance of fixed equipment set out in the Agriculture (Maintenance, Repair and Insurance of Fixed Equipment) Regulations 1973, SI 1973/1473, reg 3, Schedule (see AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 333): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 41(3), (4).

14 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 41(5)(b). 'Related earning capacity', in relation to the productive capacity of a holding, means the extent to which, in the light of that productive capacity, a competent tenant practising a system of farming suitable to the holding could reasonably be expected to profit from farming that holding: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 41(7).

15 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 41(5)(c). In determining for these purposes the level of rents current on 1 April 1988 for comparable lettings: (1) account may be taken of any available evidence with respect to the rents which are or were payable in respect of tenancies of comparable agricultural holdings on terms (other than terms fixing the rent payable) similar to those assumed for the holding in question; but (2) the following must be disregarded: (a) any element of the rents in question which is due to appreciable scarcity of comparable holdings available for letting on such terms compared with the number of persons seeking to become tenants of such holdings on those terms; (b) any element of those rents which is due to the fact that the tenant of, or a person tendering for, a comparable holding is in occupation of other land in the vicinity of that holding that may conveniently be occupied with that holding; and (c) any effect on those rents which is due to any allowances or reductions made in consideration of the charging of premiums: s 41(6). FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/630. Adjustment of annual values.

630. Adjustment of annual values.

If the drainage board<sup>1</sup> for any internal drainage district<sup>2</sup> is of the opinion that the amount of the annual value<sup>3</sup> of any chargeable property<sup>4</sup> in that district should be increased or reduced having regard to changes in the relevant circumstances<sup>5</sup>, for the purpose of securing that the burden of the drainage rates payable in respect of all chargeable properties in the district is fairly distributed so far as reasonably practicable among the persons liable to pay those rates<sup>6</sup>, the board may make a determination of annual value<sup>7</sup> specifying a greater or smaller amount<sup>8</sup> as the annual value of the chargeable property in question<sup>9</sup>.

If the occupier of any chargeable property in an internal drainage district is of the opinion that, having regard to changes in the relevant circumstances, the annual value of his property should be altered for the above purposes, he may request the board in writing<sup>10</sup> to make such a determination in respect of the property<sup>11</sup>. The board must either comply with the request or, if it considers that no alteration of the value is required, determine that the request be refused<sup>12</sup>.

Where a drainage board makes a determination under the above provisions it must serve notice of the determination together with a statement in writing of the rights of appeal<sup>13</sup> on the occupier of the property to which the determination relates<sup>14</sup>. Where the determination is made by the board of its own motion<sup>15</sup>, the annual value of the property in question is that specified in the determination for the purposes of any drainage rate made after the effective date<sup>16</sup>. Where, however, the determination is made following a request by the occupier of a chargeable property<sup>17</sup>, the annual value of the property in question is that specified in the determination for the purposes of any drainage rate made in respect of any period included in the financial year<sup>18</sup> in which the request for the determination was made and any drainage rate made in respect of any subsequent period<sup>19</sup>; and if drainage rates for any period in respect of that property have been, or are subsequently, paid by reference to its annual value before the alteration and the period is one for which the amount of those rates so falls to be assessed on the value specified in the determination, that amount must be recalculated accordingly<sup>20</sup>.

7 In accordance with the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 44: see the text to notes 13-20.

8 The determination may specify such greater or smaller amount than the amount of the annual value as the board, having regard to the changes in the relevant circumstances, and to any other alterations of annual value under these provisions made or proposed by the board, considers just for the purposes mentioned in the text: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 43(3).

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/631. Differential drainage rates and special levies.

631. Differential drainage rates and special levies.

A drainage board<sup>1</sup> for an internal drainage district<sup>2</sup>, after consultation with the Environment Agency<sup>3</sup>, may for the purpose of levying differential drainage rates<sup>4</sup> or issuing differential special levies<sup>5</sup>, from time to time by order divide that district into sub-districts<sup>6</sup>, and if, having regard to all the circumstances, it thinks that it is just to do so, exercise its powers<sup>7</sup> to make and levy differential drainage rates or issue differential special levies<sup>8</sup>. Such an order is of no effect unless and until it is confirmed by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>9</sup>.

The order may determine the proportions of the expenses of the drainage board which are to be raised in the respective sub-districts<sup>10</sup>. Where such an order is in force in respect of an internal drainage district but the order does not determine the proportions of the expenses of the drainage board to be raised in the respective sub-districts, the amount to be so raised is to be determined as follows:

- 1309 (1) expenses incurred in connection with new works or the maintenance or improvement of existing works<sup>11</sup> in each sub-district are to be raised in that sub-district<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1310 (2) there must be raised in each sub-district a proportionate part of the charges incurred by the board in respect of contributions to the Agency<sup>13</sup>, or amounts specified<sup>14</sup> as corresponding to such contributions, and a proportionate part of other expenses and charges not directly attributable to the maintenance of particular works<sup>15</sup>.

Where such an order is in force in respect of an internal drainage district, the proportions of the expenses of the drainage board for that district raised in a sub-district which must be raised by means of drainage rates and special levies respectively must bear the same proportion to each other in respect of a financial year<sup>16</sup> as do the aggregate of the annual values<sup>17</sup> of the chargeable properties<sup>18</sup> in the sub-district and the aggregate of the values of other land<sup>19</sup> in that sub-district<sup>20</sup>.

If a sufficient number of qualified persons<sup>21</sup> or a qualified authority<sup>22</sup> submits a petition to an internal drainage board for the making, variation or revocation of such an order, the board must, except in the specified circumstances<sup>23</sup>, consider the petition<sup>24</sup>. The board must inform the Agency (or, if the Agency is the internal drainage board, inform the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers<sup>25</sup>) that it has received the petition<sup>26</sup> and must also publish a notice that it has done so in one or more of the newspapers circulating in the district<sup>27</sup>. The notice must also state that the making, variation or revocation of an order will be considered<sup>28</sup>, and that representations may be made to the drainage board within a stated period which must not be less than 30 days<sup>29</sup>.

After considering the petition, and not later than six months after it is received, the board must inform the Agency (or, as the case may be, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers<sup>30</sup>) whether it proposes to make, vary or revoke the order<sup>31</sup> and, if it proposes to make or vary the order, the terms of the order or variation<sup>32</sup>. The Agency (or, if the Agency is the board, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers<sup>33</sup>) may direct the board to make, vary or revoke the order either in accordance with the petition or in accordance with the petition as modified by the direction<sup>34</sup>. If the board objects to such a direction given by the Agency, the direction has no effect unless confirmed, with or without modifications, by the relevant minister<sup>35</sup>. Subject to this, the order must be made, varied or revoked in accordance with the direction<sup>36</sup>.

632. Exemption from drainage rates.

After consultation with the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup>, the drainage board<sup>2</sup> for an internal drainage district<sup>3</sup> may by order determine that no drainage rates are to be levied<sup>4</sup> on the occupiers of hereditaments<sup>5</sup> in any portion of the district<sup>6</sup> which, in the board's opinion, either by reason of its height above sea level or for any other reason, ought to be exempted wholly from rating<sup>7</sup>. The board must submit the order to the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>8</sup>, and it is of no effect unless and until it is confirmed by the relevant minister<sup>9</sup>.

Where the occupier of any hereditament in an internal drainage district requests the drainage board for the district to make or amend an order so as to exempt from drainage rates the portion of the district in which the hereditament is situated, the board must consider the request<sup>10</sup>. Where the request is refused<sup>11</sup>, that occupier may appeal to the Agency or (if the board is the Agency<sup>12</sup> to the relevant minister), and the Agency or the relevant minister may direct the board to make or amend the order as requested<sup>13</sup>. If so directed, the board must comply with the request<sup>14</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/633. Special levies.

633. Special levies.

In order to meet the appropriate part of its expenses<sup>1</sup>, an internal drainage board<sup>2</sup> may issue a special levy to a local billing authority<sup>3</sup> in respect of any financial year<sup>4</sup>. A special levy must be issued before 15 February in the financial year preceding that in respect of which it is issued but is not invalid merely because it is issued on or after that date<sup>5</sup>. Where more than one local billing authority is situated within an internal drainage district<sup>6</sup>, the internal drainage board of that district must secure that such of its expenses as are to be met by special levies are met by local billing authorities in proportion<sup>7</sup> by reference to the aggregate annual value<sup>8</sup> of the land<sup>9</sup>, other than agricultural land<sup>10</sup> or agricultural buildings<sup>11</sup>, within each local billing authority's area or (as the case may be) the part of such land that lies within the board's district<sup>12</sup>.

An internal drainage board which has issued a special levy in respect of a financial year may issue a special levy in substitution if the special levy for which it is substituted is quashed because of a failure to secure that its expenses are met by local billing authorities in proportion, or if it appears necessary to the board to do so in order to make the special levy conform with the provisions of the relevant regulations<sup>13</sup>.

A special levy is made in writing under the common seal of the board<sup>14</sup> and must be issued by a board within ten days of being made<sup>15</sup>. The levy must state its amount, the billing authority to which it is issued and the date of issue, and must be issued to every billing authority for any area wholly or partly included in the board's district<sup>16</sup>. An internal drainage board must maintain a record of any special levy issued showing the amount of such levy, the dates on which it was made and issued, the billing authority to which it was issued<sup>17</sup>, and the proportion of expenses raised in respect of each financial year from the proceeds of drainage rates and special levies<sup>18</sup>. The record must be kept open to inspection by members of the public at all reasonable times at the board's principal office<sup>19</sup>.

A local billing authority to which a board issues a special levy under these provisions in respect of a financial year must pay the amount of that levy in that year either at such time and in such instalments, if any, as may be agreed between the authority and the board<sup>20</sup> or, in default of such agreement, by two equal instalments due on 1 May and 1 November in the relevant financial year<sup>21</sup>. Where, at a time when a billing authority makes a calculation of its budget requirements<sup>22</sup>, a board with power to issue a special levy to that authority has not issued such a levy in respect of that year<sup>23</sup>, the authority may take into account, in estimating its expenditure<sup>24</sup>, its estimate of the amount of the special levy that it expects will be issued to it by the board<sup>25</sup>.

A local billing authority may appoint a member or members of an internal drainage board<sup>26</sup> having power to issue special levies to it<sup>27</sup>. The number of members so appointed:

- 1311 (1) must be determined in relation to each board by reference to the proportion of the expenses of the drainage board to be raised from the proceeds of special levies in the first financial year of the three-year appointment period<sup>28</sup>;
- 1312 (2) must not exceed by more than one the number of other members of the board<sup>29</sup>; and
- 1313 (3) must be such that the number bears to the maximum number of all the members of the board as nearly as possible the same proportion as the proportion of the expenses of the board that is to be raised by the proceeds of special levies<sup>30</sup>.

If more than one billing authority is entitled to appoint members of an internal drainage board, each such authority may appoint the number of members of the board calculated by multiplying the maximum number of appointed members by the relevant fraction<sup>31</sup> for that authority and disregarding any fraction in the resulting product<sup>32</sup>.

In particular, the board may: (1) correct any clerical or arithmetical error; (2) correct any erroneous insertions or omissions or misdescriptions; or (3) make such additions or corrections as are necessary by reason of boundary changes in the board's district or in the district of a local billing authority: reg 8(1)(a)-(c). A special levy in substitution must be issued in accordance with reg 7(2), (3) (see the text to notes 6-12) and reg 9(1), (2) (see the text to notes 14-16): reg 8(2). Where a board issues a special levy in substitution (a 'new levy'), anything paid to it by reference to the special levy for which it is substituted (the 'old levy') must be treated as paid by reference to the new levy (reg 8(3)); but if the amount of the old levy exceeds that of the new levy the amount in excess must be repaid if the local billing authority by which it was paid so requires, and in any other case must either be repaid or be credited against any subsequent liability of the local billing authority in respect of any special levy of the board, as the board determines (reg 8(4)).

27 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 5(1) (Sch 1 paras 5, 6 amended by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 1). In appointing a person to be a member of an internal drainage board, a billing authority must have regard to the desirability of appointing a person who: (1) has knowledge or experience (including knowledge of the internal drainage district in question or commercial experience) of some matter relevant to the functions of the board; and (2) has shown capacity in such a matter: Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 5(2) (as so amended). This provision has effect subject to the restrictions on appointments which are imposed by Sch 1 para 6 (see heads (1)-(3) in the text): Sch 1 para 5(3).

28 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(1)(b), (5) (Sch 1 para 6(1)(b) amended by SI 1992/3079). The first three-year appointment period ran from 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1996 and each succeeding period begins with 1 April: Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(1)(a). The proportion of expenses to be raised from the proceeds of special levies must be determined in accordance with s 37 (see PARA 627): Sch 1 para 6(1)(b) (as so amended).

29 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(2)(a), (5).

30 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(2)(b), (5) (Sch 1 para 6(2)(b) amended by SI 1992/3079).

31 The relevant fraction, in relation to a billing authority, is the fraction of the expenses of the internal drainage board that is to be raised from the proceeds of special levies in the first financial year of the relevant period referred to in the Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(1)(a) (see note 28) which is to be raised by special levy issued to that authority: Sch 1 para 6(4) (amended by SI 1992/3079).

32 Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(3)(a) (amended by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 1). Where in respect of the board: (1) any such authority has appointed a member; or (2) the calculation referred to results in respect of each such authority in a product of less than one, the billing authorities must, unless they otherwise agree, jointly appoint the number of members of the board representing the difference between the maximum number of appointed members and the aggregate number of members that may be appointed by individual billing authorities or, as the case may be, constituting the maximum number of appointed members: Land Drainage Act 1991 Sch 1 para 6(3)(b) (as so amended).

634. Appeal to valuation tribunal.

An occupier who wishes to appeal against any such determination must, before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date of service on him of notice of the determination<sup>8</sup>, or such longer period as the drainage board which made the determination may allow (either generally or in any particular case)<sup>9</sup>, serve<sup>10</sup> on the board a notice objecting to the determination and stating the grounds of the objection<sup>11</sup>. Within 28 days of the service of such a notice of objection on it, the internal drainage board may, if it thinks fit, cancel the determination and make a fresh determination in accordance with the appropriate statutory provision<sup>12</sup>.

If any such notice of objection is served and is not withdrawn within the period mentioned above<sup>13</sup>, and the board does not cancel the determination<sup>14</sup>, the board must, forthwith after the end of that period, transmit the notice and a note of the determination to the clerk of the appropriate tribunal<sup>15</sup>. The transmission of the notice of objection constitutes the lodging of an appeal against the determination, by the person who served the notice on the board, to the valuation tribunal<sup>16</sup>.

10 As to the service of documents see PARA 22.

11 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(2).

12 See the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(3). The fresh determination is made under s 42 (see PARA 629) or s 43 (see PARA 630) as appropriate: s 45(3)(b). Section 46(7) (see PARA 635) has effect in relation to the cancellation and the other provisions of Pt IV Ch II (ss 40-54) have effect in relation to the fresh determination: s 45(3). Where notice of objection is served in respect of a determination as to the adjustment of annual value made by a drainage board under s 43, the board may cancel the determination in accordance with s 45(3) without making a fresh determination in its place (s 45(4)(a)); and where it does so, it must serve notice of cancellation on the person by whom the notice of objection was served (s 45(4)(b)). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

15 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(5). 'Appropriate tribunal', in relation to a determination under s 42 (see PARA 629) or s 43 (see PARA 630) means: (1) the valuation tribunal established, in accordance with regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 11 (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 147), for the area in which the land to which the determination relates is situated; or (2) where different parts of that land are situated in different areas for which such tribunals are established, such one of those tribunals as may be determined by or under the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(7) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 117(1), Sch 13 para 99). As from 1 October 2009 head (1) above is amended by the omission of the words 'established, in accordance with regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 11': Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(7)(a) (prospectively amended by the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 ss 220(1), 241, Sch 16 para 6(1), (2), Sch 18 Pt 17); Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 (Commencement No 8) Order 2008, SI 2008/3110, art 6(b), (d)(i). In addition from that date the following definition is added: 'Valuation tribunal' means the Valuation Tribunal for England, or a valuation tribunal established under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 11 para 1; and England is to be treated as the area for which the Valuation Tribunal for England is established: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 45(8) (prospectively added by the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 s 220(1), Sch 16 para 6(1), (3)); Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 (Commencement No 8) Order 2008, SI 2008/3110, art 6(b), (d)(i).

Where the hereditament to which the determination relates is a divided hereditament, the prescribed tribunal is determined in accordance with the following provisions: Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 3 (amended by SI 1989/440). Where a divided hereditament to which the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 5 does not apply consists of land which falls to be assessed to drainage rates only on the basis of annual value, the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for the tribunal area in which that portion is situated which has a greater area than the portion situated in any other tribunal area: reg 4 (amended by SI 1989/440; and by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 15(1)). Where a divided hereditament consists of or includes any land which is occupied (a) by a universal service provider for any purpose in connection with the provision of a universal postal service within the meaning of the Postal Services Act 2000 (see POST OFFICE), for the purposes of the successor to the British Railways Board, by London Regional Transport, the British Waterways Board or certain other statutory undertakings; or (b) by the Coal Authority or any licensed operator within the meaning of the Coal Industry Act 1994, the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for that one of the relevant tribunal areas which contains a greater portion of the drainage district in which the hereditament is comprised than the portion of that district comprised in any other relevant tribunal area: see the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 5 (as so amended; further amended by SI 1994/2567; SI 2001/1149; and by virtue of the London Regional Transport Act 1984 s 1). The other statutory undertakings referred to are water, gas and electricity undertakings (see the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970 reg 5(2)(b), (e), (4)); but following the privatisation of these industries hereditaments occupied by those and other undertakers are now rated en bloc by virtue of the central rating lists compiled under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 52: see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 125. As to the privatisation of the water industry and its current organisation see PARA 108 et seq; and as to the structure of the railway industry see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 3 et seq. 'Prescribed tribunal' means the valuation tribunal to whose clerk the notice of objection to a determination is to be transmitted: Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 3(1) (amended by SI 1989/440). 'Divided hereditament' means a hereditament different parts of which are situated in different tribunal areas: reg 2(2).

Where a divided hereditament to which the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 5 does not apply includes the whole or part of one, but not more than one, rating unit, the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for the tribunal area in which the rating unit is situated: reg 6 (amended by SI 1989/440). Where such a hereditament consists of or includes two or more rating units, or parts of two or more rating units, or one or more rating units and parts of other rating units, and all such rating units are within the same curtilage or contiguous and in the same occupation but, in either case, within not more than two tribunal areas, then (i) if in one relevant tribunal area there are situated rating units having in the aggregate and according to the valuation lists for the time being in force (or, if there are no relevant entries in those valuation lists, according to entries included in proposals made by the valuation officer) a greater rateable value than the rating units situated within the other relevant tribunal area, the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for the relevant tribunal area first mentioned; (ii) if there is an equality of the aggregate rateable values of those rating units (or, where there is no entry in the valuation list, an equality of the aggregate rateable values of the entries included in proposals made by the valuation officer), the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for such one of the relevant tribunal areas as the minister may determine: Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 7 (amended by SI 1989/440). In the case of any divided hereditament for which none of the above provisions provide, the prescribed tribunal is the valuation tribunal for such one of the relevant tribunal areas as the minister may determine: see the Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 8 (amended by SI 1989/440). 'The minister' means the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food: Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 2(2). As to the abolition of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, and as to the transfer of functions under the Land Drainage Act 1991 to the Welsh Ministers, see PARA 569 note 9. 'Tribunal area' means the area for which a valuation tribunal is established in accordance with regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 11; and 'relevant tribunal area' means a tribunal area in which a part of the hereditament is situated: Drainage Rates (Appeals) Regulations 1970, SI 1970/1152, reg 2(2) (definitions substituted by SI 1989/440). As to rating units, valuation lists and valuation officers see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/635. Procedure on the appeal.

635. Procedure on the appeal.

It is the duty of the president of the valuation tribunal to whose clerk the notice of objection is transmitted<sup>1</sup> to arrange for the appeal to which the notice relates to be heard and determined<sup>2</sup>. The clerk to the prescribed tribunal must give not less than 14 days' notice of the date, time and place fixed for the hearing of an appeal to an appellant and to the drainage board<sup>3</sup>. He must also, not less than 14 days before the date of the hearing, advertise the date, time and place at which the valuation tribunal will sit to hear appeals by causing a notice to be affixed to the tribunal office, and also to be affixed to the office of the drainage board or posted in some conspicuous place or places within the internal drainage district<sup>4</sup>. The notice must also name a place where a list of the appeals to be heard may be inspected<sup>5</sup>.

The valuation tribunal must sit in public on an appeal against a determination of an annual value<sup>6</sup> unless it otherwise orders, on being satisfied on the application of a party to the appeal that the interests of that party would be prejudicially affected<sup>7</sup>. It has power to administer oaths and to take evidence on oath<sup>8</sup>. The person<sup>9</sup> whose notice of objection has resulted in the hearing, any other person who is the occupier of any land<sup>10</sup> to which the determination relates, and the drainage board by which that determination was made, are entitled to appear and be heard as parties to the appeal and to call witnesses and to examine any witnesses before the tribunal<sup>11</sup>. On the hearing of an appeal, the appellant must begin unless the tribunal, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case, otherwise determines with his consent<sup>12</sup>. Subject to that, the parties to the appeal are heard in such order as the tribunal may determine<sup>13</sup>. If any person entitled to appear does not appear at the hearing, the valuation tribunal may, on being satisfied that the notice requirements<sup>14</sup> have been duly complied with, proceed with the hearing on the assumption that he does not desire to be heard<sup>15</sup>.

The valuation tribunal may postpone or adjourn the hearing of an appeal for such time and to such place and upon such terms, if any, as it thinks fit, or may order that different questions arising on the appeal be heard at such different times or in such order or at such different places as may seem expedient to the tribunal<sup>16</sup>.

No person who is a party to an appeal or an employee or member of a body which is such a party, or a person acting for such a party, or a person called as a witness during the hearing, may be present while the valuation tribunal is considering its decision on the appeal<sup>17</sup>. After hearing the persons entitled to appear or such of them as desire to be heard, the tribunal may quash the determination to which the appeal relates, alter the determination in such manner as the tribunal thinks just, or dismiss the appeal<sup>18</sup>. Except where the tribunal consists of only two persons, the decision is a majority decision<sup>19</sup> which must be in writing<sup>20</sup> and signed by the chairman<sup>21</sup>. The clerk to the prescribed tribunal must send a copy of the decision certified by him to every party to the appeal and must inform every such party of the right to appeal against the decision<sup>22</sup>. An appeal lies to the Lands Tribunal<sup>23</sup>.

Where a determination of the amount of the annual value of any property is quashed or altered on appeal or is cancelled<sup>24</sup>, then, except in so far as the parties otherwise agree, that amount of annual value must be recalculated accordingly, and any sum overpaid must be repaid or allowed and any sum underpaid may be recovered as if it were arrears of drainage rates<sup>25</sup>. Where a determination which has been quashed is subsequently restored on appeal the amount of any drainage rate falling to be recalculated in consequence of the appeal must, except so far as the parties otherwise agree, be recalculated accordingly, and any sum overpaid must be repaid or allowed and any sum underpaid may be recovered as if it were arrears of drainage rates<sup>26</sup>.

Non-compliance with any of the procedural rules contained in regs 10-15 does not render any proceedings in an appeal void unless the valuation tribunal so directs; but such proceedings may be set aside either wholly or in part as irregular, or amended, or otherwise dealt with in such manner and upon such terms as the tribunal thinks fit: reg 16 (regs 11-16 amended by SI 1989/440; further amended by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 15(1)).

UPDATE

635 Procedure on the appeal

TEXT AND NOTE 23--Reference to the Lands Tribunal is now to the Upper Tribunal: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 46(6) (amended by SI 2009/1307).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/636. Appeal to the Crown Court.

636. Appeal to the Crown Court.

If any person<sup>1</sup>, as occupier of any hereditament<sup>2</sup> in a drainage district<sup>3</sup>, is aggrieved<sup>4</sup> by a drainage rate<sup>5</sup> or an amendment of a drainage rate, upon any ground other than a ground upon which he might have appealed to the appropriate valuation tribunal<sup>6</sup>, he may appeal to the Crown Court against the rate or the rate as amended<sup>7</sup>. Notice of the appeal, specifying the grounds of it, must be given within 28 days of the making of the rate or, as the case may be, the date on which notice of the amendment is served on the appellant, to the court, to the internal drainage board<sup>8</sup> in question and also, if the appeal relates to a hereditament not in the occupation of the appellant, to the occupier of that hereditament<sup>9</sup>. On such an appeal the court must, as it thinks just, either confirm the rate or annul or modify it<sup>10</sup>.

The appellant and the respondent to such an appeal may agree in writing<sup>11</sup> to refer the matter in dispute to the arbitration of a person agreed between them or, in default of agreement, appointed by the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>12</sup>. In the event of such a reference, the costs of and incidental to the hearing before the arbitrator and his award are in his discretion and, if not agreed by the parties, are assessed as part of the costs of the appeal to the Crown Court<sup>13</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/637. Recovery of drainage rates.

637. Recovery of drainage rates.

Arrears of any drainage rates<sup>1</sup> may be recovered by the drainage board for an internal drainage district<sup>2</sup> in the same manner in which arrears of a non-domestic rate may be recovered by a billing authority<sup>3</sup>. In proceedings for the recovery of a drainage rate the defendant is not entitled to raise any matter which might have been raised on an appeal to the appropriate valuation tribunal<sup>4</sup> or on an appeal<sup>5</sup> to the Crown Court<sup>6</sup>.

These powers of recovery are in addition to, and not in substitution for, powers conferred by any provision of any local Act on any drainage board for recovery of drainage rates, and for the purposes of any such provisions a rate made under the Land Drainage Act 1991 is to be treated as a rate to which those local Act provisions apply<sup>7</sup>. However, notwithstanding anything in any local Act, no distress for arrears of any rate so made may be levied on the goods or chattels of any person<sup>8</sup> other than the person from whom arrears may be recovered<sup>9</sup> as set out above<sup>10</sup>; and no proceedings may be taken, whether by bringing a claim or otherwise, for the enforcement of any charge on land<sup>11</sup> created by a local Act for securing payment of arrears of any rate so made<sup>12</sup>.

The drainage board for an internal drainage district is not required to enforce payment of any drainage rate in any case where the amount payable is, in its opinion, insufficient to justify the expense of collection<sup>13</sup>.

3    Land Drainage Act 1991 s 54(1) (amended by virtue of the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 1). Recovery is in accordance with the provisions of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 170 et seq): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 54(1). The drainage board for an internal drainage district may by resolution authorise any member or officer of the board, either generally or in respect of particular proceedings, to institute or defend proceedings or to appear on its behalf, notwithstanding that he is not qualified to act as a solicitor, in any proceedings before a magistrates' court for the issue of a warrant of distress for failure to pay a drainage rate: s 54(2). As from a day to be appointed this provision is amended by the substitution for the words 'warrant of distress' of the words 'warrant of control': s 54(2) (prospectively amended by the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 s 62(3), Sch 13 para 100). ### 638. Information.

The drainage board for an internal drainage district<sup>1</sup> may serve<sup>2</sup> on the owner of any hereditament<sup>3</sup> in the district in respect of which a drainage rate is levied<sup>4</sup> a notice requiring him to state in writing<sup>5</sup> the name and address of any person<sup>6</sup> known to him as being an occupier of that hereditament<sup>7</sup>. If the owner fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the notice<sup>8</sup>, or in pursuance of the notice makes any statement in respect of the information required which he knows to be false in a material particular<sup>9</sup> or recklessly makes such a statement which is false in a material particular<sup>10</sup>, he is guilty of an offence<sup>11</sup>. Where a person is convicted of such an offence in respect of a failure to comply with a notice and the failure continues after conviction, then unless he has a reasonable excuse for the continuance of the failure, he is guilty of a further such offence<sup>12</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(iv) Finance and Revenue/B. FINANCES OF INTERNAL DRAINAGE BOARDS/639. Grants to internal drainage boards and other drainage bodies.

639. Grants to internal drainage boards and other drainage bodies.

The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'appropriate minister')<sup>1</sup> may make grants towards expenditure incurred by internal drainage boards<sup>2</sup> or by other drainage bodies<sup>3</sup> in the exercise of their functions in carrying out drainage schemes<sup>4</sup>. In relation to such grants made by the Secretary of State, they must be of such amount and subject to such conditions as may be approved by the Treasury<sup>5</sup>.

Where a drainage body is about to incur expenditure in respect of any work for which, if the work is properly carried out, such a grant will be payable, the appropriate minister may, with Treasury approval in the case of the Secretary of State, make advances to that body on account of the expenditure<sup>6</sup>. The appropriate Minister may also, with Treasury approval in the case of the Secretary of State, make grants to drainage bodies in respect of expenditure properly incurred by them with a view to:

- 1314 (1) carrying out drainage works, being expenditure towards which, if the works had been properly carried out, a grant would have been payable under<sup>7</sup> the above provisions<sup>8</sup>;
- 1315 (2) enabling them to determine in any particular case whether drainage works, or drainage works of any particular description, should or should not be carried out<sup>9</sup>;
- 1316 (3) obtaining or organising information, including information about natural processes affecting the coastline, to enable them to formulate or develop their plans with respect to the defence against sea water of any part of the coastline<sup>10</sup>; or
- 1317 (4) obtaining, at any time after the carrying out of drainage works, information with respect to the quality or effectiveness, or the effect on the environment, of those works<sup>11</sup>, or any matter of a financial nature relating to those works<sup>12</sup>; and where a drainage body is about to incur expenditure in respect of which it appears to the appropriate minister that a grant will be payable under heads (1) to (4) above, he may, with Treasury approval in the case of the Secretary of State, make advances to the body on account of the expenditure<sup>13</sup>.

The appropriate minister may, with Treasury approval in the case of the Secretary of State: (a) make grants to an internal drainage board or a local authority<sup>14</sup> in respect of the cost of any works carried out<sup>15</sup> by the board or authority by agreement with another person entitled to carry them out<sup>16</sup>; (b) make to an internal drainage board grants in respect of expenditure incurred by the board, and advances on account of expenditure to be incurred by it, in carrying out works for the rebuilding or repair of any bridge maintained by the board, other than works appearing to the minister to be maintenance works of a routine kind<sup>17</sup>.

640. Borrowing by internal drainage boards.

An internal drainage board<sup>1</sup> may borrow, on the security of its property or income<sup>2</sup>: (1) for the purpose of defraying any costs, charges or expenses incurred by it in the exercise or performance of any power or duty under the Land Drainage Act 1991 or the Water Resources Act 1991<sup>3</sup>; or (2) for the purpose of discharging any loan contracted by it under the Land Drainage Act 1991 or any provision re-enacted, whether directly or indirectly, by that Act<sup>4</sup>.

The consent of the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>5</sup> is required for any such borrowing other than a borrowing for the purpose of discharging any loan previously contracted<sup>6</sup>. Money so borrowed may be borrowed for such period not exceeding 50 years as the board, with the relevant minister's consent, may in each case determine<sup>7</sup>. Where the drainage board for an internal drainage district<sup>8</sup> borrows any sums in respect of which it has determined that some part only of that district is to be liable, the money borrowed is repayable only out of rates levied on, or special levies issued or contributions received in respect of, that part of the drainage district<sup>9</sup>.

Where the owner of any land<sup>10</sup> comprised within any internal drainage district is authorised to invest money on real security, then unless the instrument authorising the investment provides to the contrary, he may invest money on a first mortgage of the drainage rates leviable by the drainage board for that district<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569.

2 The provisions of the Commissioners Clauses Act 1847 as to mortgages are deemed to be incorporated in the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 55: s 55(6). The borrowing may be on the security of any property vested in the board or any drainage rates to be levied by the board under the Land Drainage Act 1991, special levies to be issued by the board in accordance with regulations under the Local Government Finance Act 1988 s 75, or contributions to be paid to the board under the Land Drainage Act 1991: s 55(8). Contributions are most likely to be those paid to the board by the Environment Agency under s 57: see PARA 613. As to drainage rates see PARA 627 et seq. As to special levies see PARA 633.

641. Defrayal of expenses; borrowing and grants.

Provision was made under the Land Drainage Act 1976 for the defrayal of amounts due from county councils, metropolitan district councils and London borough councils to the former National Rivers Authority in respect of levies<sup>1</sup>; and this provision is continued in force for the purposes of the Environment Agency (Levies) Regulations 1993<sup>2</sup>.

The council of a county, county borough or London borough and the Common Council of the City of London may borrow for the purposes of the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>3</sup>. Central government grants may also be payable to a local authority<sup>4</sup> in respect of drainage schemes on the same basis as such grants are payable to internal drainage boards<sup>5</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/A. IN GENERAL/642. Duties in relation to drainage boards.

(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities

A. IN GENERAL

642. Duties in relation to drainage boards.

It is the duty of an internal drainage board<sup>1</sup>, of the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (each of the ministers)<sup>2</sup>, and of the Environment Agency<sup>3</sup>, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions of such a board<sup>4</sup>:

- 1318 (1) so far as may be consistent with the purposes of any enactment relating to the functions of such a board, and in the case of the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers with the general duties with respect to the water industry<sup>5</sup>, so to exercise any power conferred with respect to the proposals on the board, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers or, as the case may be, the Agency as to further the conservation and enhancement of natural beauty and the conservation of flora, fauna and geological or physiographical features of special interest<sup>6</sup>;
- 1319 (2) to have regard to the desirability of protecting and conserving buildings<sup>7</sup>, sites and objects of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1320 (3) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on the beauty or amenity of any rural or urban area or on any such flora, fauna, features, buildings, sites or objects<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions, it is the duty of an internal drainage board, of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers and of the Agency, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions of such a board<sup>10</sup>:

- 1321 (a) to have regard to the desirability of preserving for the public any freedom of access to areas of woodland, mountains, moor, heath, down, cliff or foreshore and other places of natural beauty<sup>11</sup>;
- 1322 (b) to have regard to the desirability of maintaining the availability to the public of any facility for visiting or inspecting any building, site or object of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1323 (c) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on any such freedom of access or on the availability of any such facility<sup>13</sup>.

Subject to obtaining the consent of any navigation authority<sup>14</sup>, harbour authority<sup>15</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>16</sup> before doing anything which causes navigation which is subject to the control of that authority to be obstructed or otherwise interfered with, it is the duty of an internal drainage board to take such steps as are reasonably practicable<sup>17</sup> and consistent with the purposes of the enactments relating to the functions of that board<sup>18</sup>, for securing, so long as that board has rights to the use of water or land associated with water, that those rights are exercised so as to ensure that the water or land is made available for recreational purposes and is so made available in the best manner<sup>19</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions (or any other provision of the Land Drainage Act 1991) requires recreational facilities made available by an internal drainage board to be made available free of charge<sup>20</sup>.

3 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the Agency's general environmental duties see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 72.

4 The Land Drainage Act 1991 s 61A(1) and (2) (see the text to notes 10-13) apply so as to impose duties on an internal drainage board in relation to:

- 23 (1) any proposals relating to the functions of the Environment Agency or of a water undertaker or sewerage undertaker;
- 24 (2) any proposals relating to the management, by the company holding an appointment as such an undertaker, of any land for the time being held by that company for any purpose whatever (whether or not connected with the carrying out of the functions of a water undertaker or sewerage undertaker); and
- 25 (3) any proposal which by virtue of the Water Industry Act 1991 s 156(7) (disposals of protected land: see PARA 454) falls to be treated for the purposes of s 3 of that Act (see PARA 676) as a proposal relating to the functions of a water undertaker or sewerage undertaker,

643. Duties in relation to local authorities.

It is the duty of a local authority<sup>1</sup>, of the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers ('each of the ministers')<sup>2</sup>, and of the Environment Agency<sup>3</sup>, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions of a local authority under the Land Drainage Act 1991:

- 1324 (1) so far as may be consistent with the purposes of the Land Drainage Act 1991, and in the case of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers with the general duties with respect to the water industry<sup>4</sup>, so to exercise any power conferred with respect to the proposals on the local authority, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers or, as the case may be, the Agency as to further the conservation and enhancement of natural beauty and the conservation of flora, fauna and geological or physiographical features of special interest<sup>5</sup>;
- 1325 (2) to have regard to the desirability of protecting and conserving buildings<sup>6</sup>, sites and objects of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1326 (c) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on the beauty or amenity of any rural or urban area or on any such flora, fauna, features, buildings, sites or objects<sup>8</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions, it is the duty of a local authority, of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers, and of the Agency, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions of a local authority under the Land Drainage Act 1991:

- 1327 (a) to have regard to the desirability of preserving for the public any freedom of access to areas of woodland, mountains, moor, heath, down, cliff or foreshore and other places of natural beauty<sup>9</sup>;
- 1328 (b) to have regard to the desirability of maintaining the availability to the public of any facility for visiting or inspecting any building, site or object of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>10</sup>; and
- 1329 (c) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on any such freedom of access or on the availability of any such facility<sup>11</sup>.

Where Natural England or the Countryside Council for Wales<sup>1</sup> is of the opinion that any area of land<sup>2</sup> in England or Wales<sup>3</sup> is of special interest by reason of its flora, fauna or geological or physiographical features<sup>4</sup> and may at any time be affected by works, operations or activities of an internal drainage board<sup>5</sup>, or by works, operations or activities of a local authority under the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>6</sup>, Natural England or the Countryside Council for Wales must notify the fact that the land is of special interest for that reason to every internal drainage board and local authority whose works, operations or activities may affect the land<sup>7</sup>.

Where a National Park authority<sup>8</sup> or the Broads Authority<sup>9</sup> is of the opinion that any area of land in a National Park or in the Broads<sup>10</sup> is land in relation to which certain specified matters<sup>11</sup> are of particular importance<sup>12</sup>, and may at any time be affected by such works, operations and activities as are mentioned above<sup>13</sup>, that authority must notify the fact that that land is such land, and the reasons why those matters are of particular importance in relation to the land, to every internal drainage board and local authority whose works, operations or activities may affect the land<sup>14</sup>.

Where an internal drainage board or local authority has received any such notification as is mentioned above with respect to any land, the board or authority must consult the notifying body<sup>15</sup> before carrying out any such works, operations or activities which appear to the board or authority to be likely to destroy or damage any of the flora, fauna or geological or physiographical features by reason of which the land is of special interest<sup>16</sup>, or which appear likely significantly to prejudice anything the importance of which is one of the reasons why the specified matters are of particular importance in relation to that land<sup>17</sup>. This requirement does not, however, apply in relation to anything done in an emergency where particulars of what is done and of the emergency are notified to Natural England, the Countryside Council for Wales, the National Park authority in question or, as the case may be, the Broads Authority as soon as practicable after that thing is done<sup>18</sup>.

645. Ministerial directions to drainage boards.

Where the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers (the 'relevant minister')<sup>1</sup> considers that any works, operations or activities which are being, or are about to be, carried out by an internal drainage board<sup>2</sup> are likely to destroy or seriously damage:

- 1330 (1) any flora or fauna, or any geological or physiographical feature of special interest<sup>3</sup>; or
- 1331 (2) any building, structure, site or object of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>4</sup>, which in the relevant minister's opinion is of national or international importance, the relevant minister may give such directions as he considers appropriate to the internal drainage board with respect to the exercise and performance of its functions<sup>5</sup>. Except in a case of emergency the relevant minister may not, however, give such directions without first consulting the board<sup>6</sup>.

It is the duty of an internal drainage board to comply with any direction which it is given under these provisions<sup>7</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/A. IN GENERAL/646. Codes of practice.

646. Codes of practice.

The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers ('the ministers')<sup>1</sup> may by order<sup>2</sup> approve any code of practice issued, whether by them or by another person<sup>3</sup>, for the purpose of:

- 1332 (1) giving practical guidance to internal drainage boards<sup>4</sup> and local authorities<sup>5</sup> with respect to any of the specified matters<sup>6</sup> relating to their environmental duties<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1333 (2) promoting what appear to the ministers to be desirable practices by internal drainage boards or local authorities with respect to those matters<sup>8</sup>, and may at any time by order approve a modification of such a code or withdraw their approval of such a code or modification<sup>9</sup>. The ministers may not, however, make any order approving or modifying such a code or withdrawing such a code or modification unless they have first consulted the Environment Agency<sup>10</sup>, Natural England and the Countryside Council for Wales<sup>11</sup>, the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England<sup>12</sup>, and such other persons or bodies as the ministers consider appropriate<sup>13</sup>.

A contravention of a code of practice as for the time being approved under these provisions does not of itself constitute a contravention of any statutory requirement<sup>14</sup> with regard to environmental duties<sup>15</sup>, or give rise to any criminal or civil liability<sup>16</sup>, but the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers are each under a duty to take into account whether there is or has been, or is likely to be, any such contravention in determining when and how they should exercise their powers in relation to an internal drainage board or local authority under the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>17</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'the ministers', and as to the transfer of functions under the Land Drainage Act 1991 to the Welsh Ministers, see PARA 569 note 9. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

2 The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 61E(3) (s 61E added by the Land Drainage Act 1994 s 1). FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/A. IN GENERAL/647. Ministerial guidance.

647. Ministerial guidance.

The government has produced a strategy for the management of risk from all forms of flooding<sup>1</sup>. Ministerial guidance requires the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup>, internal drainage boards<sup>3</sup>, and certain local authorities to produce and keep under review water level management plans to take account of environmental requirements and opportunities, particularly in sites of special scientific interest and European sites where the control of water levels is important to the maintenance or rehabilitation of the conservation interest. These plans are to provide a means by which the water level requirements within a specified area for a range of activities, including the needs of land drainage and flood defence and conservation, can be balanced and integrated. The plans outline the objectives for the area concerned and the means by which such objectives may be achieved<sup>4</sup>.

Ministerial guidance also requires maritime local authorities and land drainage and flood defence bodies in England to prepare shoreline management plans to encourage the provision of adequate and cost-effective flood warning systems, to encourage the provision of adequate technically, environmentally and economically sound and sustainable flood and coastal defence measures and to discourage inappropriate development in areas at risk from flooding or coastal erosion<sup>5</sup>.

Government policy on development and flood risk is set out in a planning policy statement which aims to regulate development so that flood risk is taken into account at all stages in the planning process and inappropriate development does not take place in areas at risk of flooding<sup>6</sup>.

648. Conservation of natural habitats.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> and the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> must exercise their functions<sup>3</sup> relating to nature conservation so as to secure compliance with the requirements of the Habitats Directive<sup>4</sup> and the Wild Birds Directive<sup>5</sup>; and they and every other competent authority<sup>6</sup> in the exercise of any of their functions, must have regard to the requirements of these Directives so far as they may be affected by the exercise of those functions<sup>7</sup>. In relation to marine areas<sup>8</sup> any competent authority having functions relevant to marine conservation<sup>9</sup> must exercise those functions so as to secure compliance with the requirements of the Directives<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716 (with certain exceptions not relevant to this title) so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. ## B. IMPROVEMENT WORKS

649. Restriction on improvement works; determination of environmental effects.

Unless the works in question are exempted from the prescribed requirements<sup>1</sup>, a drainage body<sup>2</sup> may not carry out any improvement works<sup>3</sup> unless:

- 1334 (1) it has complied with the prescribed requirements<sup>4</sup> in relation to those improvement works<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1335 (2) where a proposal is referred to the appropriate authority<sup>6</sup>, that authority has consented to the carrying out of the improvement works and the works are carried out in accordance with any conditions to which the consent is subject<sup>7</sup>.

In relation to all improvement works, the drainage body, taking into account the prescribed selection criteria<sup>8</sup>, must determine whether the proposed improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment<sup>9</sup>.

1 The subject to the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 3(2): reg 3(1). Where the appropriate authority considers, in relation to particular improvement works, that there are exceptional grounds for doing so, it may direct that the provisions of the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, do not apply in relation to the works in question: reg 3(2) (reg 3(2) substituted, (2A) added, by SI 2005/1399). In this event, the appropriate authority must: (1) consider whether another form of assessment would be appropriate; (2) where it carries out any other form of assessment, make available to the public the information obtained under that assessment, the reasons for its decision to give a direction under the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 3(2) and any information relied on in making that decision: reg 3(2A) (as so added). 'Appropriate authority' means, in relation to England, the Secretary of State (formerly the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food), and in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers: reg 2(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the abolition of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and the transfer of the functions of that ministry see PARA 569 note 9. Functions under the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, which were originally vested in the National Assembly for Wales are now exercisable by the Welsh Ministers by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

No direction may be made under the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 3(2) where either the appropriate authority or the drainage body is aware that the proposed improvement works would be likely to have significant effects on the environment of another EEA state: reg 3(3). Where the appropriate authority makes a direction under reg 3(2) it must: (a) send a copy of the direction to the drainage body; and (b) publish in at least two newspapers local to the site of the proposed improvement works a notice which briefly describes the proposed works, explains the effect of the direction and explains the reasons for it: reg 3(4). 'EEA state' means a state which is a Contracting Party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area (Oporto, 2 May 1992; EC 7 (1992); Cm 2183) as adjusted by the Protocol (Brussels, 17 March 1993; EC 2 (1993); Cm 2183): see the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 2(1). As to the meanings of 'drainage body' and 'improvement works' see notes 2-3.

2 'Drainage body' means any of the following public authorities which initiates improvement works, namely: (1) the Environment Agency; (2) an internal drainage board; and (3) the council of a county, a county borough, a district (including a metropolitan district) or a London borough, the Common Council of the City of London or the Council of the Isles of Scilly: Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 2(1). As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to internal drainage boards see PARA 569. As to local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to the London boroughs and their councils see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 35 et seq. As to the Common Council of the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 51-55.

3 'Improvement works' means works which are: (1) the subject of a project to deepen, widen, straighten or otherwise improve or alter any existing watercourse or remove or alter mill dams, weirs or other obstructions to watercourses, or raise, widen or otherwise improve or alter any existing drainage work; and (2) permitted development by virtue of the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, Sch 2 Pt 14 or Pt 15 (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 255 et seq): Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 2(1) (definition amended by SI 2005/1399). 'Watercourse' includes any river and stream and any ditch, drain, cut, culvert, dike, sluice, sewer (other than public sewer as defined in the Water Industry Act 1991 s 219(1): see PARA 138 note 11) and any passage through which water flows; and 'drainage' includes defence against water including sea water: Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 2(1).

Improvement works may also require an appropriate assessment pursuant to the Habitats Directive: see PARA 11.

4 le the requirements of the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783: see PARA 650 et seq.

5 Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 3(1)(a).

6 le under the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 12(4): see PARA 654.

7 Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 3(1)(b).

8 le the selection criteria in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, Sch 2: reg 4. The characteristics of improvement works must be considered having regard, in particular, to: (1) the size of the improvement works; (2) the cumulation with other improvement works; (3) the use of natural resources; (4) the production of waste; (5) pollution and nuisances; and (6) the risk of accidents, having regard in particular to substances or technologies used: Sch 2 para 1. The environmental sensitivity of geographical areas likely to be affected by improvement works must also be considered, having regard, in particular, to the existing land use, to the relative abundance, quality and regenerative capacity of natural resources in the area and to the absorption capacity of the natural environment, paying particular attention to the following areas: (a) wetlands; (b) coastal zones; (c) mountain and forest areas; (d) nature reserves and parks; (e) areas classified or protected under member states' legislation; special protection areas designated by member states pursuant to EC Council Directive 79/409 (OJ L103, 25.04.79, p 01) (on the conservation of wild birds: see ANIMALS vol 2 (2008) PARA 994) and EC Directive 92/43 (OJ L206, 22.07.92, p 07) (on the conservation of natural habitats of wild fauna and flora: see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 729); (f) areas in which the environmental quality standards laid down in Community legislation have already been exceeded; (g) densely populated areas; (h) landscapes of historical, cultural or archaeological significance: Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, Sch 2 para 2. The potential significant effects of improvement works must be considered in relation to criteria set out under Sch 2 paras 1 and 2, and having regard in particular to: (i) the extent of the impact (geographical area and size of the affected population); (ii) the transfrontier nature of the impact; (iii) the magnitude and complexity of the impact; (iv) the probability of the impact; (v) the duration, frequency and reversibility of the impact: Sch 2 para 3.

9 Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 4. Notes for guidance in relation to the regulations have been issued by the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and are available on the department's website at www.defra.gov.uk. Improvement works may require an appropriate assessment pursuant to the Habitats Directive: see PARA 11.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/B. IMPROVEMENT WORKS/650. Requirements where a drainage body considers improvement works are not likely to have significant effects on the environment.

650. Requirements where a drainage body considers improvement works are not likely to have significant effects on the environment.

Where a drainage body<sup>1</sup> considers<sup>2</sup> that the improvement works<sup>3</sup> are not likely to have significant effects on the environment, it must, by notice in at least two local newspapers<sup>4</sup> and on any website maintained by the drainage body<sup>5</sup>:

- 1336 (1) announce that it proposes to carry out the improvement works in question<sup>6</sup>;
- 1337 (2) describe briefly the nature, size and location of the proposed improvement works<sup>7</sup>;
- 1338 (3) state that it does not intend to prepare an environmental statement<sup>8</sup> in respect of the proposed improvement works<sup>9</sup>;
- 1339 (4) give notice that any person<sup>10</sup> who wishes to do so should make representations to that body in writing<sup>11</sup> in relation to the likely environmental effects of the proposed improvement works at an address specified in the notice within 28 days of the date of publication of the notice<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1340 (5) describe what additional information concerning the improvement works is available, and where it can be obtained<sup>13</sup>.

A drainage body which publishes such a notice must also, on or before the date of such publication, supply a copy of the notice to each of the consultation bodies<sup>14</sup> so that they have an opportunity to make representations in relation to the likely environmental effects of the proposed improvement works before expiry of the period specified in the notice<sup>15</sup>.

Where, within the period provided for in head (4) above, no representations have been made to the effect that the works are likely to have significant effects on the environment, the drainage body may proceed to carry out the improvement works<sup>16</sup>. Where, however, following that period the drainage body considers, whether in the light of any representations or otherwise, that the improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment, it must so determine<sup>17</sup>.

Where within the period provided for in head (4) above, any representations have been made to the effect that the works are likely to have significant effects on the environment and, notwithstanding those representations, the drainage body still considers that the improvement works are not likely to have significant effects on the environment, it must apply to the appropriate authority<sup>18</sup> for a determination of whether the improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment and must provide the authority with all the relevant facts and copies of all relevant documents in its possession<sup>19</sup>. Where the appropriate authority considers that the information and copy documents so provided do not provide sufficient information to enable a determination to be made, that authority must notify the drainage body in writing of the points on which further information is required and may make a written request to the drainage body for such information as it may be able to provide on the points raised<sup>20</sup>.

Where an application is so made to the appropriate authority, that authority must, taking into account the prescribed selection criteria<sup>21</sup>, determine whether the improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment and must inform the drainage body in writing of its determination<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'drainage body' see PARA 649 note 2.

3 As to the meaning of 'improvement works' see PARA 649 note 3.

4 Where the site of the proposed improvement works is easily visible from a public highway, the requirements in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, regs 5(1), 6(2) (see PARA 651), 10(1)-10(3) (see PARA 653), 12(3), 12(6)(a) and 12(8) (see PARA 654) to place a notice in at least two newspapers may instead be satisfied by: (1) placing the notice in one such newspaper; and (2) on the date on which that notice is first published, posting on the site in one or more places a notice containing the information specified in the regulation in question: reg 13B(1) (reg 13B added by SI 2005/1399; and substituted by SI 2006/618). Any notice of the kind referred to in head (2) above must: (a) in relation to the information specified in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 5(1)(d) (see the text to notes 10-12), 10(2)(b) or 12(6)(a), specify as the period within which representations may be made the period of not less than 28 days from the date on which the notice is first posted; (b) be left in position for not less than seven consecutive days following the date on which the notice is first posted; and (c) be affixed firmly to some object on the site in such a way as to be easily visible to, and readable by, members of the public without going on to the land: reg 13B(2) (as so added and substituted). Where the requirements in reg 5(1), 6(2), 10(1)-10(3), 12(3), 12(6)(a) or 12(8) as regards the placing of a notice in at least two newspapers are satisfied by the alternative means specified in reg 13B(1), any reference in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783: (i) to a notice, being a notice published under or in accordance with any of those regulations, means the notice published under or in accordance with head (1) above; and (ii) to publication of such a notice (however expressed) is a reference to publication of the notice under or in accordance with that head: reg 13B(3) (as so added and substituted).

The drainage body must make available to the public, at the time that the notice under reg 5(1) is published, all relevant information that is relevant to the improvement works: reg 13A(1)(a) (reg13A added by SI 2005/1399).

651. Notification of determination that improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment.

In any case where:

- 1341 (1) a drainage body<sup>1</sup> determines<sup>2</sup> that improvement works<sup>3</sup> are likely to have significant effects on the environment<sup>4</sup>; or
- 1342 (2) the appropriate authority<sup>5</sup> determines<sup>6</sup> that improvement works are likely to have significant effects on the environment<sup>7</sup>, the drainage body must by notice in at least two local newspapers<sup>8</sup> and on any website maintained by the drainage body<sup>9</sup>:

- 1343 (a) inform the public of the need for a determination of whether the improvement works should proceed, and describe briefly the nature, size and location of the proposed improvement works<sup>10</sup>;
- 1344 (b) state that the works are likely to have significant effects on the environment and that the drainage body intends to prepare an environmental statement<sup>11</sup> in respect of them<sup>12</sup>;
- 1345 (c) give details of the drainage body responsible for taking the decision as to whether to carry out the improvement works, from whom relevant information can be obtained and to which comments or questions can be submitted, and details of the time by which comments or questions must be submitted<sup>13</sup>;
- 1346 (d) give an indication of the availability of the information gathered<sup>14</sup>;
- 1347 (e) give details of times and places where, and the means by which, the relevant information will be made available<sup>15</sup>.

A drainage body which publishes such a notice must, on or before the date of such publication, supply a copy of the notice to each of the consultation bodies<sup>16</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/B. IMPROVEMENT WORKS/652. Preparation of environmental statement.

652. Preparation of environmental statement.

In any case to which the notification requirements set out in the previous paragraph apply<sup>1</sup>, a drainage body<sup>2</sup> must prepare an environmental statement<sup>3</sup>. 'Environmental statement' means a statement:

1348 (1) that includes such of the prescribed information<sup>4</sup> as is reasonably required to assess the environmental effects of the improvement works<sup>5</sup> and which the drainage body can, having regard in particular to current knowledge and methods of assessment, reasonably be required to compile; but

1349 (2) that includes at least the following:

13. (a) a description of the improvement works comprising information on the site, design and size of the improvement works;
14. (b) a description of the measures envisaged in order to avoid, reduce and, if possible, remedy significant adverse effects;
15. (c) the data required to identify and assess the main effects which the improvement works are likely to have on the environment;
16. (d) an outline of the main alternatives studied by the drainage body and an indication of the main reasons for their choice, taking into account the environmental effects;
17. (e) a non-technical summary of the information provided under heads (a) to (d) above<sup>6</sup>.

A drainage body may request the appropriate authority<sup>7</sup> to give an opinion as to the information to be contained in the environmental statement required for particular improvement works<sup>8</sup>. Where a drainage body requests such an opinion before a determination has been made, the appropriate authority must deal with the request on the assumption that the improvement works will have significant effects on the environment<sup>9</sup>. Before giving such an opinion, the appropriate authority must consult the drainage body and the consultation bodies<sup>10</sup>. Giving such an opinion does not preclude the appropriate authority from requesting further information<sup>11</sup> from the drainage body concerned<sup>12</sup>.

Where a drainage body is required<sup>13</sup> to prepare an environmental statement, the drainage body may<sup>14</sup> enter into consultation with any other authority to determine whether that authority has in its possession any information which may be relevant to the preparation of the environmental statement and if the authority has such information, the authority must make such information available to the drainage body<sup>15</sup>.

4 le the information referred to in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, Sch 1: reg 2(1). That information is as follows:

- 26 (1) a description of the improvement works, including in particular: (a) a description of the physical characteristics of the whole improvement works and the land-use requirements during the construction and operational phases; (b) a description of the main characteristics of the production processes, for instance, nature and quantity of the materials used; (c) an estimate, by type and quantity, of expected residues and emissions (water, air and soil pollution, noise, vibration, light, heat, radiation, etc) resulting from the operation of the proposed improvement works (Sch 1 para 1);
- 27 (2) an outline of the main alternatives studied by the drainage body and an indication of the main reasons for their choice, taking into account the environmental effects (Sch 1 para 2);
- 28 (3) a description of the aspects of the environment likely to be significantly affected by the proposed improvement works, including, in particular, population, fauna, flora, soil, water, air, climatic factors, material assets including the architectural and archaeological heritage, landscape and the inter-relationship between the above factors (Sch 1 para 3);
- 29 (4) a description of the likely significant effects of the proposed improvement works on the environment, which should cover the direct effects and any indirect, secondary, cumulative, short, medium and long-term, permanent and temporary, positive and negative effects of the improvement works, resulting from (a) the existence of the improvement works; (b) the use of natural resources; (c) the emission of pollutants, the creation of nuisances and the elimination of waste, and the description by the drainage body of the forecasting methods used to assess the effects on the environment (Sch 1 para 4);
- 30 (5) a description of the measures envisaged to prevent, reduce and, where possible, offset any significant adverse effects on the environment (Sch 1 para 5);
- 31 (6) a non-technical summary of the information provided under heads (1)-(5) (Sch 1 para 6);
- 32 (7) an indication of any difficulties (technical deficiencies or lack of know-how) encountered by the drainage body in compiling the required information (Sch 1 para 7).

Publicity etc for environmental statements.

653. Publicity etc for environmental statements.

Where a drainage body<sup>1</sup> has prepared an environmental statement<sup>2</sup>, it must publish a notice in accordance with the following provisions<sup>3</sup>. The notice must:

- 1350 (1) announce that the statement has been prepared and give details of the place and times where copies may be inspected<sup>4</sup>;
- 1351 (2) state that any person<sup>5</sup> wishing to make representations in relation to the likely environmental effects of the improvement works<sup>6</sup> to which the statement relates must make them in writing<sup>7</sup> to the drainage body at the address specified in the notice within 28 days from the publication of the notice<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1352 (3) state that where no objection in relation to the likely environmental effects of the works is made and the drainage body, having undertaken the specified assessment<sup>9</sup>, considers that the improvement works should proceed, it may so determine<sup>10</sup>.

The notice must be published in such newspapers<sup>11</sup>, not being less than two, as the drainage body considers necessary to ensure that the environmental statement is made available to the public and in order to give the public concerned the opportunity to express an opinion before a determination is made as to whether the improvement works should proceed<sup>12</sup>.

On or before the date of publication of the notice, the drainage body must supply a copy of the environmental statement and notice to each of the consultation bodies<sup>13</sup> so that they have an opportunity to make representations on the likely environmental effects of the improvement works to which the statement relates before expiry of the period specified in the notice<sup>14</sup>. The drainage body must also provide a copy of the environmental statement to any other person who so requests<sup>15</sup>.

Where it appears to a drainage body that improvement works would be likely to have significant effects on the environment of another EEA state<sup>16</sup>, or where another EEA state likely to be significantly affected requests, the drainage body must inform the appropriate authority without delay<sup>17</sup>, and supply to the appropriate authority all information or documents in its possession which are reasonably required by the appropriate authority for the purpose of complying with the prescribed requirements<sup>18</sup>.

18 Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, Sch 3 para 1(b). The requirements referred to in the text are as follows: Where it appears to the appropriate authority that improvement works would be likely to have significant effects on the environment of another EEA state or where another EEA state likely to be significantly affected requests, the appropriate authority must: (1) send to the EEA state as soon as possible, and no later than the date of publication required by head (2) below, the particulars mentioned in Sch 3 para 3 and, if the authority thinks fit, the information mentioned in Sch 3 para 4; (2) publish the information referred to in head (1) above in a notice placed in the London Gazette with an indication of where further information is available; (3) give the EEA state a reasonable time in which to indicate whether it wishes to participate in the procedure for which the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, provide; and (4) inform the drainage body: Sch 3 para 2. The particulars referred to in head (1) above are a description of the improvement works, together with any available information on their possible significant effect on the environment in another EEA state and information on the nature of the determination which may be made: Sch 3 para 3. Where an EEA state indicates, in accordance with head (3) above, that it wishes to participate in the procedure for which the regulations provide, the appropriate authority must as soon as possible send to that EEA state the information required to be given under reg 6(2) (see PARA 651), but only to the extent that such information has not been provided to the EEA state earlier under head (1) above: Sch 3 para 4 (amended by SI 2005/1399). The appropriate authority, in so far as concerned, must also: (a) arrange for the particulars and information referred to in the Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, Sch 3 paras 3 and 4 to be made available, within a reasonable time, to the authorities referred to in art 6(1) of the Directive and the public concerned in the territory of the EEA state likely to be significantly affected; and (b) ensure that those authorities and the public concerned are given an opportunity, before a determination is made as to whether the improvement works should proceed, to forward to the appropriate authority, within a reasonable time, their opinion on the information supplied: Sch 3 para 5. The appropriate authority must in accordance with art 7(4) of the Directive: (i) enter into consultations with the EEA state concerned regarding, inter alia, the potential significant effects of the improvement works on the environment of that EEA state and the measures envisaged to reduce or eliminate such effects; and (ii) determine in agreement with the other EEA state a reasonable period of time for the duration of the consultation period: Sch 3 para 6. Where an EEA state has been consulted in accordance with Sch 3 para 6, the appropriate authority must inform the EEA state of the determination in respect of the improvement works in question and must forward to it a statement of the content of the determination and any conditions attached thereto, the main reasons and considerations on which the determination is based and a description, where necessary, of the main measures to avoid, reduce and, if possible, offset the major adverse effects of the improvement works:

Sch 3 para 7. 'The Directive' means Council Directive 85/337 (OJ L175, 05.07.85, p 40) (as amended by EC Council Directive 97/11 (OJ L73, 14.03.97, p 05)) on the assessment of the effects of certain public and private projects on the environment and Council Directive 2003/35 (OJ L156, 25.06.2003, p 17) on providing for public participation in respect of the drawing up of certain plans and programmes relating to the environment and amending with regard to public participation and access to justice Council Directive 85/337 and Council Directive 96/61 (OJ L257, 10.10.1996, p 26): Environmental Impact Assessment (Land Drainage Improvement Works) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1783, reg 2(1) (definition amended by SI 2005/1399).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(v) Environmental Duties of Drainage Authorities/B. IMPROVEMENT WORKS/654. Determination of whether improvement works should proceed.

654. Determination of whether improvement works should proceed.

On expiry of the period specified in the notice publicising the environmental statement<sup>1</sup>, the drainage body<sup>2</sup> must assess, in the light of the environmental statement and any representations made<sup>3</sup>, the direct and indirect effects of the proposed improvement works<sup>4</sup> on the specified environmental factors<sup>5</sup>. Those factors are: (1) human beings, fauna and flora<sup>6</sup>; (2) soil, water, air, climate and the landscape<sup>7</sup>; (3) material assets and the cultural heritage<sup>8</sup>; and (4) the interaction between the factors mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above<sup>9</sup>.

Where either no objection in relation to the likely environmental effects of the improvement works has been made, or any such objection has been withdrawn, and the drainage body, having undertaken that assessment, considers that the improvement works should proceed, it may so determine, and may so determine subject to conditions<sup>10</sup>. Where a drainage body has so determined that it should proceed with the works or that it should proceed subject to conditions, or where it has determined that it should not so proceed, it must<sup>11</sup>, by notice in at least two local newspapers or by such other means as are reasonable in the circumstances<sup>12</sup>, inform the public of the determination<sup>13</sup>, and give details of the place and times where the public may inspect a statement of:

- 1353 (a) its determination and any conditions to which it is subject<sup>14</sup>;
- 1354 (b) the main reasons and considerations upon which its determination was based<sup>15</sup>; and
- 1355 (c) where necessary, a description of the main measures to avoid, reduce and, if possible, offset the major adverse effects of the improvement works<sup>16</sup>.

Where a drainage body, having undertaken the assessment specified above, considers that the improvement works should proceed but objections to those works made in relation to their likely environmental effects have not been withdrawn, it must refer the proposal for works together with the environmental statement and any representations on it to the appropriate authority<sup>17</sup> for determination<sup>18</sup>. Where the appropriate authority considers that the information supplied in accordance with the above provision does not provide sufficient information to enable a determination to be made, that authority must notify the drainage body in writing<sup>19</sup> of the points on which further information is required and may make a written request to that body for such information as it may be able to provide on the points raised<sup>20</sup>. Where the appropriate authority so requests further information from a drainage body, the body must, no later than the time when it provides that information to the appropriate authority:

- 1356 (i) by notice<sup>21</sup>, published in such newspapers, not being less than two, as the drainage body considers necessary to ensure that the further information is made available to the public and in order to give the public concerned the opportunity to express an opinion before a determination is made as to whether the improvement works should proceed<sup>22</sup>:

- 18. (A) announce that the further information is available and give details of the place and times where a copy may be inspected<sup>23</sup>; and

19. (B) state that any person who wishes to make representations on the likely environmental effects of the improvement works to which the further information relates should make them in writing to the appropriate authority at the address specified in the notice within 28 days of the date of the publication of the notice<sup>24</sup>;

- 1357 (ii) on or before the date of publication of the notice, supply a copy of the further information and notice to each of the consultation bodies so that they have an opportunity to make representations to the appropriate authority on the likely environmental effects of the improvement works to which the further information relates before expiry of the period specified in the notice<sup>25</sup>; and
- 1358 (iii) provide a copy of the further information to any other person who so requests<sup>26</sup>.

The appropriate authority must assess, in the light of the environmental statement, any further information provided in response to a request under the above provisions and any representations<sup>27</sup>, the direct and indirect effects of the proposed improvement works on the environmental factors specified in heads (1) to (4) above<sup>28</sup>. Having regard to that assessment, it must either consent to the carrying out of the works absolutely or subject to such conditions as the authority considers appropriate<sup>29</sup>, or refuse consent to the works<sup>30</sup>; and must send to the drainage body a statement in writing of (A) the authority's determination and any conditions attached to it<sup>31</sup>; (B) the main reasons and considerations upon which this determination was based, including information about the public participation process<sup>32</sup>; and (c) where necessary, a description of the main measures to avoid, reduce and, if possible, offset the major adverse effects of the improvement works<sup>33</sup>. The drainage body must<sup>34</sup>, by notice in at least two local newspapers, or by such other means as are reasonable in the circumstances, inform the public of the appropriate authority's determination and give details of the place and times where the public may inspect a copy of the statement so sent to the drainage body<sup>35</sup>.

In relation to any determination made by itself or by the appropriate authority in accordance with these provisions, the drainage body must maintain a record of, and make available to the public on request, the following information: (aa) the content of the decision and any conditions attached thereto<sup>36</sup>; (bb) the main reasons and considerations on which the decision is based, including information about representations received in the course of the public participation process<sup>37</sup>; and (cc) a description, where necessary, of the main measures to avoid and reduce the major adverse effects<sup>38</sup>.

655. Enforcement.

If a drainage body<sup>1</sup> carries out improvement works<sup>2</sup>: (1) without complying with the prescribed requirements<sup>3</sup>; or (2) without the consent of the appropriate authority<sup>4</sup> where a proposal is referred to that authority<sup>5</sup>, or in breach of a condition to which such consent is subject<sup>6</sup>, the appropriate authority may apply to the court<sup>7</sup> for any of the following orders:

- 1359 (a) that the drainage body must not proceed further with the improvement works<sup>8</sup>;
- 1360 (b) that the drainage body must remove any work carried out<sup>9</sup>;
- 1361 (c) that the drainage body must reinstate the site in accordance with the reasonable requirements of the appropriate authority<sup>10</sup>.

An order made under head (b) or head (c) above may provide that, if the drainage body fails to comply with the order within a specified period, the appropriate authority may remove any work carried out and reinstate the site and may recover the reasonable costs and expenses of doing so from the drainage body as a debt due from that body<sup>11</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(2) FLOOD DEFENCE AND LAND DRAINAGE/(vi) Miscellaneous Provisions/656. Other land drainage powers of local authorities.

(vi) Miscellaneous Provisions

656. Other land drainage powers of local authorities.

A local authority<sup>1</sup> may contribute, or undertake to contribute, to the expenses of the carrying out or maintenance of any drainage works<sup>2</sup> by a drainage body<sup>3</sup> such an amount as, having regard to the public benefit to be derived from it, appears to the local authority to be proper<sup>4</sup>; and a local authority may borrow for the purpose of making such contributions<sup>5</sup>.

Under public health legislation local authorities<sup>6</sup> also have certain powers to control culverting and watercourses for purposes similar to land drainage purposes<sup>7</sup>. None of these powers may, however, be exercised by a local authority with respect to any stream, watercourse, ditch or culvert under the jurisdiction of a drainage body except after consultation with that body<sup>8</sup>. The owner or occupier of any land must repair, maintain and cleanse any culvert in, on or under that land, and if it appears to the local authority that any person<sup>9</sup> has failed to fulfil these obligations the authority may by notice require him to execute the necessary works of repair, maintenance or cleansing<sup>10</sup>.

A local highway authority may be liable in private nuisance to a landowner whose land suffers excessive flooding because a culvert constructed by the authority is no longer of adequate capacity to carry the natural flow of water from a stream under the highway<sup>11</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'local authority' includes references to the Sub-Treasurer of the Inner Temple and to the Under Treasurer of the Middle Temple: Land Drainage Act 1991 s 60(3). ### 657. Local inquiries and other hearings.

The Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>1</sup> have power to cause such inquiries to be held as they consider necessary or desirable for the purposes of the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>2</sup>. The person appointed to hold such an inquiry may: (1) by summons require any person<sup>3</sup> to attend, at a time and place stated in the summons, to give evidence or to produce any documents in his custody or under his control which relate to any matter in question at the inquiry<sup>4</sup>; and (2) take evidence on oath and for that purpose administer oaths<sup>5</sup>. Any person who: (a) refuses or deliberately fails to attend in obedience to a summons or to give evidence<sup>6</sup>; or (b) deliberately alters, suppresses, conceals, destroys or refuses to produce any book or other document which he is required or liable to be required to produce for these purposes<sup>7</sup>, is guilty of an offence<sup>8</sup>.

Where either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers cause an inquiry to be held, the costs incurred by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers in relation to the inquiry must be paid by such authority or party to the inquiry as the Secretary of State or Welsh Ministers may direct<sup>9</sup>. Where either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers cause an inquiry to be held, they may make orders as to the costs of the parties at the inquiry and as to the parties by whom the costs are to be paid<sup>10</sup>.

1 The statutory wording is 'each of the ministers'. 9 Land Drainage Act 1991 s 69(5)(a). The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may cause the amount of the costs so incurred to be certified (s 69(5)(b)); and any amount so certified and directed to be paid by any authority or person is recoverable from that authority or person by the Secretary of State or Welsh Ministers summarily as a civil debt (s 69(5)). The Housing and Planning Act 1986 s 42 (recovery of minister's costs in connection with inquiries: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 105) applies where either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers are authorised to recover costs so incurred by them in relation to an inquiry as it applies where a minister is so authorised by virtue of an enactment specified in s 42(1): Land Drainage Act 1991 s 69(7). As to prescribed standard daily amounts in respect of such costs see the Fees for Inquiries (Standard Daily Amount) (England) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2307; the Local Inquiries, Qualifying Inquiries and Qualifying Procedures (Standard Daily Amount) (Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/728.

659. Flood defence in the London area.

The general flood defence and land drainage powers conferred by the Water Resources Act 1991 and the Land Drainage Act 1991 on the Environment Agency and local authorities<sup>1</sup> now apply to watercourses within the former London excluded area<sup>2</sup>, depending on the status of those watercourses<sup>3</sup>. In addition to those powers, the Environment Agency also has power to execute and maintain flood defence works with respect to certain rivers in the London area by virtue of various local enactments<sup>4</sup>.

In the exercise of powers conferred by the Thames Barrier and Flood Prevention Act 1972, the former Greater London Council carried out works to provide a flood barrier with movable flood gates across the River Thames in Woolwich Reach<sup>5</sup>. Responsibility for the operation of this flood barrier has now passed to the Environment Agency<sup>6</sup>, which has powers to use and operate the barrier and, in particular, to close the barrier gates for such periods as it considers necessary or desirable<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to such powers see PARA 573 et seq. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 As to the former 'London excluded area' see the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 116(1), defining the 'London excluded area' as so much of Greater London and of any area adjoining Greater London as did not, on 31 March 1986, lie, for the purpose of the exercise of land drainage functions, within the area of any water authority (definition substituted by SI 1986/208).

3 I.e. depending on whether a watercourse is main river (in relation to which functions are exercisable by the Agency) (see PARA 574), an 'ordinary watercourse' (see PARA 573 note 16), a metropolitan watercourse or a main metropolitan watercourse.

4 As to these local enactments and the rivers to which they apply see the Land Drainage Act 1976 s 105, Sch 5 paras 1, 2. As to flood defence in the London area see further LONDON GOVERNMENT.

5 See the Thames Barrier and Flood Prevention Act 1972 s 18; and LONDON GOVERNMENT.

6 The Thames Barrier, and all other property held by the former Greater London Council for the purposes of the Thames Barrier and Flood Prevention Act 1972, vested, following the abolition of that council on 1 April 1986 (see the Local Government Act 1985 s 1(1)(a), (2)), in the former Thames Water Authority: see the Local Government Reorganisation (Property etc) Order 1986, SI 1986/148 art 20. The functions formerly exercisable by the council under the 1972 Act became exercisable by that authority: see the Thames Barrier and Flood Prevention Act 1972 (Amendment) Order 1986, SI 1986/227, art 2. That authority was subsequently abolished and its functions transferred to the National Rivers Authority (now abolished) and thence to the Environment Agency.

660. Protection for flood defences etc used under local statutory provisions.

The provisions of the Water Industry Act 1991 and the Water Resources Act 1991 do not confer upon any person<sup>1</sup> power to do anything, except with the consent of the person so using them, which interferes with any sluices, floodgates, groynes, sea defences or other works used by any person for draining, preserving or improving any land<sup>2</sup> under any local statutory provision<sup>3</sup>, or with any such works used by any person for irrigating any land<sup>4</sup>. A consent for these purposes may be given subject to reasonable conditions but may not be unreasonably withheld<sup>5</sup>. Any dispute as to whether anything done or proposed to be done interferes or will interfere as mentioned<sup>6</sup> above<sup>7</sup>, as to whether any consent for these purposes is being unreasonably withheld<sup>8</sup>, or as to whether any condition subject to which any such consent has been given was reasonable<sup>9</sup>, must be referred to the arbitration of a single arbitrator to be appointed by agreement between the parties or, in default of agreement, by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers<sup>10</sup>.

(3) DAMAGE BY WATER

(i) Introduction

662. General principles of liability.

The principles governing liability for damage caused by the escape of water, whether from land, buildings or public or private water supply systems, are part of and derived from the law relating to negligence<sup>1</sup> or, in the absence of negligence, the law relating to nuisance<sup>2</sup> and the rule in Rylands v Fletcher<sup>3</sup>. Damage arising as the result of the pollution of water is dealt with elsewhere in this work<sup>4</sup>.

Water undertakers<sup>5</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>6</sup> and other persons<sup>7</sup> having control of land or waterworks may be liable for damage caused by the escape of water under the Water Industry Act 1991 or the Water Resources Act 1991<sup>8</sup>, or under other statutory provisions<sup>9</sup>.

Liability in relation to escapes of water may also be affected by the terms of deeds, covenants, easements or other arrangements made between the water undertakers or the Agency and other persons, such as landowners<sup>10</sup>.

A riparian owner is entitled to raise his banks from time to time as may be necessary, so as to confine the flood water within the banks and to prevent it overflowing his land, provided that by doing so he does not occasion any injury to the land or property of other persons<sup>11</sup>. Where a tidal river is kept from overflowing by an artificial river wall protecting land the level of which is below that of high-water mark, failure by a riparian owner to keep his frontage up to the level of the rest of the river wall may render him liable in damages if his frontage is overtopped and the property of a neighbouring landowner is damaged<sup>12</sup>. Similarly, a provision in an Act of Parliament which requires the promoters to maintain and keep the banks of a watercourse in good and sufficient repair, and from time to time to strengthen and support them for containing the water, so that the adjacent land is not overflowed or damaged by water except in the case of flood may impose an absolute obligation on the promoters and their successors to protect the adjoining land from injury<sup>13</sup>. Further, under the 'common enemy rule'<sup>14</sup>, a landowner may erect defences the effect of which will be that water which would otherwise have flowed onto his land will be diverted onto that of his neighbours, provided that: (1) there is no interference with an established watercourse; and (2) the landowner does not thereby cause water which has already or will in any event come onto his land to flow from it onto that of his neighbour<sup>15</sup>.

It has been held that the word 'flood' as an insured peril in a householder's insurance policy should, save for any constraint in its context in the policy, be given its ordinary and natural meaning, and should not be construed by reference to a list of rigid criteria or without regard to the size and nature of the property insured<sup>16</sup>.

In determining whether or not the escape of water gives rise to liability for damage caused thereby, a distinction has traditionally been drawn between naturally flowing water and artificial water features, and the discussion in the following paragraphs preserves this distinction<sup>17</sup>; but the Court of Appeal has recently cast some doubt on its utility<sup>18</sup>.

(ii) Flooding from Natural Watercourses

663. Escape of water naturally on land in the course of ordinary use.

It has traditionally been held that an owner or occupier of land is not liable for the consequences of the escape from his land, either on the surface or underground, of water which has flowed to it or collected there naturally<sup>1</sup>, if the escape occurred in the ordinary and proper<sup>2</sup> use of the land<sup>3</sup>. However, the Court of Appeal has recently ruled that there is no authority for the proposition that no duty of care arises in relation to a hazard where that hazard is naturally flowing water; the expression 'naturally flowing water' is capable of bearing more than one meaning and, in the context of the English landscape, a distinction between 'natural' and 'artificial' features is an inherently uncertain foundation on which to rest a decision as to the existence of liability in nuisance<sup>4</sup>.

664. Escape of water amounting to nuisance or caused by negligence or wilful act.

Although an owner or occupier of land is not liable for the escape of water in the course of the ordinary and proper use of the land<sup>1</sup>, he may be liable if an escape of water from his land occurs in circumstances amounting to a nuisance<sup>2</sup>, or if the escape is caused by his negligence<sup>3</sup> or by a wilful act on his part which is not within the ordinary or natural use of the land<sup>4</sup>.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(ii) Flooding from Natural Watercourses/665. Damage due to diversion or silting up of stream.

665. Damage due to diversion or silting up of stream.

A person who alters the course of a natural stream will be liable for damage caused by water which escapes or overflows from the new channel due to the inadequacy or defective construction of the new channel<sup>1</sup>.

The owner of the bed of a natural watercourse or of an artificial channel is not liable at common law for damage done by water which has overflowed from the watercourse or channel because of the natural and gradual silting up of the bed and the growth of weeds<sup>2</sup>.

The 'common enemy rule' whereby a landowner is permitted to erect flood defences without being liable in nuisance<sup>3</sup> does not permit interference with an established watercourse<sup>4</sup>.

666. Protection from flood water; entry for repairs.

Provided he does not divert the flow of a river from its normal course in time of flood<sup>1</sup>, an owner or occupier of land may take action to prevent flood water from reaching his land, and may construct an embankment for that purpose even though the amount of water flowing over neighbouring land in time of heavy flood is thereby increased<sup>2</sup>. However, if flood water has collected on land, the owner or occupier may be liable for any damage caused if the water escapes by reason of a wilful act on his part which is not within the ordinary or natural use of the land<sup>3</sup>. An owner of land on the seaward side of a sea wall<sup>4</sup> vested in a drainage board<sup>5</sup> is not entitled to permit water to escape from his land through the sea wall<sup>6</sup>.

A person who is responsible for the safekeeping of water is entitled to enter on land to do the necessary repairs<sup>7</sup>. No prescriptive right is acquired in respect of water which escapes because of lack of repairs<sup>8</sup>.

The position would be different if there was a statutory duty to maintain the barrier: Coe v Wise (1864) 33 LJQB 281 at 288 per Blackburn J (affd (1866) LR 1 QB 711, Ex Ch); applied in Sephton v Lancashire River Board [1962] 1 All ER 183, [1962] 1 WLR 623. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters/667. Escape of water artificially accumulated on land.

(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters

667. Escape of water artificially accumulated on land.

By the rule in Rylands v Fletcher a person who for his own purposes brings onto his land and collects and keeps there anything likely to do mischief if it escapes, keeps it in at his peril; and prima facie he is liable for all damage which is the natural consequence of its escape<sup>1</sup>. Thus, if an owner or occupier brings water to his land or collects or accumulates it there for his own convenience to an extent greater than would occur naturally<sup>2</sup>, he is prima facie liable, whether he is negligent or not<sup>3</sup>, for all damage<sup>4</sup> which is the natural consequence of its escape<sup>5</sup> or overflow<sup>6</sup>. His liability in this respect is not diminished because he has granted to a neighbour rights to use and regulate the flow of the water so collected<sup>7</sup>. Liability under this rule is strict and it is no defence that the thing escaped without his wilful act, default or neglect or even that he has no knowledge of its existence<sup>8</sup>.

However, the rule does not apply to things naturally on the land<sup>9</sup>; nor is an owner or occupier liable under the rule for damage caused by the escape of water which he has accumulated on or brought to his land where the escape, or the damage resulting from it, is due to: (1) an act of God<sup>10</sup>; (2) the act of a stranger over whose acts the owner or occupier has no control and which was not an act which he ought reasonably to have foreseen and guarded against<sup>11</sup>; or (3) the act or default of the person who suffered the damage<sup>12</sup>. An owner or occupier is not liable for the consequences of the escape from his land of water which was collected and impounded there by, and for the purpose of, another person<sup>13</sup> or with the consent of the injured person and for his benefit<sup>14</sup>. Liability may also be avoided in certain cases where there is statutory authority<sup>15</sup>.

The House of Lords has recently reaffirmed that the rule in Rylands v Fletcher is not to be abrogated or treated as absorbed by the principles of ordinary negligence, but is rather to be regarded as a species of nuisance<sup>16</sup>.

Where water has been brought artificially to a building for the use of the occupants, and then escapes, the person who has possession and control of the water, or of the apparatus from which it has escaped, is not liable for any damage suffered by an occupant by reason of the escape unless such escape was due to his negligence or that of his employee for which he is responsible under the rules relating to vicarious liability<sup>1</sup>. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters/669. Roof water drainage.

669. Roof water drainage.

It is an actionable nuisance for a person to allow water from his eaves and gutters to fall on his neighbour's land or house<sup>1</sup>, but a right to do so may be acquired as an easement in the same way as other easements are acquired<sup>2</sup>. However, a claim does not lie for damage caused by the escape of roof water from a tank in circumstances beyond the control of the owner<sup>3</sup>, or because of an arrangement to which the injured party has consented<sup>4</sup>.

On the other hand, if damage is caused to a tenant of part of a building because a rain water gutter has become blocked and the owner of the building has been warned of the danger, the owner, being in possession and control of the gutter, may be liable in damages to the tenant<sup>5</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters/670. Liability and statutory authority.

670. Liability and statutory authority.

The fact that an act which causes injury is done under statutory authority will not afford a defence to the person performing it in a claim by the person injured where there is negligence or want of proper precaution in doing the act<sup>1</sup>. Water undertakers<sup>2</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>3</sup> and others who are entitled by statute to accumulate water artificially are not normally<sup>4</sup> liable except for acts which are not authorised directly or by implication, or for acts which, although authorised, are negligently performed<sup>5</sup>.

Thus, where water is brought to or collected on land in the exercise of statutory powers, in the absence of negligence<sup>6</sup>, the undertaker or the Agency is liable for damage done by its escape only if the undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency is expressly made liable for nuisance, or not exempted from liability, by the empowering statute<sup>7</sup>. The empowering statute<sup>8</sup> may, however, expressly provide that the undertaker or the Agency, even if not negligent, remains liable for nuisance caused by the exercise of the powers<sup>9</sup>.

Where the nuisance is attributable to the performance by the undertaker or the Agency of a duty imposed by statute, as distinct from the exercise of a power conferred by statute, the undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency is only liable if the duty is negligently performed<sup>10</sup> and is not liable in the absence of negligence<sup>11</sup> even if by statute it is expressly made liable for nuisance, or is not exempted from liability for nuisance<sup>12</sup>. The common law of nuisance does not impose obligations on a statutory sewerage undertaker<sup>13</sup> inconsistent with the statutory scheme of the Water Industry Act 1991<sup>14</sup>, and that statutory scheme is not unreasonable in its impact on householders whose properties are periodically subject to sewer flooding; a fair balance has to be struck between the interests of the individual and of the community as a whole<sup>15</sup>.

As to liability for loss or damage caused by an escape of water from a pipe vested in a water undertaker or the Agency see PARA 672. As to the vesting of pipes in a water undertaker or the Agency see PARA 464.

Where a canal or waterworks company is guilty of an act which is not authorised, and the remedy for it is provided by the statute from which the company draws its powers, that remedy must be employed; in some cases the statute appears to contemplate that there may also be an action for negligence: Evans v Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Rly Co (1887) 36 ChD 626.

6 Geddis v Bann Reservoir Proprietors (1878) 3 App Cas 430, HL. For these purposes, references to liability in nuisance include liability under the rule in Rylands v Fletcher (1868) LR 3 HL 330 (as to which see PARA 667; and NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 148 et seq): Department of Transport v North West Water Authority (see above).

See also note 7; and ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 187.

10 Thus, where the damage is attributable to the obligation of a water undertaker to maintain water under pressure in its pipes by virtue of the Water Industry Act 1991 ss 65-66 (see PARA 353), or to the performance of its duty to supply water under s 52 (see PARA 339) or s 55 (see PARA 347), the undertaker is not liable unless negligent.

FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters/671. Liability in respect of reservoirs constructed under statutory powers.

671. Liability in respect of reservoirs constructed under statutory powers.

In the case of certain reservoirs the rule of strict liability applies<sup>1</sup>. Where damage or injury is caused by the escape of water from a reservoir constructed after 1930<sup>2</sup> under statutory powers granted after July 1930<sup>3</sup>, the fact that the reservoir was so constructed does not exonerate the persons<sup>4</sup> for the time being having the management and control of the reservoir from any indictment, action or other proceedings<sup>5</sup> to which they would otherwise have been liable<sup>6</sup>.

<sup>6</sup> Reservoirs (Safety Provisions) Act 1930 s 7, as continued by the Reservoirs Act 1975 s 28(2), Sch 2: see PARA 301. This provision excludes the defence (which would otherwise be available) of statutory authority. As to liability and statutory authority see PARA 670.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/9. FLOOD DEFENCE, LAND DRAINAGE, AND DAMAGE BY WATER/(3) DAMAGE BY WATER/(iii) Flooding from Artificial Watercourses, Pipes and Gutters/672. Liability for loss or damage caused by escape of water from pipes vested in water undertakers or the Environment Agency.

672. Liability for loss or damage caused by escape of water from pipes vested in water undertakers or the Environment Agency.

Where an escape of water, however caused, from a pipe<sup>1</sup> vested<sup>2</sup> in a water undertaker<sup>3</sup> or in the Environment Agency<sup>4</sup> causes loss or damage<sup>5</sup>, the undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency is liable<sup>6</sup>, subject to the exceptions mentioned below, for the loss or damage<sup>7</sup>.

A water undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency does not incur any liability for such loss or damage if the escape was due wholly to the fault of the person who sustained the loss or damage or of any servant, agent or contractor of that person<sup>8</sup>. Nor does a water undertaker, or the Agency, incur any liability under these provisions in respect of any loss or damage for which the undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency would not otherwise be liable and which is sustained: (1) in relation to the liability of a water undertaker, by the Agency<sup>9</sup>; or (2) in relation to the liability of a water undertaker or of the Agency, by a relevant undertaker<sup>10</sup> or by other specified undertakers, bodies or persons<sup>11</sup>.

Special provision is made with respect to civil liability for pollution<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'pipe' in the Water Industry Act 1991 see PARA 138 note 11; and in the Water Resources Act 1991 see PARA 187 note 2.

2 As to the vesting of pipes see PARA 464.

3 As to the meaning of 'water undertaker' see PARA 137 note 4. As to the duty on a sewerage undertaker to carry out certain of its functions so as not to create a nuisance see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 1069.

4 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

5 As to the meaning of 'damage' see PARA 129 note 7.

6 The Law Reform (Contributory Negligence) Act 1945 (see NEGLIGENCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 75 et seq), the Fatal Accidents Act 1976 (see NEGLIGENCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 24 et seq) and the Limitation Act 1980 (see LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 901 et seq) apply in relation to any loss or damage for which a water undertaker or the Agency is liable under these provisions but which is not due to the undertaker's or agency's fault, as if it were due to its fault: Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(4); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(4) (s 208(1)-(6) amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120, Sch 22 para 128). For these purposes, 'fault' means negligence, breach of statutory duty or other act or omission which gives rise to a liability in tort or would give rise, apart from the Law Reform (Contributory Negligence) Act 1945, to the defence of contributory negligence: s 4 (definition applied by the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(7); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(7)).

7 Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(1); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(1) (as amended: see note 6). These provisions amend the rule of law whereby an action does not lie against a body exercising statutory powers without negligence in respect of the flooding of land by water escaping from water pipes: see Green v Chelsea Waterworks Co (1894) 70 LT 547; and PARA 670.

Nothing in the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(1) or in the Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(1) affects any entitlement which a water undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency may have to recover contribution under the Civil Liability (Contribution) Act 1978 (see DAMAGES vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 837 et seq), and for the purpose of that Act any loss for which a water undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency is liable under these provisions is treated as if it were damage: Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(5); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(5) (as so amended). Where a water undertaker or the Agency is liable under any enactment or agreement passed or made before 1 April 1982 (the date on which Water Act 1981 s 6 (now repealed) came into force and containing the equivalent of the provisions that are now contained in the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209 and the Water Resources Act 1991 s 208) to make any payment in respect of any loss or damage, the undertaker or agency does not incur liability under the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(1) or the Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(1) in respect of the same loss or damage: Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(6); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(6) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

The Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(1) does not have the effect of extending liability beyond liability in negligence and, as a result, 'loss or damage' must be interpreted as being restricted to any loss or damage to property: Anglian Water Services Ltd v Crawshaw Robbins & Co Ltd [2001] BLR 173, [2001] All ER (D) 59 (Feb). If there has been an escape of water that has caused some physical damage then prima facie it is only the cost of reinstatement of that physical damage which is recoverable: Skandia Property (UK) v Thames Water Utilities Ltd [1999] All ER (D) 881, CA (decided under previous legislation). As to causation under the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(1) see Harvey Nichols & Co Ltd v Thames Water Utilities Ltd [1999] All ER (D) 1272.

8 Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(2); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(2) (as amended: see note 6). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

9 Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(3)(a) (s 209(3) amended by the Environment Act 1995 Sch 22 para 122).

11 See the Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(3) (as amended: see note 9); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(3) (as amended: see note 6). The specified undertakers, bodies or persons are: (1) any statutory undertakers within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 336(1) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1009); (2) any gas transporter within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 805); (3) the holder of a licence under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1) (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1065); (4) any highway authority (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 49 et seq); or (5) any person on whom a right to compensation is conferred by the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 82 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 472); Water Industry Act 1991 s 209(3)(a)-(d) (s 209(3)(a) as so amended; s 209(3)(b) amended by virtue of the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 2(2)(m); the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)); Water Resources Act 1991 s 208(3)(a)-(d) (s 208(3)(b) amended by virtue of the Gas Act 1995 Sch 4 para 2(2)(n); the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)).

673. Damage by seepage.

Where by an artificial erection<sup>1</sup> on his land a person causes water to seep into his neighbour's land, he is liable for any injury caused to his neighbour by that seepage<sup>2</sup> unless the injury is the consequence of the natural user by a person of his land<sup>3</sup>, such as the excavating and raising of minerals<sup>4</sup>. Although an owner of mining rights may not be liable for damage caused by water which reaches his neighbour's mine by percolation<sup>5</sup>, he is liable if damage results from his causing a greater quantity of water to flow to his neighbour's mine than would naturally gravitate there<sup>6</sup>.

1 Such an erection has been described as an artificial work which collects the water, in the nature of an artificial sponge, which absorbs it and keeps it together, until it oozes out by reason of the nature of the sponge: Broder v Saillard (1876) 2 ChD 692 at 700 per Jessel MR.

2 Hurdman v North Eastern Rly Co (1878) 3 CPD 168, CA, where rubble placed against a boundary wall to raise the level of the railway land caused rainwater to percolate through the wall into the plaintiff's house, and the defendants were held to be liable for the damage, following Broder v Saillard (1876) 2 ChD 692. See also PARA 664 note 2.

A person may work his mine in the manner most convenient and beneficial to himself even if the natural consequence is that some prejudice will accrue to the owner of an adjoining mine, so long as that does not arise from negligent or malicious conduct: Smith v Kenrick (1849) 7 CB 515 at 564 per Cresswell J.

10. AMENITY, RECREATION AND ENVIRONMENT

(1) THE WATER ENVIRONMENT

674. European Community legislation.

The Water Framework Directive<sup>1</sup>, which has already been discussed, states in its preamble that water is not a commercial product like any other but, rather, a heritage which must be protected, defended and treated as such<sup>2</sup>. The Directive requires member states to establish a programme of measures for each river basin which will implement the environmental objectives set out in the Directive<sup>3</sup>.

A number of European Directives dealing with water pollution have an impact on the water environment<sup>4</sup>. Additionally, Directives such as the Habitats Directive<sup>5</sup> and the Wild Birds Directive<sup>6</sup>, and the regulations which have been made for the purpose of implementing them<sup>7</sup>, affect the water environment. Certain water or water-related plans and projects require environmental assessment under regulations made for the purpose of implementing the relevant Directive<sup>8</sup> on the assessment of the effects of certain public and private projects on the environment<sup>9</sup>.

The Directive on Public Access to Environmental Information 2003<sup>10</sup> has as its objectives to guarantee the right of access to environmental information<sup>11</sup> held by or for public authorities<sup>12</sup> and to ensure that such information is progressively made available and disseminated to the public<sup>13</sup>.

The Directive on environmental liability with regard to the prevention and remedying of environmental damage<sup>14</sup> aims to establish a framework of environmental liability based on the 'polluter-pays' principle, to prevent and remedy environmental damage<sup>15</sup>, and applies, inter alia, to damage to water<sup>16</sup>. Regulations have been made for the purpose of implementing the Directive and these are covered in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>17</sup>.

10 The European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4 (OJ L41, 14.02.2003, p 26) of 28 January 2003 on public access to environmental information. The Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, have been made for the purpose of implementing the Directive: see PARAS 680-681. The Directive repealed EC Council Directive 90/313 (OJ L158, 23.06.90, p 56) (see European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4 (OJ L41, 14.02.2003, p 26) art 11) which initiated a process of change in the manner in which public authorities approach the issue of openness and transparency, establishing measures for the exercise of the right of public access to environmental information: see European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4, preamble para (2).

11 For these purposes, 'environmental information' means any information in written, visual, aural, electronic or any other material form on: (1) the state of the elements of the environment, such as air and atmosphere, water, soil, land, landscape and natural sites including wetlands, coastal and marine areas, biological diversity and its components, including genetically modified organisms, and the interaction among these elements; (2) factors, such as substances, energy, noise, radiation or waste, including radioactive waste, emissions, discharges and other releases into the environment, affecting or likely to affect the elements of the environment referred to in head (1) above; (3) measures (including administrative measures), such as policies, legislation, plans, programmes, environmental agreements, and activities affecting or likely to affect the elements and factors referred to in heads (1) and (2) above as well as measures or activities designed to protect those elements; (4) reports on the implementation of environmental legislation; (5) cost-benefit and other economic analyses and assumptions used within the framework of the measures and activities referred to in head (3) above; and (6) the state of human health and safety, including the contamination of the food chain, where relevant, conditions of human life, cultural sites and built structures inasmuch as they are or may be affected by the state of the elements of the environment referred to in head (1) above or, through those elements, by any of the matters referred to in heads (2) and (3) above: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4, art 2.1. See also Case C-321/96 Mecklenberg v Kreis Pinneberg-Der Landrat [1999] All ER (EC) 166, [1998] ECR I-3809, ECJ (meaning of 'environmental information' for purposes of the earlier Directive cited in note 10); C-316/01 Glawischnig v Bundesminister für soziale Sicherheit und Generationen [2003] ECR I-5995, [2003] All ER (D) 147 (Jun) (while the concept of 'information relating to the environment' as defined in the Directive, was a broad one it did not include all information held by public authorities which had a connection, however minimal, with one of the environmental factors mentioned in that definition).

12 'Public authority' means: (1) government or other public administration, including public advisory bodies, at national, regional or local level; (2) any natural or legal person performing public administrative functions under national law, including specific duties, activities or services in relation to the environment; and (3) any natural or legal person having public responsibilities or functions, or providing public services, relating to the environment under the control of a body or person falling within head (1) or (2) above: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4, art 2.2. 'Information held by a public authority' means environmental information in its possession which has been produced or received by that authority: art 2.3. 'Information held for a public authority' means environmental information which is physically held by a natural or legal person on behalf of a public authority: art 2.4.

13 See European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4 (OJ L41, 14.02.2003, p 26) art 1. To this end the use, in particular, of computer telecommunication and/or electronic technology, where available, is to be promoted: art 1. 'Public' means one or more natural or legal persons, and, in accordance with national legislation or practice, their associations, organisations or groups: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/4, art 2.5.

675. General environmental duties under domestic legislation.

Under the Environment Act 1995, the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> has a general duty to promote the conservation and enhancement of the natural beauty and amenity of inland and coastal waters and of land associated with such waters, and the conservation of flora and fauna which are dependent on an aquatic environment<sup>2</sup>. The Agency is also subject to a general duty, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any its functions, to exercise any power conferred on it with respect to the proposals so as to further the conservation and enhancement of the environment<sup>3</sup>.

Water and sewerage undertakers<sup>4</sup>, land drainage bodies<sup>5</sup>, and local authorities<sup>6</sup> have very similar duties under the water industry and land drainage legislation. Similar duties are imposed on the Secretary of State<sup>7</sup> and the Welsh Ministers<sup>8</sup>; and the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers have power to issue and approve codes of practice giving practical guidance to the Agency and the other bodies as to the exercise of these duties and to promote desirable practices in relation to them<sup>9</sup>. They also have power to issue guidance about the making by the Water Services Regulation Authority<sup>10</sup> of a contribution towards the attainment of any social or environmental policies set out or referred to in the guidance<sup>11</sup>.

It is the duty of:

- 1362 (1) the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup>;
- 1363 (2) the Water Services Regulation Authority<sup>3</sup>; and
- 1364 (3) every company holding an appointment as a relevant undertaker<sup>4</sup>, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions<sup>5</sup> of a relevant undertaker (including, in the case of such a company, any functions which, by virtue of that appointment, are functions of the company itself) to comply with the requirements imposed in relation to the proposals by the following provisions<sup>6</sup>. The requirements so imposed are:

- 1365 (a) a requirement<sup>7</sup> so to exercise any power conferred with respect to the proposals on the person<sup>8</sup> subject to the requirement as to further the conservation and enhancement of natural beauty and the conservation of flora, fauna and geological or physiographical features of special interest and, in the case of the exercise of such a power by a company holding an appointment as a relevant undertaker, as to further water conservation<sup>9</sup>;
  - 1366 (b) a requirement to have regard to the desirability of protecting and conserving buildings<sup>10</sup>, sites and objects of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>11</sup>; and
  - 1367 (c) a requirement to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on the beauty or amenity of any rural or urban area or on any such flora, fauna, features, buildings, sites or objects<sup>12</sup>; and
  - 1368 (d) subject to the requirements imposed by heads (a) to (c) above:
- 66
- 20. (i) a requirement to have regard to the desirability of preserving for the public any freedom of access to areas of woodland, mountains, moor, heath, down, cliff or foreshore and other places of natural beauty<sup>13</sup>;
  - 21. (ii) a requirement to have regard to the desirability of maintaining the availability to the public of any facility for visiting or inspecting any building, site or object of archaeological, architectural or historic interest<sup>14</sup>; and
  - 22. (iii) a requirement to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on any such freedom of access or on the availability of any such facility<sup>15</sup>.

The above provisions apply so as to impose duties on the Water Services Regulation Authority and any company holding an appointment as a relevant undertaker in relation to any proposal relating to the functions of the Environment Agency<sup>16</sup>, or the functions of an internal drainage board<sup>17</sup>, as they apply in relation to any proposals relating to the functions of such an undertaker<sup>18</sup>.

Subject to obtaining the consent of any navigation authority<sup>19</sup>, harbour authority<sup>20</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>21</sup> before doing anything which causes navigation which is subject to the control of that authority to be obstructed or otherwise interfered with, it is the duty of every company holding an appointment as a relevant undertaker to take such steps as are reasonably practicable<sup>22</sup>, and consistent with the purposes of the enactments relating to the functions of the undertaker in question<sup>23</sup>, for securing, so long as that company has rights to the use of water or land associated with water, that those rights are exercised so as to ensure that the water or land is made available for recreational purposes and is so made available in the best manner<sup>24</sup>.

The obligations under the above provisions of a company holding an appointment as a relevant undertaker are enforceable<sup>25</sup> by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers<sup>26</sup>; but nothing in the Water Industry Act 1991<sup>27</sup> requires recreational facilities made available by a relevant undertaker to be made available free of charge<sup>28</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 Water Industry Act 1991 s 3(1)(a). The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Industry Act 1991 s 3, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales and were exercisable by the Assembly to the same extent as the powers, duties and other provisions to which that section applies were exercisable by the Assembly: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

5 For these purposes, references to the functions of a relevant undertaker are to be construed, without prejudice to the Water Industry Act 1991 s 156(7) (see PARA 454), as if those functions included the management, by a company holding an appointment as such an undertaker, of any land for the time being held by that company for any purpose whatever, whether or not connected with the carrying out of the functions of a relevant undertaker: s 3(9). As to the meaning of 'functions' generally see PARA 133 note 5. As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 14 note 21.

6 Water Industry Act 1991 s 3(1) (amended by SI 2002/794).

7 In so far as may be consistent: (1) with the purposes of any enactment relating to the functions of the undertaker (Water Industry Act 1991 s 3(2)(a)(i)); and (2) in the case of the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers and the Water Services Regulation Authority, with their duties under the Water Industry Act 1991 s 2 (see PARA 130) (Water Industry Act 1991 s 3(2)(a)(ii) (amended by the Water Act 2003 s 36(2))). AMENITY, RECREATION AND ENVIRONMENT/(1) THE WATER ENVIRONMENT/677. Environmental duties under the Water Industry Act 1991 in relation to sites of special interest.

677. Environmental duties under the Water Industry Act 1991 in relation to sites of special interest.

Where Natural England or the Countryside Council for Wales<sup>1</sup> is of the opinion that any land<sup>2</sup> in England<sup>3</sup> or, as the case may be, in Wales<sup>4</sup> is of special interest by reason of its flora, fauna or geological or physiographical features<sup>5</sup>, and may at any time be affected by schemes, works, operations or activities of a relevant undertaker<sup>6</sup>, Natural England or (as the case may be) the Council must notify the fact that the land is of special interest for that reason to every relevant undertaker whose works, operations or activities may affect the land<sup>7</sup>. Similarly, where a National Park authority<sup>8</sup> or the Broads Authority<sup>9</sup> is of the opinion that any area of land in a National Park or in the Broads<sup>10</sup> is land in relation to which certain environmental matters<sup>11</sup> are of particular importance<sup>12</sup>, and may at any time be affected by schemes, works, operations or activities of a relevant undertaker<sup>13</sup>, that authority must notify every relevant undertaker whose works, operations or activities may affect the land, of the fact that the land is such land, and of the reasons why those matters are of particular importance in relation to that land<sup>14</sup>.

Where a relevant undertaker has received any such notification with respect to any land, it must consult<sup>15</sup> the notifying body before carrying out any works, operations or activities which appear to that undertaker likely: (1) to destroy or damage any of the flora, fauna or geological or physiographical features by reason of which the land is of special interest<sup>16</sup>; or (2) significantly to prejudice anything the importance of which is one of the reasons why the specified environmental matters<sup>17</sup> are of particular importance in relation to that land<sup>18</sup>. This requirement for consultation does not, however, apply in relation to anything done in an emergency where particulars of what is done and of the emergency are notified to the appropriate body<sup>19</sup> as soon as practicable after that thing is done<sup>20</sup>.

Similar provision is made by the Environment Act 1995 with respect to sites of special interest which may be affected by schemes, works, operations or activities of the Environment Agency<sup>24</sup> or by an authorisation given by that Agency<sup>25</sup>.

AMENITY, RECREATION AND ENVIRONMENT/(1) THE WATER ENVIRONMENT/678. Codes of practice under the Water Industry Act 1991 with respect to environmental and recreational duties.

678. Codes of practice under the Water Industry Act 1991 with respect to environmental and recreational duties.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup>, may by order<sup>3</sup> approve any code of practice issued (whether by them or by another person<sup>4</sup>) for the purpose of:

- 1369 (1) giving practical guidance to relevant undertakers<sup>5</sup> with respect to any of the specified environmental matters<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1370 (2) promoting what appear to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to be desirable practices by such undertakers with respect to those matters<sup>7</sup>, and may at any time by such an order approve a modification<sup>8</sup> of such a code or withdraw approval of such a code or modification<sup>9</sup>. The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may not, however, make such an order unless they have first consulted<sup>10</sup>:

- 1371 (a) the Environment Agency<sup>11</sup>;
- 1372 (b) Natural England and the Countryside Council for Wales<sup>12</sup>;
- 1373 (c) the Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission for England<sup>13</sup>;
- 1374 (d) the Sports Council and the Sports Council for Wales<sup>14</sup>; and
- 1375 (e) such relevant undertakers and other persons as the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers consider it appropriate to consult<sup>15</sup>.

A contravention<sup>16</sup> of a code of practice as for the time being so approved does not of itself constitute a contravention of any requirement imposed by the general environmental and recreation duties of relevant undertakers<sup>17</sup> or give rise to any criminal or civil liability; but the Secretary of State and the Welsh Ministers are under a duty to take into account whether there has been or is likely to be any such contravention in determining when and how they should exercise their statutory powers<sup>18</sup> in relation to any relevant undertaker<sup>19</sup>.

Under the Environment Act 1995, there are similar powers to approve codes of practice in relation to the Environment Agency<sup>20</sup>; and codes of practice may also be approved in relation to internal drainage boards and local authorities exercising land drainage functions<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Industry Act 1991 s 5, in relation to any water or sewerage undertaker whose area is wholly or mainly in Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. 3 The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject, in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see the Water Industry Act 1991 s 5(3). ## 679. Conservation of natural habitats.

The Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994<sup>1</sup> have been made for the purpose of implementing, for Great Britain<sup>2</sup>, the Habitats Directive<sup>3</sup> and the Wild Birds Directive<sup>4</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> and the Welsh Ministers<sup>6</sup> must exercise their functions<sup>7</sup> relating to nature conservation, including those under the regulations, so as to secure compliance with the requirements of these Directives<sup>8</sup>; and they and every other competent authority<sup>9</sup> in the exercise of any of their functions, must have regard to the requirements of these Directives so far as they may be affected by the exercise of those functions<sup>10</sup>. In relation to marine areas<sup>11</sup> any competent authority having functions relevant to marine conservation must exercise those functions so as to secure compliance with the requirements of the Directives<sup>12</sup>. The regulations are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>13</sup>.

The Offshore Marine Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c) Regulations 2007<sup>14</sup> have been made for the purpose of implementing the Wild Birds Directive and the Habitats Directive in relation to marine areas where the United Kingdom has jurisdiction beyond its territorial sea. It is the duty, in relation to those areas covered by the regulations, of any competent authority<sup>15</sup> having functions relevant to marine conservation to exercise those functions so as to secure compliance with the requirements of the Habitats Directive and the Wild Birds Directive<sup>16</sup>. The regulations are discussed in detail elsewhere in this work<sup>17</sup>.

Under regulations made for the purpose of implementing the common agricultural policy, aid is payable to an eligible person<sup>18</sup> who undertakes not to use eligible land on water fringes for agricultural production, and to manage it and any features bordering on it in accordance with the prescribed requirements<sup>19</sup> for the management period<sup>20</sup>. Aid is also available for the establishment of salt-marshes in England<sup>21</sup> and for the setting aside and management of coastal belt land in Wales<sup>22</sup>. The relevant provisions are discussed elsewhere in this work<sup>23</sup>.

The correct interpretation of the Habitats Directive is that it extends beyond the area of territorial waters to those waters within national jurisdiction; the confinement of the scope of the regulations to territorial waters fails to give full effect to the Directive: see R v Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, ex p Greenpeace Ltd (2000) Times, 19 January, [1999] All ER (D) 1232. ### 679 Conservation of natural habitats

NOTES 11,14-16--As to the power of marine enforcement officers to enforce nature conservation legislation see Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 s 237(1), (2); and PARA 30F.3.

NOTE 12--SI 1994/2716 reg 3(3) amended to include the Planning Act 2008: SI 2009/2438.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/10. AMENITY, RECREATION AND ENVIRONMENT/(1) THE WATER ENVIRONMENT/680. Access to environmental information held by public authorities.

680. Access to environmental information held by public authorities.

The Environmental Information Regulations 2004<sup>1</sup> have been made for the purpose of implementing the Directive on public access to environmental information<sup>2</sup>. The regulations apply to public authorities<sup>3</sup>, and for the purposes of the regulations, environmental information is held by a public authority if the information is in the authority's possession and has been produced or received by the authority, or is held by another person on behalf of the authority<sup>4</sup>. 'Environmental information' means any information in written, visual, aural, electronic or any other material form on:

- 1376 (1) the state of the elements of the environment, such as air and atmosphere, water, soil, land, landscape and natural sites including wetlands, coastal and marine areas, biological diversity and its components, including genetically modified organisms, and the interaction among these elements;
- 1377 (2) factors, such as substances, energy, noise, radiation or waste, including radioactive waste, emissions, discharges and other releases into the environment, affecting or likely to affect the elements of the environment referred to in head (1) above;
- 1378 (3) measures (including administrative measures), such as policies, legislation, plans, programmes, environmental agreements, and activities affecting or likely to affect the elements and factors referred to in heads (1) and (2) above as well as measures or activities designed to protect those elements;
- 1379 (4) reports on the implementation of environmental legislation;
- 1380 (5) cost-benefit and other economic analyses and assumptions used within the framework of the measures and activities referred to in head (3) above; and
- 1381 (6) the state of human health and safety, including the contamination of the food chain, where relevant, conditions of human life, cultural sites and built structures inasmuch as they are or may be affected by the state of the elements of the environment referred to in head (1) above or, through those elements, by any of the matters referred to in heads (2) and (3) above<sup>5</sup>.

A public authority must in respect of environmental information that it holds<sup>6</sup>: (a) progressively make the information available to the public<sup>7</sup> by electronic means which are easily accessible<sup>8</sup>; and (b) take reasonable steps to organise the information relevant to its functions with a view to the active and systematic dissemination to the public of the information<sup>9</sup>.

A public authority that holds environmental information must make it available on request<sup>10</sup> as soon as possible and no later than 20 working days<sup>11</sup> after the date of receipt of the request<sup>12</sup>. Any enactment<sup>13</sup> or rule of law that would prevent the disclosure of information in accordance with the regulations does not apply<sup>14</sup>. Where a public authority makes environmental information available in accordance with such a request the authority may charge the applicant for making the information available<sup>15</sup>. A public authority must provide advice and assistance, so far as it would be reasonable to expect the authority to do so, to applicants and prospective applicants<sup>16</sup>. Where a public authority decides that an applicant has formulated a request in too general a manner, it must ask the applicant as soon as possible and in any event no later than 20 working days after the date of receipt of the request, to provide more particulars in relation to the request<sup>17</sup>, and assist the applicant in providing those particulars<sup>18</sup>.

Where a public authority that receives a request for environmental information does not hold the information requested but believes that another public authority or a Scottish public authority holds the information, the public authority must either (i) transfer the request to the other public authority or Scottish public authority<sup>19</sup>; or (ii) supply the applicant with the name and address of that authority<sup>20</sup>, and inform<sup>21</sup> the applicant accordingly<sup>22</sup>.

An applicant may make representations to a public authority in relation to the applicant's request for environmental information if it appears to the applicant that the authority has failed to comply with a requirement of the regulations in relation to the request<sup>23</sup>. The public authority must on receipt of the representations and free of charge consider them and any supporting evidence produced by the applicant<sup>24</sup>, and decide if it has complied with the requirement<sup>25</sup>; and must notify the applicant of its decision as soon as possible and no later than 40 working days after the date of receipt of the representations<sup>26</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>27</sup> may issue, and may from time to time revise, a code of practice providing guidance to public authorities as to the practice which it would, in the Secretary of State's opinion, be desirable for them to follow in connection with the discharge of their functions under the regulations<sup>28</sup>. The code may make different provision for different public authorities<sup>29</sup>.

Special provision is made where a request relates to information contained in an historical record<sup>30</sup> or a transferred public record<sup>31</sup>.

Where a request for environmental information has been made<sup>32</sup> to a public authority<sup>33</sup>, and the applicant would have been entitled<sup>34</sup> (subject to payment of any charge) to that information<sup>35</sup>, the public authority and any person who is employed by, is an officer of, or is subject to the direction of, the public authority<sup>36</sup> is guilty of an offence if he alters, defaces, blocks, erases, destroys or conceals any record held by the public authority, with the intention of preventing the disclosure by that authority of all, or any part, of the information to which the applicant would have been entitled<sup>37</sup>. No proceedings for such an offence may be instituted in England and Wales<sup>38</sup>, except by the Information Commissioner or by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>39</sup>.

The enforcement and appeals provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000<sup>40</sup> apply for the purposes of the regulations as they apply for the purposes of the Act but with the specified modifications<sup>41</sup>.

1    le the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391.

2    le EC Council Directive 2003/4 (OJ L41, 14.2.2003, p 26) on public access to environmental information: see PARA 674.

3    Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 3(1). 'Public authority' means: (1) government departments; (2) any other public authority as defined in the Freedom of Information Act s 3(1) (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 583), disregarding for this purpose the exceptions in Sch 1 para 6 to the Act, but excluding (a) any body or office-holder listed in Sch 1 to the Act only in relation to information of a specified description; or (b) any person designated by Order under s 5 of the Act; (3) any other body or other person that carries out functions of public administration; or (4) any other body or other person that is under the control of a person falling within head (1), (2) or (3) above and has public responsibilities relating to the environment, exercises functions of a public nature relating to the environment, or provides public services relating to the environment: Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, art 2(1), (2). Except as provided by reg 12(10) (see PARA 681 note 15) a Scottish public authority is not a 'public authority': reg 2(3). The regulations do not apply to any public authority to the extent that it is acting in a judicial or legislative capacity (reg 3(3)); nor do they apply to either House of Parliament to the extent required for the purpose of avoiding an infringement of the privileges of either House (reg 3(4)). Each government department is to be treated as a person separate from any other government department for the purposes of the regulations except those of Pt 3 (regs 12-15) (see PARA 681) relating to exceptions to the duty to disclose information: see reg 3(5). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. 'Scottish public authority' means a body referred to in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 80(2) and, in so far as not such a body, a Scottish public authority as defined in the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 s 3: Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(1).

4 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 3(2).

5 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(1). The name of the person operating an installation can properly constitute environmental information, and disclosure of environmental information can extend to the disclosure of that person's name: see Office of Communications v Information Comr [2009] EWCA Civ 90, (2009) Times, 27 February, [2009] All ER (D) 212 (Feb) (in which case it was held that the disclosure of the names of mobile phone network operators in connection with the location of mobile phone base stations was justified).

6 The Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 4(1) does not extend to making available or disseminating information which a public authority would be entitled to refuse to disclose under reg 12 (see PARA 681): reg 4(3). The information under reg 4(1) must include at least: (1) the information referred to in EC Council Directive 2003/4 (OJ L41, 14.2.2003, p 26) art 7(2); and (2) facts and analyses of facts which the public authority considers relevant and important in framing major environmental policy proposals: reg 4(4).

7 As to the meaning of 'public' see PARA 674 note 13: definition applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(5).

8 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 4(1)(a). For these purposes the use of electronic means to make information available or to organise information is not required in relation to information collected before 1 January 2005 in non-electronic form: reg 4(2).

9 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 4(1)(b). See also note 7.

10 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 5(1). This provision is expressed to be subject to reg 5(3) and in accordance with reg 5(2), (4), (5) and (6) (see below and the text to notes 10-13) and the provisions of regs 6-11 (see note 11 and the text to notes 14-25) and Pt 3 (regs 12-15) (see PARA 681). To the extent that the information requested includes personal data of which the applicant is the data subject, reg 5(1) does not apply to those personal data: reg 5(3). For the purposes of reg 5(1), where the information made available is compiled by or on behalf of the public authority it must be up to date, accurate and comparable, so far as the public authority reasonably believes: reg 5(4). Where a public authority makes available information in head (2) of the definition of environmental information, and the applicant so requests, the public authority must, in so far as it is able to do so, either inform the applicant of the place where information, if available, can be found on the measurement procedures, including methods of analysis, sampling and pre-treatment of samples, used in compiling the information, or refer the applicant to a standardised procedure used: reg 5(5). 'Personal data' and 'data subject' have the same meanings as they have in the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 506); and 'data' has the same meaning as in the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 506), except that for the purposes of the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, regs 12(3) and 13 (see PARA 681) a public authority referred to in the definition of data in s 1(1)(e) of that Act means a public authority within the meaning of the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391: reg 2(4). 'Applicant', in relation to a request for environmental information, means the person who made the request: reg 2(1).

11 'Working day' means any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday under the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971 (see TIME vol 97 (2010) PARA 321) in any part of the United Kingdom: Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 10(6); definition applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 22 note 5.

12 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 5(2). Where an applicant requests that the information be made available in a particular form or format, a public authority must make it so available, unless: (1) it is reasonable for it to make the information available in another form or format; or (2) the information is already publicly available and easily accessible to the applicant in another form or format: reg 6(1). If the information is not made available in the form or format requested, the public authority must: (a) explain the reason for its decision as soon as possible and no later than 20 working days after the date of receipt of the request for the information (reg 6(2)(a)); (b) provide the explanation in writing if the applicant so requests (reg 6(2)(b)); and (c) inform the applicant of the provisions of reg 11 (see the text to notes 22-25) and of the enforcement and appeal provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 18 (see the text to notes 39-40) (reg 6(2)(c)). As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

Where a request is made under reg 5, the public authority may extend the period of 20 working days referred to in reg 5(2), reg 6(2)(a) and reg 14(2) (see PARA 681) to 40 working days if it reasonably believes that the complexity and volume of the information requested means that it is impracticable either to comply with the request within the earlier period or to make a decision to refuse to do so: reg 7(1), (2). Where reg 7(1) applies the public authority must notify the applicant accordingly as soon as possible and no later than 20 working days after the date of receipt of the request: reg 7(3).

13 As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

14 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 5(6).

15 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 8(1). A public authority must not make any charge for allowing an applicant to access any public registers or lists of environmental information held by the public authority; or to examine the information requested at the place which the public authority makes available for that examination: reg 8(2). A charge must not exceed an amount which the public authority is satisfied is a reasonable amount: reg 8(3). A public authority may require advance payment of a charge for making environmental information available and if it does it must, no later than 20 working days after the date of receipt of the request for the information, notify the applicant of this requirement and of the amount of the advance payment: reg 8(4). Where a public authority has so notified an applicant that advance payment is required, the public authority is not required to make available the information requested, or to comply with reg 6 (see note 11) or reg 14 (see PARA 681), unless the charge is paid no later than 60 working days after the date on which it gave the notification: reg 8(5). The period beginning with the day on which the notification of a requirement for an advance payment is made and ending on the day on which that payment is received by the public authority is to be disregarded for the purposes of determining the period of 20 working days referred to in reg 5(2) (see the text to note 11), reg 6(2)(a) (see note 11) and reg 14(2) (see PARA 681), including any extension to those periods under reg 7(1) (see note 11): reg 8(6), (7). A public authority must publish and make available to applicants a schedule of its charges and information on the circumstances in which a charge may be made or waived: reg 8(8).

16 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 9(1). Where a code of practice has been made under reg 16 (see the text to notes 26-28), and to the extent that a public authority conforms to that code in relation to the provision of advice and assistance in a particular case, it must be taken to have complied with reg 9(1) in relation to that case: reg 9(3).

17 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 9(2)(a). Where reg 9(2) applies, in respect of reg 5(2) (see the text to note 11), reg 6(2)(a) (see note 11) and reg 14(2) (see PARA 681), the date on which the further particulars are received by the public authority must be treated as the date after which the period of 20 working days referred to in those provisions is calculated: reg 9(4), (5).

18 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 9(2)(b).

19 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 10(1)(a). Where a request is transferred to a public authority, for the purposes of reg 5(2) (see the text to note 11), reg 6(2)(a) (see note 11) and reg 14(2) (see PARA 681), the request is received by that public authority on the date on which it receives the transferred request: reg 10(2), (3).

20 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 10(1)(b).

21 In with the refusal sent under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 14(1): see PARA 681.

22 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 10(1).

23 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 11(1). Such representations must be made in writing to the public authority no later than 40 working days after the date on which the applicant believes that the public authority has failed to comply with the requirement: reg 11(2).

24 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 11(3)(a).

25 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 11(3)(b).

26 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 11(4). Where the public authority decides that it has failed to comply with the regulations in relation to the request, the notification must include a statement of (1) the failure to comply; (2) the action the authority has decided to take to comply with the requirement; and (3) the period within which that action is to be taken: reg 11(5).

27 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

28 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 16(1). Before issuing or revising any such code, the Secretary of State must consult the Information Commissioner: reg 16(3). The Secretary of State must lay before each House of Parliament any code issued or revised under these provisions: reg 16(4). The general functions of the Commissioner under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 47 and the power of the Commissioner to give a practice recommendation under s 48 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 608) apply for the purposes of the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, as they apply for the purposes of the Act but with the specified modifications: reg 16(5). For the purposes of the application of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 ss 47 and 48 to the regulations, any reference to: (1) a public authority is a reference to a public authority within the meaning of the regulations; (2) the requirements or operation of the Act, or functions under the Act, includes a reference to the requirements or operation of the regulations, or functions under the regulations; and (3) a code of practice made under s 45 of the Act includes a reference to a code of practice made under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 16: reg 16(6). As to the Information Commissioner see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 518.

30 A record becomes an 'historical record' at the end of the period of 30 years beginning with the year following that in which it was created: Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 62(1); definition applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(1).

31 See the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 17. As to the meaning of 'transferred public record' see the Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 15 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 584); definition applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(1).

32 Ie under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 5: see the text to notes 9-13.

33 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 19(1)(a).

34 Ie in accordance with the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 5: see the text to notes 9-13.

35 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 19(1)(b).

36 See the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 19(2). A government department is not liable to prosecution in relation to an offence under reg 19(1) but that offence does apply to a person in the public service of the Crown and to a person acting on behalf of either House of Parliament or on behalf of the Northern Ireland Assembly as it applies to any other person: reg 19(5). As to the Northern Ireland Assembly see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

37 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 19(1). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: reg 19(3). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18.

38 As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2.

39 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 19(4)(a). As to the Director of Public Prosecutions see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(3) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1066.

40 'The enforcement and appeals provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000' means: (1) Pt IV (ss 50-56) (enforcement: see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 609 et seq), including Sch 3 (powers of entry and inspection) which has effect by virtue of s 55; and (2) Pt V (ss 57-61) (appeals: see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 614); Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 18(2). The Freedom of Information Act 2000 Pt IV does not apply in any case where a certificate has been issued in accordance with the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 15(1) (see PARA 681): reg 18(3).

41 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 18(1). As to the specified modifications see reg 18(4)-(10).

UPDATE

680 Access to environmental information held by public authorities

NOTE 5--Office of Communications, cited, reported at [2009] IP & T 906.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/10. AMENITY, RECREATION AND ENVIRONMENT/(1) THE WATER ENVIRONMENT/681. Exceptions to the duty to disclose environmental information.

681. Exceptions to the duty to disclose environmental information.

A public authority<sup>1</sup> must apply a presumption in favour of disclosure of environmental information<sup>2</sup>. A public authority may refuse to disclose environmental information requested<sup>3</sup> if: (1) an exception<sup>4</sup> to disclosure applies<sup>5</sup>; and (2) in all the circumstances of the case, the public interest in maintaining the exception outweighs the public interest in disclosing the information<sup>6</sup>. For the purposes of head (1) above, a public authority may refuse to disclose information to the extent that:

- 1382 (a) it does not hold that information when an applicant's request is received<sup>7</sup>;
- 1383 (b) the request for information is manifestly unreasonable<sup>8</sup>;
- 1384 (c) the request for information is formulated in too general a manner and the public authority has complied with its obligation<sup>9</sup> to provide advice and assistance to applicants and prospective applicants<sup>10</sup>;
- 1385 (d) the request relates to material which is still in the course of completion, to unfinished documents or to incomplete data<sup>11</sup>; or
- 1386 (e) the request involves the disclosure of internal communications<sup>12</sup>.

For those purposes, a public authority may also refuse to disclose information to the extent that its disclosure would adversely affect:

- 1387 (i) international relations, defence, national security or public safety<sup>13</sup>;
- 1388 (ii) the course of justice, the ability of a person<sup>14</sup> to receive a fair trial or the ability of a public authority to conduct an inquiry of a criminal or disciplinary nature<sup>15</sup>;
- 1389 (iii) intellectual property rights<sup>16</sup>;
- 1390 (iv) the confidentiality of the proceedings of that or any other public authority where such confidentiality is provided by law<sup>17</sup>;
- 1391 (v) the confidentiality of commercial or industrial information where such confidentiality is provided by law to protect a legitimate economic interest<sup>18</sup>;
- 1392 (vi) the interests of the person who provided the information where that person: (A) was not under, and could not have been put under, any legal obligation to supply it to that or any other public authority<sup>19</sup>; (B) did not supply it in circumstances such that that or any other public authority is entitled<sup>20</sup> to disclose it<sup>21</sup>; and (C) has not consented to its disclosure<sup>22</sup>; or
- 1393 (vii) the protection of the environment to which the information relates<sup>23</sup>.

Nothing<sup>24</sup> authorises a refusal to make available any environmental information contained in or otherwise held with other information which is withheld<sup>25</sup> unless it is not reasonably capable of being separated from the other information for the purpose of making available that information<sup>26</sup>. To the extent that the information requested includes personal data of which the applicant is not the data subject and as respects which either of the prescribed conditions is satisfied, a public authority must not disclose the personal data<sup>27</sup>. If a request for environmental information is refused by a public authority<sup>28</sup>, the refusal must be made in writing<sup>29</sup> and comply with the prescribed requirements<sup>30</sup>.

A Minister of the Crown<sup>31</sup> may certify<sup>32</sup> that a refusal to disclose information<sup>33</sup> is because the disclosure would adversely affect national security<sup>34</sup>, and would not be in the public interest under head (2) above<sup>35</sup>. A certificate issued in accordance with this provision is conclusive evidence of such matters<sup>36</sup>, and may identify the information to which it relates in general terms<sup>37</sup>. A document purporting to be such a certificate must be received in evidence and deemed to be such a certificate unless the contrary is proved<sup>38</sup>; and a document which purports to be certified by or on behalf of a Minister of the Crown as a true copy of a such certificate issued by that minister must in any legal proceedings be evidence of that certificate<sup>39</sup>.

- 27 Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(1). The first condition is:
- 33 (1) in a case where the information falls within any of paragraphs (a)-(d) of the definition of 'data' in the Data Protection Act 1998 s 1(1) (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 506), that the disclosure of the information to a member of the public otherwise than under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, would contravene any of the data protection principles, or the Data Protection Act 1998 s 10 (right to prevent processing likely to cause damage or distress: see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 526) and in all the circumstances of the case, the public interest in not disclosing the information outweighs the public interest in disclosing it (Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(2)(a)); and
- 34 (2) in any other case, that the disclosure of the information to a member of the public otherwise than under the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, would contravene any of the data protection principles if the exemptions in the Data Protection Act 1998 s 33A(1) (which relate to manual data held by public authorities: see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 552) were disregarded (Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(2)(b)).

The second condition is that by virtue of any provision of the Data Protection Act 1998 Pt IV (ss 27-39) the information is exempt from s 7(1) (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 524) and, in all the circumstances of the case, the public interest in not disclosing the information outweighs the public interest in disclosing it: Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(3). In determining whether anything done before 24 October 2007 would contravene any of the data protection principles, the exemptions in the Data Protection Act 1998 Sch 8 Pt III (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARAS 529, 534) must be disregarded: Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(4). For the purposes of reg 13 a public authority may respond to a request by neither confirming nor denying whether such information exists and is held by the public authority, whether or not it holds such information, to the extent that: (a) the giving to a member of the public of the confirmation or denial would contravene any of the data protection principles or the Data Protection Act 1998 s 10 or would do so if the exemptions in s 33A(1) were disregarded; or (b) by virtue of any provision of the Data Protection Act 1998 Pt IV, the information is exempt from s 7(1)(a): Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 13(5). 'Data protection principles' has the same meaning as in the Data Protection Act 1998 (see CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 507 et seq): Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 2(4). 29 As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

30 See the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 14(1). The refusal must be made as soon as possible and no later than 20 working days after the date of receipt of the request: reg 14(2). The refusal must specify the reasons not to disclose the information requested, including: (1) any exception relied on under reg 12(4), 12(5) (see heads (a)-(e) and (i)-(vii) in the text) or reg 13 (see the text to note 27) (reg 14(3)(a)); and (2) the matters the public authority considered in reaching its decision with respect to the public interest under reg 12(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text) or, where these apply, reg 13(2)(a)(ii) or 13(3) (see note 27) (reg 14(3)(b)). If the exception in reg 12(4)(d) (see head (d) in the text) is specified in the refusal, the authority must also specify, if known to the public authority, the name of any other public authority preparing the information and the estimated time in which the information will be finished or completed: reg 14(4). The refusal must inform the applicant that he may make representations to the public authority under reg 11 (see PARA 680) (reg 14(5)(a)); and of the enforcement and appeal provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 18 (see PARA 680) (reg 14(5)(b)).

31 The power conferred by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 15(1), (2) (see notes 32, 33), (5) (see the text to note 39) on a Minister of the Crown is not exercisable except by a minister who is a member of the Cabinet or by the Attorney General, the Advocate General for Scotland or the Attorney General for Northern Ireland: Freedom of Information Act 2000 s 25(3); definition applied by the Environmental Information Regulations 2004, SI 2004/3391, reg 15(6). ## 682. River basin management.

Regulations with regard to river basin management<sup>1</sup> impose various environmental and other duties on the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> and other appropriate authorities<sup>3</sup> which are discussed elsewhere in this title<sup>4</sup>. Those duties include the preparation and maintenance of a register of protected areas<sup>5</sup>, the preparation of proposals for environmental objectives<sup>6</sup>, and the production of river basin management plans<sup>7</sup>.

1     In the Water Environment (Water Framework Directive) (England and Wales) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3242: see PARA 198 et seq. See also the Water Environment (Water Framework Directive) (Northumbria River Basin District) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3245, and the Water Environment (Water Framework Directive) (Solway Tweed River Basin District) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/99; and PARA 198 et seq.

(2) DUTIES AS TO WATER AMENITY AND RECREATION

683. General recreational duties.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> is under a general duty to promote the use of inland and coastal waters, and of land associated with such waters, for recreational purposes<sup>2</sup>. Subject to obtaining the consent of any authority having control of navigation, the Agency is also under a duty to take steps for securing, so long as the Agency has rights to the use of water or land associated with water, that those rights are exercised so as to ensure that the water or land is made available for recreational purposes and is so made available in the best manner<sup>3</sup>. In formulating or considering any proposals relating to any functions of the Agency, the Agency, the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> and the Welsh Ministers<sup>5</sup> are under a duty: (1) to have regard to the desirability of preserving for the public any freedom of access to areas of woodland, mountains, moor, heath, down, cliff or foreshore and other places of natural beauty; (2) to have regard to the desirability of maintaining the availability to the public of any facility for visiting or inspecting any building, site or object of archaeological, architectural, engineering or historic interest; and (3) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on any such freedom of access or on the availability of any such facility<sup>6</sup>.

Similar duties are imposed on the Secretary of State, the Welsh Ministers, the Water Services Regulation Authority<sup>7</sup> and relevant undertakers<sup>8</sup> under the Water Industry Act 1991<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

2 See the Environment Act 1995 s 6(1); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 76.

684. Registration of pleasure boats and pleasure boats byelaws.

On many rivers and inland waterways pleasure boats must be registered with or licensed by the appropriate navigation authority or local authority<sup>1</sup>. Local authorities have a general power to license pleasure boats and vessels to be let for hire or to be used for carrying passengers for reward<sup>2</sup>.

A district council, a London borough council, the Common Council of the City of London and the council of a Welsh county or county borough<sup>3</sup> each has powers to make byelaws<sup>4</sup>:

- 1394 (1) for regulating the numbering and naming of pleasure boats and vessels which are let for hire to the public and the mooring places for such boats and vessels<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1395 (2) for fixing the qualifications of the boatmen or other persons in charge of such boats or vessels<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1396 (3) for securing their good and orderly conduct while in charge<sup>7</sup>.

These powers do not, however, apply in relation to pleasure boats or vessels operating on any water owned or managed by the British Waterways Board<sup>8</sup>. Nor do they apply in relation to such boats or vessels operating on:

- 1397 (a) any inland waters<sup>9</sup> in respect of which the Environment Agency<sup>10</sup> may make<sup>11</sup> byelaws<sup>12</sup>;
- 1398 (b) any canal or other inland navigation which a navigation authority<sup>13</sup> is required or empowered to manage or maintain under any enactment, unless the local council in question is itself required or empowered to maintain that canal or inland navigation<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1399 (c) any harbour maintained or managed by a harbour authority<sup>15</sup>.

1 Byelaws may be made under the Public Health Act 1961 s 76 as to the use of pleasure boats: see PARA 51. As to the power of the Environment Agency to make byelaws relating to boating see PARA 709. As to the powers of the British Waterways Board to make byelaws in respect of waterways under its control see PARA 784. 12 Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 185(2)(b) (as substituted (see note 9); and amended by SI 1996/593).

13 For these purposes, 'navigation authority' means a person or body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate, having a duty or power imposed or conferred by or under an enactment to manage or maintain a canal, whether navigable or not, or to manage or maintain an inland navigation other than a canal, whether natural or artificial and whether tidal or not: Water Resources Act 1963 s 135(1) (repealed; applied for these purposes, notwithstanding its repeal, by the Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 185(2)(c), and by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 Sch 1 para 35(b)). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

14 See the Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 185(2)(c), (3).

15 Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 185(2)(d). 'Harbour authority' has the same meaning as in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 (see PARA 505 note 9): Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 185(2)(d) (applying the Harbours Act 1964 s 57(1)).

685. Waterway byelaws; in general.

Water undertakers<sup>1</sup> and the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> have powers to make byelaws<sup>3</sup> with respect to any waterway<sup>4</sup> owned or managed by them and any land held or managed with it, for the preservation of order, the prevention of damage to the land or anything on or in the waterway or land, and for securing that persons resorting to the waterway or land will so behave themselves as to avoid undue interference with the enjoyment of the waters or land by other persons<sup>5</sup>. These powers include power to make byelaws regulating sailing, boating, bathing and fishing and other forms of recreation<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'water undertaker' see PARA 137 note 4.

2 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

3 See the Water Industry Act 1991 s 157(4), Sch 10; the Water Resources Act 1991 s 210(1), Sch 25; and PARAS 709, 711.

4 The Agency also has powers to make byelaws in relation to inland waters: see PARA 709.

5 See PARAS 709, 711. Byelaws may also be made under local Acts. As to local legislation generally see PARA 14.

6 See further PARAS 709-711.

686. Recreation facilities at reservoirs.

Where the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> make a compulsory works order<sup>3</sup> authorising a water undertaker<sup>4</sup> or the Environment Agency<sup>5</sup> to carry out works for or in connection with the construction or operation of a reservoir or conferring compulsory powers for that purpose on a water undertaker or the Agency<sup>6</sup>, and it appears to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers that the works may permanently affect the area and are not primarily intended to benefit its inhabitants<sup>7</sup>, provision may be made in the order for facilities for recreation or other leisure-time occupation for their benefit<sup>8</sup>.

687. Discharge of recreation functions in Wales.

Where a water undertaker<sup>1</sup> or the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> carries out any works for or in connection with the construction or operation of a reservoir in Wales<sup>3</sup> which permanently affect one or more communities<sup>4</sup>, and are not primarily intended by that undertaker or the Agency to benefit the inhabitants of that community or of those communities<sup>5</sup>, it is the duty of the undertaker or, as the case may be, the Agency to make available facilities for recreation or other leisure-time occupation for the benefit of those inhabitants, or to assist others to make such facilities available<sup>6</sup>. In performing this duty, the undertaker or the Agency must consult the community councils of the communities affected, in the case of communities having such councils<sup>7</sup>, and, in any case, the council of any county or county borough in which any community affected is situated<sup>8</sup>.

In the case of a water undertaker, these duties are enforceable<sup>9</sup> by the Welsh Ministers<sup>10</sup>; and in the case of the Agency, they must be exercised so as to secure compliance with the requirements of the Water Framework Directive<sup>11</sup>.

11. NAVIGATION

(1) MEANING OF NAVIGATION

688. Meaning of 'navigation'.

The right of navigation has been judicially described as 'a right to pass and repass over the whole width and depth of water [in a navigable waterway] and the incidental rights of loading and unloading'<sup>1</sup>. Navigation has also been described as 'passage or transit through navigable waters whether they be tidal or non-tidal, [and] of communication by sea and, in principle, it would appear to follow that it is those activities which are necessarily subservient to that essential purpose which may be exercised as of right in virtue of the recognised and undoubted right of navigation'<sup>2</sup>. The existence and extent of navigation rights differ depending on whether the waters concerned are tidal<sup>3</sup> or non-tidal<sup>4</sup>.

Navigation on the high seas is subject to maritime law<sup>5</sup>.

(2) RIGHTS OF NAVIGATION IN TIDAL WATERS

689. General public right of navigation.

Prima facie all waters which are tidal<sup>1</sup>, and in which navigation is possible, are subject to a public right of navigation<sup>2</sup> since the soil of such waterways belongs to the Crown<sup>3</sup>. For this right to exist it is essential that the waters should be subject to the ebb and flow of ordinary or mean tides<sup>4</sup>; but although the fact that they are subject to the flow of the tides is strong prima facie evidence of the existence of a public right of navigation<sup>5</sup>, it is not conclusive, since not every creek, river or channel into which the tide flows is on that account necessarily a public navigable channel, even if it is sufficiently large for that purpose<sup>6</sup>. However, once a waterway is subject to the public right of navigation, no act by a private person, however long continued, will destroy the public right<sup>7</sup>, nor will it be lost by disuse<sup>8</sup>. The right is, however, capable of being extinguished<sup>9</sup>.

It is a question of fact whether a public right of navigation exists in any particular case<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'tidal waters' see PARA 71 note 1. In Kingsway Furniture (Dartford) Ltd v Harpglow Ltd and Kylefield Ltd [1991] Water Law 10 (Official Referee's Business), 'tidal waters' were defined to include those where there was a real and perceptible ebb and flow of the tide, whether saline or not and whether horizontal or vertical.

2 Miles v Rose (1814) 5 Taunt 705. This right of navigation exists even where at certain states of the tide the water disappears from the place where the navigation is taking place: Earl of Iveagh v Martin [1961] 1 QB 232, [1960] 2 All ER 668. As to the nature and extent of the public right of navigation see PARAS 690-691. As to local navigation rules affecting particular rivers see PARAS 708, 712. The right of the public to navigate on the sea has been unchallenged from the earliest times: see Denaby and Cadeby Main Collieries Ltd v Anson [1911] 1 KB 171 at 198, CA. 4 Murphy v Ryan (1868) IR 2 CL 143; and see note 1. The fact that a creek which is not affected by the ebb and flow of the tide can be traversed by small boats does not make it navigable (ie by the public) in the legal sense of the term: Earl of Ilchester v Raishleigh (1889) 61 LT 477.

6 R v Montague (1825) 4 B & C 598. If the river is broad and deep, calculated for the purposes of commerce, it may be assumed to be a public navigation, but if it is a petty stream, navigable only at certain periods of the tide, and then only for a very short time, and by very small boats, it may be presumed that it never has been a public navigable river: R v Montague (above) at 602 per Bayley J; Sim E Bak v Ang Yong Huat [1923] AC 429, PC. ## 690. Nature and extent of right of navigation.

The public right of navigation in tidal waters<sup>1</sup> is a right given by the common law which extends to the whole space over which the tide flows, and is not suspended when the tide is too low for vessels to float<sup>2</sup>. It is not a right of property<sup>3</sup> but a right to pass and repass<sup>4</sup> and to remain for a reasonable time<sup>5</sup> and, although it is paramount to any right which the Crown<sup>6</sup> or a subject<sup>7</sup> may have in the waters in question, it must be exercised reasonably<sup>8</sup> and in particular the right must not be abused so as to cause injury to a fishery<sup>9</sup>.

The public right of navigation<sup>1</sup> includes the rights, in the ordinary course of navigation, to anchor<sup>2</sup>, to remain for a convenient time<sup>3</sup>, to load and unload<sup>4</sup>, to moor and fix temporary moorings in the waterway or on the foreshore<sup>5</sup>, and to ground<sup>6</sup>. Such rights may be exercised without liability for payment of tolls or other acknowledgment to the owner of the soil, except in a port or harbour<sup>7</sup> or where such an owner otherwise has the right to demand some acknowledgment for the use of the soil in return for some benefit conferred<sup>8</sup>. A vessel is also entitled to remain temporarily in one place until the wind or weather permits it to leave or until it has obtained a cargo or completed repairs, but not to remain permanently moored since this would violate the rights of the public to free passage<sup>9</sup>. The rights of all vessels on a navigable river are not co-extensive since while a small boat may be entitled to go up to the furthest point it can reach, so as to give the public the benefit of the public way<sup>10</sup>, the same right does not exist for a large vessel which is not entitled to proceed to a place where large vessels are not accustomed to go and where there is no accommodation for unloading them<sup>11</sup>.

Since the public right of navigation is simply a right of way limited to the waterway it does not, in general, include the right to land persons or goods on the foreshore or banks<sup>12</sup>, unless the person purporting to do so is the owner of the foreshore or banks, or has the owner's permission<sup>13</sup>. Such a right, however, may exist at places which necessity or usage<sup>14</sup> has appropriated to that purpose, or in cases of peril or necessity<sup>15</sup>, or in ports at places where landing is permitted without payment or on payment of the lawful dues<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the public right of navigation see PARA 689. As to the nature and extent of the right see PARA 690. The right has been said to be analogous to the public rights on a highway: see eg Earl of Iveagh v Martin [1961] 1 QB 232 at 272, [1960] 2 All ER 668 at 683, per Paull J. As to the public right of passage over a highway: see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 197.

5 There is no right in general to lay or maintain permanent moorings in another person's land without his permission (Fowley Marine (Emsworth) Ltd v Gafford [1967] 2 QB 808, [1967] 2 All ER 472; revsd on another point [1968] 2 QB 618, [1968] 1 All ER 979, CA), and it is doubtful whether there is any right to have a permanent mooring where the bed or foreshore is owned by the Crown (Evans v Godber [1974] 3 All ER 341, [1974] 1 WLR 1317, DC (Pagham Harbour); Crown Estate Comrs v Fairlie Yacht Slip Ltd 1979 SC 156). The right to have a permanent mooring may, however, arise from custom or be given by statute: Earl of Iveagh v Martin [1961] 1 QB 232, [1960] 2 All ER 668; Fowley Marine (Emsworth) Ltd v Gafford (above). See also Wyatt v Thompson (1794) 1 Esp 252 (custom for barges to moor to posts off wharves in the Thames for one tide). As to the ownership of moorings and the origin of the right to have moorings see A-G v Wright [1897] 2 QB 318, CA. The public right of navigation does not include the right to moor a hulk from which to supply coal to other vessels: Denaby and Cadeby Main Collieries Ltd v Anson [1911] 1 KB 171, CA. As to the statutory mooring rights of vessels engaged in the prevention of smuggling see PARA 48. It is not in the ordinary course of navigation to ground on the bank of a dredged channel, and grounding on the soil or bottom of a river is not normally permissible as being in the ordinary course of navigation: The Carlgarth, The Otarama [1927] P 93 at 107, CA, per Scrutton LJ, explaining Colchester Corpn v Brooke (above).

7 As to a harbour authority's powers to charge fees and to grant harbour licences see eg Dart Harbour and Navigation Authority v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions [2003] EWHC 1494 (Admin), [2003] 2 Lloyd's Rep 607, [2003] All ER (D) 339 (Jun). The safe and efficient management of a harbour does not require the authority to have control over installations outside the harbour: Dart Harbour and Navigation Authority v Secretary of State for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (above). Where, situate on the foreshore of tidal waters which is vested in the lord of a manor of ancient demesne of the Crown, there is a quay from which there is free access to a public road, the public right, as part of the rights of navigation, to use the quay on payment of a reasonable fee extends only to use in the ordinary course of embarking or disembarking or loading or unloading a vessel, or in the course of carrying out repairs to a vessel, if she had arrived in the ordinary course of navigation and if her repairing was necessary and desirable before she could resume her voyage: Earl of Iveagh v Martin [1961] 1 QB 232, [1960] 2 All ER 668.

Perhaps small evidence of usage would establish a right of towing by custom on the ground of public convenience: see Ball v Herbert (1789) 3 Term Rep 253 at 262 per Lord Kenyon CJ. See also HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 8.

19 Eg by 23 Hen 8 c 12 (Severn Tolls) (1531) (repealed) it was declared that for time out of mind there had been a towing path on each side of the River Severn, one and a half feet (half a metre) broad, and a penalty of 40 shillings (£2) was imposed for obstructing persons using the path. For instances of rights of towage on the Bristol Avon, Tyne and Trent see Hale's De Portibus Maris c 67 (Hargrave's Law Tracts 72 et seq); and for such an instance on the Thames see the Thames Conservancy Act 1932 s 77.

20 Dedication of a towing path as a highway may be presumed: Grand Junction Canal Co v Petty (1888) 21 QBD 273, CA. ## 692. Obstruction of right of navigation.

Neither the Crown nor a subject may use the soil of tidal waters in which a public right of navigation exists for any purpose amounting to an obstruction or a nuisance to navigation<sup>1</sup>. Accordingly it is unlawful, except with statutory authority<sup>2</sup>, to place in such waters, or to maintain there, anything which is an obstruction to navigation; and any such action is a public nuisance<sup>3</sup>, in respect of which it is no defence that the obstruction occurs only at certain states of the tide<sup>4</sup>. A public nuisance also arises where materials are stacked so that they fall into a navigable river<sup>5</sup> or when ballast or other materials are cast from a vessel into a navigable waterway to the prejudice of the navigation<sup>6</sup>. To constitute a nuisance, however, there must be some actual obstruction of a navigable river<sup>7</sup> which produces inconvenience for the public in the use of the river for the purpose of the navigation<sup>8</sup>. The question is whether an obstruction occasions any hindrance to the navigation of the river by vessels of any description and not as to the effect on the navigation in general<sup>9</sup>. It is no defence to an obstruction to say that the inconvenience occasioned is counterbalanced by some public benefit<sup>10</sup>. No right to obstruct may be acquired by any length of time, although it would seem that user without complaint for a great many years may be evidence that there is no obstruction in fact<sup>11</sup>. However, the fact that an erection has been authorised by a body purporting to have power to do so is some evidence that it is not an obstruction to the public right of navigation<sup>12</sup> and something which was not a nuisance at the time it was made cannot become so by length of time<sup>13</sup>. On the other hand, a weir built under a grant from the Crown in a river where the public right of navigation extends to the whole width, and which originally obstructed part of the river, will become a nuisance and thus illegal if the rest of the river becomes choked and cannot be used, the right of the Crown to make such a grant being subject to the public right of navigation<sup>14</sup>.

The owner of a wreck sunk in the fairway of a navigable river or which is otherwise a danger to navigation is under a duty to take precautions to prevent other vessels striking it, and to warn them of its position unless and until he abandons it or some authority has undertaken that duty<sup>15</sup>. He is liable for damage to another vessel if the damage could have been prevented by reasonable care and skill on his part<sup>16</sup>. Where a vessel is sunk by misfortune or accident, the owner is not liable for not removing it<sup>17</sup>, but if the sinking is caused by the negligence of the owner of the vessel and thereby obstructs the navigation, the owner is liable for any damage caused by the obstruction and cannot escape such liability by abandoning the wreck<sup>18</sup>. Apart from negligence, the owner may also be personally liable by special Act to the authority empowered to remove the wreck<sup>19</sup> for the expenses of its removal<sup>20</sup>.

Railway undertakers whose powers include those contained in the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 may execute works in navigable tidal rivers as well as non-navigable rivers, but not so as to divert or alter the entire course of the river or obstruct the whole navigation: see Abraham v Great Northern Ry Co (1851) 16 QB 586. The Environment Agency, local authorities and internal drainage boards exercising powers under the Land Drainage Act 1991 or the Water Resources Act 1991 may not do any work which, whether directly or indirectly, interferes with the works or property of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority or with the use of such property so as to injuriously affect it or their undertaking without the consent of that authority: see the Water Resources Act 1991 s 178, Sch 22; the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 67(1), Sch 6; and PARA 576. As to ministerial power to vary navigation rights under local Acts see the Land Drainage Act 1991 s 35; and PARA 594. As to restrictions on works of a coast protection authority under the Coast Protection Act 1949 which may be detrimental to navigation see PARA 533 et seq. See also the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985 s 5 et seq; and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 525. For the procedure when an improvement in respect of which an application for a charge under the Improvement of Land Act 1864 has been made will interfere with any navigable river or canal see AGRICULTURAL LAND vol 1 (2008) PARA 626.

Subject to the provisions of the Public Health Act 1936 s 333(2)-(4), nothing in that Act authorises a local authority without the consent of the dock undertakers concerned: (1) to interfere with any river, canal, dock, harbour, basin, lock or reservoir so as injuriously to affect navigation thereon or the use thereof or the access thereto, or to interfere with any towing path, so as to interrupt the traffic thereon; (2) to interfere with any bridges crossing any river, canal, dock, harbour or basin; (3) to execute any works in, across or under any dock, harbour, basin, wharf, quay or lock, or any land which belongs to dock undertakers and is held or used by them for the purposes of their undertaking; (4) to execute any works which will interfere with the improvement of, or the access to, any river, canal, dock, harbour, basin, lock, reservoir, or towing path, or with any works appurtenant thereto or any land necessary for the enjoyment or improvement thereof; or without the consent of the railway company concerned, to execute any works along, across or under any railway of a railway company; provided that such consent must not be unreasonably withheld, and if any question arises as to whether or not consent is unreasonably withheld, either party may require that it must be referred to an arbitrator to be appointed, in default of agreement, by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers: s 333(1). Upon such an arbitration, the arbitrator must determine: (a) whether any works which the local authority proposes to execute are such works as under s 333(1) it is not entitled to execute without the consent of the statutory undertakers; and (b) if they are such works, whether the injury, if any, to the undertakers will be of such a nature as to admit of being fully compensated by money; and (c) if the works are of such a nature, the conditions subject to which the local authority may execute the works, including the amount of the compensation, if any, to be paid by the authority to the undertakers; and if the arbitrator should determine that the proposed works are such works as the local authority is not entitled to execute without the consent of the undertakers and that the works would cause injury to the undertakers of such a nature as not to admit of being fully compensated by money, the local authority may not proceed to execute the works, but in any other case may execute the works subject to compliance with such conditions, including the payment of such compensation, as the arbitrator may have determined: s 333(2). For these purposes, dock undertakers are to be deemed to be concerned with any river, canal, dock, harbour, basin, lock, reservoir, towing path, wharf, quay or land if it belongs to them and forms part of their undertaking, or if they have statutory rights of navigating on or using it, or of demanding tolls or dues in respect of navigation thereon or the use thereof: s 333(3). Nothing in s 333 is to be construed as limiting the powers of a local authority under any of the foregoing provisions of that Act in respect of the opening and the breaking up of streets and bridges for the purpose of constructing, laying and maintaining sewers, drains and pipes: s 333(4). As to the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 51 note 1.

3 'Nuisance' is here used to include both an invasion of the jus privatum of the Crown, ie a purpresture (being a house erected, or an enclosure made, upon any part of the Crown's demesnes, or of a highway or common street, or public water, or such public things) and a violation of the jus publicum, ie a public nuisance. As to the meaning of 'public nuisance' see NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 105; and as to nuisances in respect of waterways see NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 141.

See further AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 793. The requirement of 25 Edw I (Magna Carta) (1297) c 23, that all fish weirs (kidelli) should be completely removed from the Thames and the Medway and throughout all England, except those along the sea coast, was not entirely effective, and in the Hundred Rolls of Edward I there are numerous presentations concerning weirs which obstruct navigation. ### 693. Protection of right of navigation.

The remedies for the protection of the public right of navigation are: (1) abatement<sup>1</sup>; (2) civil proceedings, which may take the form of a claim for damages by a private individual<sup>2</sup>, proceedings by the Attorney General on behalf of the Crown in respect of its prerogative right of conserving navigation<sup>3</sup>, a relator action in the name of the Attorney General<sup>4</sup> or proceedings by a local authority for the protection of the interests of the inhabitants of its area<sup>5</sup>; or (3) criminal proceedings<sup>6</sup>.

Before authorisation of the construction of a bridge over, or a tunnel under, any navigable waters, the reasonable requirements of navigation over the waters must be taken into consideration<sup>7</sup>.

694. Abatement of obstructions.

Where a private person sustains special damage by reason of an obstruction to the public right of navigation<sup>1</sup>, he may abate it without recourse to legal proceedings<sup>2</sup>, but only in so far as is necessary to enable him to exercise his right; and he is not justified in doing so if he is not injured otherwise than as a member of the public<sup>3</sup>.

695. Proceedings by private individuals.

Instead of his remedy by abatement<sup>1</sup>, the person who sustains special damage<sup>2</sup> by reason of an obstruction to the public right of navigation may bring a claim for nuisance in respect of the obstruction<sup>3</sup>. Examples of obstructions which have given rise to claims of this nature are complete obstruction of a channel by another vessel necessitating transport of cargo over land<sup>4</sup>; a structure of piles and planks on the foreshore presenting a dangerous and hidden obstruction<sup>5</sup>; an inadequately buoyed anchor to a floating landing stage<sup>6</sup>; a pile negligently placed on the foreshore<sup>7</sup>; a bridge causing obstruction to navigation<sup>8</sup>; a swing bridge operated so as to cause unnecessary delay<sup>9</sup>; piers of a bridge<sup>10</sup>; and siltation of the river bed and foreshore resulting from the construction of ferry terminals<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to abatement see PARA 694.

2 In Lynn Corp'n v Turner (1774) 1 Cowp 86 it was held that where a corporation had from time immemorial cleansed and repaired a tidal creek, an action lay against it for failure to do so, even though special damage was not proved. In Duke of Newcastle v Clark (1818) 2 Moore CP 665, it was held that commissioners of sewers had no remedy against harbour commissioners for the removal by the harbour commissioners of drainage works which were an obstruction to navigation. Obstructions to the public right of navigation<sup>1</sup> alleged to be nuisances<sup>2</sup> which have been the subject of proceedings by the Attorney General<sup>3</sup> include buildings, erections and enclosures between high and low-water marks in a harbour<sup>4</sup>; a jetty or piles in the bed of a river<sup>5</sup>; moorings in the foreshore<sup>6</sup>; and an excavation undermining the bank of a public navigable river and bricks placed on the river bed<sup>7</sup>.

697. Criminal proceedings.

The obstruction of the freedom of passage in a port or in a public navigable river is prima facie a nuisance and as such is properly the subject of criminal proceedings<sup>1</sup>. Examples of obstructions in tidal waters and navigable rivers which have been the subject of criminal proceedings are locks<sup>2</sup>, staithes for loading ships with coal<sup>3</sup>, wharves erected between high and low-water mark<sup>4</sup>, a pier<sup>5</sup>, refuse allowed to fall into and obstruct a navigable river<sup>6</sup>, and piles and planking in a harbour<sup>7</sup>.

An encroachment on the banks is not, however, necessarily a nuisance<sup>8</sup>. Neither is a bridge which is partly in the bed of a navigable river<sup>9</sup>. Furthermore, criminal proceedings do not lie against the owner of a vessel which has sunk in a navigable river owing to accident or misfortune<sup>10</sup>.

698. Determining whether an obstruction is a nuisance.

Whether an obstruction of the public right of navigation is a nuisance or not is a question of fact<sup>1</sup>. The general question to be decided is whether it is a hindrance to navigation by vessels of any description rather than whether it is of benefit to the public in general<sup>2</sup>. It will not, therefore, be a defence that the inconvenience occasioned is counterbalanced by some benefit conferred<sup>3</sup>, particularly where the channel is narrow and every part is required for navigation<sup>4</sup>. However, the court will not interfere if the obstruction is of a trifling nature<sup>5</sup>, or if it merely renders a harbour less secure under extreme circumstances<sup>6</sup>. Where an obstruction has existed from time immemorial the court will not presume that it was a nuisance to navigation at the time when it was placed in the river<sup>7</sup>.

699. Extinguishment of public right of navigation.

The public right of navigation<sup>1</sup> can be extinguished: (1) by Act of Parliament; (2) in certain circumstances, by an order under the Transport Act 1968<sup>2</sup> or the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>3</sup> or by an order on the application of the Environment Agency or an internal drainage board under the Land Drainage Act 1991<sup>4</sup>; or (3) by natural causes, such as the recession of the sea or an accumulation of mud rendering navigation impossible<sup>5</sup>. If a river is obstructed, for example with mud, this does not however give the public the right to cut another passage through adjoining lands<sup>6</sup>. When a navigable river has been obstructed for a long time and there is nothing to show how the obstruction came to be there, it may be presumed that the public right of navigation has ceased for one or other of the above reasons, and the obstruction may not be removed<sup>7</sup>. If, however, the obstruction is lawfully removed, the right of navigation revives<sup>8</sup>; and the right is not lost if the river changes its course, since it will be exercisable over the new channel<sup>9</sup> or, provided the right of navigation extends to the whole river, if the main channel becomes choked so that the only navigable part is a side channel<sup>10</sup>.

700. Jurisdiction over tidal navigable rivers.

When they are between headlands<sup>1</sup> tidal navigable rivers form part of the adjoining county for both civil and criminal purposes; and as regards offences committed on ships in tidal waters in the United Kingdom, the Crown Court has jurisdiction to try accused persons<sup>2</sup>. For local government purposes the seashore between high and low-water mark, which was not within any parish, is annexed to and incorporated with the adjoining parish or parishes or, in Wales, with the adjoining community or communities<sup>3</sup>.

(3) RIGHTS OF NAVIGATION IN NON-TIDAL WATERS

701. General absence of public right of navigation.

The public right of navigation that exists on tidal waters<sup>1</sup> does not apply to non-tidal waters and in consequence, there is no general common law right of public navigation either in non-tidal rivers<sup>2</sup> or on inland lakes<sup>3</sup>. The soil there is not vested in the Crown but prima facie, in the case of non-tidal rivers, is vested in the riparian owners<sup>4</sup>, and in the case of inland lakes in the adjoining proprietors<sup>5</sup>. Furthermore it cannot be implied from the mere fact that a person, at his own expense, has made his private stream navigable by making locks or cuts or drawing together other streams, that the public has any rights of navigation over it, for he may destroy it or apply it to his own private use<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to this right see PARA 689. As to the meaning of 'tidal waters' see PARA 71 note 1; and see also PARA 689 note 1.

702. Establishment of public right of navigation.

Despite the general rule<sup>1</sup>, a public right of navigation may exist in the case of certain non-tidal rivers<sup>2</sup> and inland lakes<sup>3</sup>, and the existence of the right is established by evidence similar to that which is required to establish a public right of way over land<sup>4</sup>. Therefore it can arise only (1) by immemorial usage<sup>5</sup>; (2) by Act of Parliament<sup>6</sup> or by order made under the authority of an Act of Parliament; or (3) by express grant or dedication by the owner of the soil of the river<sup>7</sup>. Furthermore, it would seem that if a river or channel is made navigable at public expense or by a public authority, or has been freely devoted to the public use for a long time, or has been made to replace a channel over which there was a public right of navigation but which has been stopped for the owner's convenience, then the navigation is public<sup>8</sup>. If, however, under authority of the Crown, a subject provides a navigable channel through his land, including locks the repair of which is subsequently authorised by statute, and tolls are charged for passage through them, a subsequent owner is under no duty to repair the locks and, in the absence of evidence that they had been dedicated to the public, there is no public right of navigation through them<sup>9</sup>.

2 See eg AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 792.

3 Eg there is a public right of navigation on Ullswater (Marshall v Ulleswater Steam Navigation Co Ltd (1863) 3 B & S 732), Lough Neagh, Northern Ireland (Johnston v O'Neill [1911] AC 552, HL), a part, known as 'the channel', of Hickling Broad, Norfolk, and, elsewhere on that water (Micklethwait v Vincent (1892) 67 LT 225) ('It is not necessary for me to decide how far the right extends beyond the channel': Micklethwait v Vincent (above) at 230 per Romer J). As to the question of whether an enclosed sheet of water is water which can be used by vessels and ships for navigation within the purposes of what is now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 see Curtis v Wild [1991] 4 All ER 172.

4 Woolrych on Waters c 3. As to the creation of highways generally see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 107 et seq. It seems, however, that the analogy between a public right of navigation and a public right of way on land is not complete, and that it is not necessary that a public right of navigation should be between two public termini: Wills' Trustees v Cairngorm Canoeing and Sailing School Ltd 1976 SLT 162 at 191-192, HL, per Lord Wilberforce, and at 215 per Lord Fraser of Tullybelton. In the Highways Act 1980 s 31, 'land' includes land covered with water: s 31(11). Cf the definition of 'highway' in s 328(1): see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 7. However, no right of navigation exists or can be created on a non-tidal river simply under the provisions of the Highways Act 1980 s 31: A-G (ex rel Yorkshire Derwent Trust Ltd) v Brotherton [1992] 1 AC 425, [1992] 1 All ER 230, HL.

5 Orr Ewing v Colquhoun (1877) 2 App Cas 839, HL; Bourke v Davis (1889) 44 ChD 110 (insufficient user to establish public right); Rawson v Peters (1972) 225 Estates Gazette 89, CA; and see CUSTOM AND USAGE vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 601 et seq. It has been inferred from the sweeping requirement of 25 Edw I (Magna Carta) (1297) c 23, that all fish weirs (kidelli) should be completely removed from the Thames and Medway and throughout all England except those along the sea coast, that certain rivers were common highways or public streams from time immemorial.

6 R v Betts (1850) 16 QB 1022 (a new cut for the river Witham the obstruction of which would be an indictable offence; however, the act complained of was found not to be an obstruction). Numerous statutes have been passed concerning public rights of navigation on particular rivers. An exhaustive classification of these statutes is impracticable, but very generally speaking they may be divided into: (1) statutes containing recitals of immemorial rights and prescribing penalties for interference with those rights; (2) statutes authorising works for the improvement of rivers subject to immemorial rights and authorising the charging of tolls; (3) statutes authorising works for the improvement of rivers not subject to immemorial rights and authorising the charging of tolls together with an express declaration of public rights of navigation; and (4) statutes authorising works for the improvement of rivers not subject to immemorial rights and authorising the charging of tolls from which public rights of navigation may be inferred (it seems that upon completion of the works the undertakers came under an obligation to apply future profits for the benefit of the public). However, any local enactment passed with respect to an inland waterway which on 18 November 1968 was or subsequently becomes comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board ceased to have effect so far as it conferred any public or private right of navigation over the waterway or imposed any duty to maintain the waterway for navigation purposes: see the Transport Act 1968 ss 105(5)(a), (b), (6), 166(2); Transport Act 1968 (Commencement No 1) Order 1968, SI 1968/1822; and PARA 741. In the case of a canal not comprised in the board's undertaking, the Secretary of State may by order direct that any such local enactment is to cease to have effect so far as it confers any such right of navigation or imposes any such duty to maintain: see the Transport Act 1968 s 112(1)(a), (b); and PARA 828. References in ss 105, 112, to any right of navigation over a waterway or canal include references to any right to use or keep any vessel or craft on the waterway or canal: s 115(1)(a). Nothing in s 105 or in any order under s 112 is to be construed as abrogating any navigation rights which subsist otherwise than by virtue of any such local enactment, and references to rights conferred by an enactment do not include references to rights already existing and merely confirmed by the enactment: s 115(2). As to rules of navigation generally, including local rules, see SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW; and as to fisheries in relation to navigation see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 792 et seq. For no man can take a settled or constant toll even in his own private land for a common passage without the King's licence'. ### 703. Nature and extent of right of navigation.

If a waterway over which a public right of navigation is exercisable changes its course, the right is exercisable over the new channel<sup>11</sup>.

However, if a river becomes choked, the public has no right to make another passage through adjoining land: Ball v Herbert (1789) 3 Term Rep 253 at 263 per Buller J; and see A-G (ex rel Yorkshire Derwent Trust Ltd) v Brotherton [1992] 1 AC 425, [1992] 1 All ER 230, HL. 5 The public right of navigation is not limited to commercial use; it includes navigation for recreational purposes such as canoeing: Wills' Trustees v Cairngorm Canoeing and Sailing School Ltd 1976 SLT 162 at 191, HL, per Lord Wilberforce, at 203 per Lord Hailsham of St Marylebone, at 207 per Lord Salmon and at 214 per Lord Fraser of Tullybelton (decided under Scottish law, which probably does not differ from English law on this point). Nevertheless, the public right of navigation does not extend to every kind of user which physical prowess or exorbitant technology makes possible: Wills' Trustees v Cairngorm Canoeing and Sailing School Ltd (above) at 191 per Lord Wilberforce and at 216 per Lord Fraser of Tullybelton. Subject to statutory restrictions, the public may navigate the River Thames for either pleasure or profit: see LONDON GOVERNMENT. For a decision, however, that navigation within the meaning of what is now the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 connoted planned or ordered movement from one place to another, and not recreational use, see Steedman v Scofield [1992] 2 Lloyd's Rep 163.

7 Original Hartlepool Collieries Co v Gibb (1877) 5 ChD 713, where it was held that a user of a public navigation, even though a riparian owner, must not moor his vessel so as to interfere with access to a neighbour's wharfs. #### 704. Incidental rights.

Except as may be provided by the statute or deed of grant conferring the right, the public right of navigation in a non-tidal waterway<sup>1</sup> does not include the rights to moor a vessel to, or land on, the banks of the waterway, since the banks belong prima facie to the adjoining landowners. Such rights are therefore not exercisable unless the person purporting to do so is the owner of the bank or has the owner's permission<sup>2</sup>, but, as in the case of tidal waters<sup>3</sup>, such a right may exist at places which necessity or usage has appropriated to that purpose or in cases of peril or necessity<sup>4</sup>. The public right of navigation does not include the right of towing along the banks<sup>5</sup>, but, as in the case of tidal waters<sup>6</sup>, such a right may arise by custom or be created by statute or grant<sup>7</sup>.

There is probably no right of anchoring or of placing fixed moorings, except in cases of necessity or at such places where such a right has arisen by custom<sup>8</sup>, and in Scottish Law it has been held that the public as a whole could not acquire by prescription the right to embark and disembark on private ground<sup>9</sup>.

The owners of land on the banks of a non-tidal navigable river have, however, a number of rights and easements which they may enjoy<sup>10</sup>. Such an owner may moor vessels of ordinary size alongside a wharf on his land for the purpose of loading or unloading at reasonable times and for a reasonable duration and the owner of adjoining premises will be restrained by injunction from interfering with the vessel, even though it may overlap on to his frontage<sup>11</sup>. Such a vessel may not, however, interfere with the proper access to the neighbouring premises if used as a wharf or dock<sup>12</sup>. The owner of the bank may also moor a floating wharf alongside his premises, providing that in so doing he does not obstruct the navigation<sup>13</sup>. The erection of such works as jetties and piles on the bed of a navigable river is generally permissible unless the works actually interfere with the navigation<sup>14</sup>, but the owner of a structure on the bank or foreshore of a navigable river which presents a dangerous hidden obstruction to the river is responsible for any damage occasioned due to it without default on the part of the person sustaining the damage and must either keep the structure in repair or give adequate notice of its presence<sup>15</sup>. Equally, a wharf must be kept in a fit and proper condition to receive a vessel<sup>16</sup>.

Once the right of navigation exists over a particular waterway<sup>1</sup>, except with statutory authority no one may place anything there which is a nuisance to the navigation<sup>2</sup>. However, obstructions which existed when the right of navigation originated may not be removed, for the right to navigate must have been acquired subject to the continuance of those obstructions<sup>3</sup>.

Obstructions placed in a non-tidal waterway subsequent to the coming into existence of a public right of navigation there are remedied in the same way as obstructions to the public right of navigation in tidal waters<sup>4</sup>.

The public right of navigation in a non-tidal waterway may be extinguished in the same ways as the public right of navigation in tidal waters may be extinguished<sup>5</sup>. It is not lost by mere disuse<sup>6</sup>.

4 See PARAS 693-698. Where the public right of navigation extends to part only of a river and that part becomes blocked, there is no right to have abated an obstruction in any other part of the river the removal of which would enable the navigation of the river to be continued over that other part (Orr Ewing v Colquhoun (1877) 2 App Cas 839, HL); but where the public right of navigation extends to the whole width of a river and it is necessary to use a part of the river because the remainder has become choked, a weir in that part which is an obstruction is illegal and may be abated (see Williams v Wilcox (1838) 8 Ad & El 314; and PARA 692). The fact that a river becomes choked does not give the public a right to cut another passage through adjoining land: Ball v Herbert (1789) 3 Term Rep 253 at 263 per Buller J.

(4) WORKS INTERFERING WITH RIGHTS OF NAVIGATION

706. In general.

The Secretary of State for Transport may make a works order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 relating to, or to matters ancillary to: (1) the construction or operation of an inland waterway in England and Wales<sup>1</sup>; and (2) the carrying out of works which interfere with rights of navigation in waters within or adjacent to England and Wales, up to the seaward limits of the territorial sea<sup>2</sup>, and are of a description as prescribed by order made by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>. Such orders are discussed in detail elsewhere in this title<sup>4</sup>.

(5) CONTROL OF NAVIGATION

707. Maintenance of navigable rivers at common law.

At common law the owner of the bed of a navigable river<sup>1</sup> is not obliged to clear the channel of natural obstructions such as weed and silt and is not liable for any damage which in consequence results to adjoining owners<sup>2</sup>. Likewise a navigation authority, subject to the particular statutory provisions applicable to it, is not under a duty to cut weeds and dredge silt, unless required for the purposes of the navigation<sup>3</sup>. Where, however, a navigation authority chooses to keep the navigation open to the public and take tolls for its use, it must take reasonable care that the public may navigate without danger to life or property and this may include the necessity to regulate traffic<sup>4</sup>.

708. Control of navigation generally.

The Crown under the royal prerogative<sup>1</sup> exercised from the earliest times a jurisdiction over ports, harbours, rivers, creeks and arms of the sea and their navigation. This jurisdiction has over time devolved on a variety of public bodies<sup>2</sup>. The particular degree of control exercised by, and the rights, powers and duties of, these various navigation bodies depend very much on the particular statutes governing the navigation. Generally, however, such statutes contain provisions providing for the maintenance and improvement of the navigation and associated structures and for the making of byelaws to control activities in, or adjacent to, the navigable waterways and the imposition of charges on users of the navigation. Unless the relevant statute provides to the contrary the ownership of the bed and banks does not vest in the navigation authority<sup>3</sup>.

The British Waterways Board<sup>7</sup> has power to make byelaws for regulating the use of canals including the express power of excluding any vessel from its canals, or prohibiting the use by any vessel of canals, or prohibiting the use of its canals except in accordance with such conditions as the board may prescribe, save that the last mentioned byelaws do not apply to tidal waters<sup>8</sup>.

The Environment Agency has power to make byelaws in relation to certain recreational waterways for any matter falling within its functions as the authority responsible for maintaining and improving those waterways for the purposes of recreation and leisure and for controlling the navigation of those waterways<sup>9</sup>. The Agency also has certain general navigation powers where navigable waters are not under the control of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority<sup>10</sup>. Certain other authorities also have power to make byelaws in relation to the navigation of rivers<sup>11</sup>; and there are powers to make byelaws in respect of pleasure boats<sup>12</sup>.

709. General powers of the Environment Agency in relation to navigation.

The functions of the former National Rivers Authority as a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority are now vested in the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup>. The Agency may also apply to the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>3</sup> for an order<sup>4</sup> transferring to it any of the functions or property of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority<sup>5</sup>; and where, in accordance with this provision, the Agency may apply for an order transferring any functions or property of another body, that body may itself apply for such an order<sup>6</sup>. The Agency has further powers, with a view to improving the drainage of any land, to enter into various arrangements with a navigation authority or conservancy authority<sup>7</sup>.

Where it appears necessary or expedient to do so for the purposes of its relevant statutory functions<sup>8</sup>, the Agency may make byelaws prohibiting specified inland waters<sup>9</sup> from being used for boating, whether with mechanically propelled boats or otherwise, swimming or other recreational purposes<sup>10</sup>, or regulating the way in which the waters may be used for those purposes<sup>11</sup>. Byelaws for this purpose are not, however, to apply to any tidal or discrete waters<sup>12</sup>, any inland waters in relation to which functions are exercisable by a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority other than the Agency<sup>13</sup>, or any reservoir belonging to, and operated by, a water undertaker<sup>14</sup>. The byelaws may include provision prohibiting the use of the inland waters by boats which are not registered with the Agency in the manner provided by the byelaws<sup>15</sup>, and may authorise the Agency to impose reasonable charges in respect of the registration of boats in pursuance of the byelaws<sup>16</sup>. If any person<sup>17</sup> contravenes<sup>18</sup> any byelaws made by virtue of the above provisions he is guilty of an offence<sup>19</sup>.

With respect to any inland waters in relation to which:

- 1400 (1) there is a public right of navigation<sup>20</sup>; and
- 1401 (2) navigation in those waters:

68

- 23. (a) is not subject to the control of any navigation, harbour or conservancy authority<sup>21</sup>; or
- 24. (b) is subject to the control of such an authority as is prescribed<sup>22</sup> for these purposes by reason of its appearing to the Secretary of State<sup>23</sup> to be unable to carry out its functions<sup>24</sup>, and with respect to any land<sup>25</sup> associated with such waters, the Agency may make byelaws for a range of specified purposes<sup>26</sup>. The specified purposes are:

- 1402 (i) for the preservation of order in or on any such waters or land<sup>27</sup>;
- 1403 (ii) for the prevention of damage to anything in or on the waters or land or to the land<sup>28</sup>; and
- 1404 (iii) for securing that persons resorting to the waters or land behave so as to avoid undue interference with the enjoyment of the waters or land by others<sup>29</sup>; and such byelaws include<sup>30</sup> byelaws:

- 1405 (A) for the regulation of sailing, boating<sup>31</sup>, bathing and fishing and other forms of recreation<sup>32</sup>;
- 1406 (B) prohibiting the use of the inland waters in question by boats which are not registered with the Agency in the manner required by the byelaws<sup>33</sup>;
- 1407 (C) requiring the provision of sanitary appliances for the purposes of preventing pollution<sup>34</sup>;
- 1408 (D) authorising the imposition of reasonable charges in respect of the registration of boats for the purposes of the byelaws<sup>35</sup>; and
- 1409 (E) containing provision providing for a contravention of the byelaws to constitute a summary offence<sup>36</sup>.

The Agency has similar powers to make byelaws with respect to any waterways<sup>37</sup> owned or managed by it and with respect to any land held or managed with the waterway<sup>38</sup>.

1 The functions of the former National Rivers Authority as a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority which were transferred to the Authority by virtue of the Water Act 1989 Pt III Ch V (ss 142-150) (ss 143-150 repealed) or Sch 13 para 23(3) (repealed) or which were transferred to the Authority by any order or agreement under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2 were transferred to the Agency: see the Environment Act 1995 s 2(1)(vi); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARAS 70, 71. The navigations of the former National Rivers Authority were passed to the Authority from the former water authorities when the industry was privatised in 1989. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the role of the Agency in relation to inland waterways see PARA 733. Information as to the Agency as navigation authority is available on the Agency's website at www.environment-agency.gov.uk.

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

3 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the power of the Secretary of State to intervene in relation to functions exercisable by the Welsh Ministers where any particular case might have a serious adverse impact on water resources, water supply, or the quality of water in England see PARA 16.

4 The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2 para 1(2). As to the procedure in relation to such orders see Sch 2 paras 2-12 (Sch 2 paras 1-3, 5, 8, 10 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 para 128; Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2 para 8 further amended by SI 2003/2867). Any transfer of functions or property which could be effected by an order under the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2 may, with the consent of the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers be effected by agreement between the Agency and the other body concerned: Sch 2 para 1(3) (as so amended).

5 See the Environment Act 1995 s 2(1)(vii); Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2 para 1(1). For these purposes the references in Sch 2 para 1(1) to a navigation authority, to a harbour authority and to a conservancy authority each include a reference to a body which no longer has any members but which, if it had members would be such an authority: Sch 2 para 1(5). As to the meaning of 'navigation authority' see PARA 189 note 1. As to the meaning of 'harbour authority' see PARA 189 note 2. As to the meaning of 'conservancy authority' see PARA 189 note 3.

7 See the Water Resources Act 1991 s 111; and PARA 590.

8 If any of the functions specified in Environment Act 1995 s 2(1)(a)(i), (iii), (v): Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 25 para 1(1) (Sch 25 paras 1-3 amended by the Environment Act 1995 s 120(1), Sch 22 paras 128, 190). Those functions are the Agency's water resources management (see PARA 187 et seq), flood defence and land drainage functions under the Water Resources Act 1991 and the Land Drainage Act 1991 (see PARA 556 et seq) and certain fisheries functions (see AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES vol 1(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 847). ### 710. Powers of the Environment Agency and internal drainage boards to levy navigation tolls.

Where any navigable waters in England and Wales<sup>1</sup>, or in so much of the territorial sea<sup>2</sup> adjacent to England and Wales as is included in the area of a regional flood defence committee<sup>3</sup>, are not subject to the control of any navigation authority<sup>4</sup>, harbour authority<sup>5</sup> or conservancy authority<sup>6</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>7</sup> may apply to the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> or, in relation to Wales, to the Welsh Ministers<sup>9</sup> for an order imposing tolls in respect of the navigation of vessels<sup>10</sup> in those waters<sup>11</sup>. Such an order may not be made<sup>12</sup> unless the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers are satisfied that the cost of the maintenance or works in connection with the waters to which the order relates has been or will be increased as a result of the use of those waters for purposes of navigation<sup>13</sup>.

The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may hold inquiries for these purposes<sup>14</sup>, and may make such order as to the payment of costs incurred by them in connection with any such inquiry as they think just<sup>15</sup>. After the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers have made such an order, the order must be published in such manner as they think best adapted for informing the persons affected<sup>16</sup>. In the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, a notice must also be published with the order<sup>17</sup>.

The power of the Agency to make an application under the above provisions for the imposition of tolls in respect of navigation are, in the case of waters within an internal drainage district<sup>18</sup> which do not form part of a main river<sup>19</sup>, exercisable by the drainage board<sup>20</sup> for that district, concurrently with the Agency<sup>21</sup>.

Any tolls payable under an order made under these provisions in respect of the navigation of a vessel in any water may be demanded from the person in charge of the vessel by any person authorised for that purpose by the Agency or the drainage board<sup>22</sup>, and, if not paid on demand, may be recovered from either the person in charge of the vessel or its owner<sup>23</sup>.

16 Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 17 para 3(1). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

17 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 17 para 3(1). The notice must state: (1) that the Secretary of State has made the order (Sch 17 para 3(2)(a)); and (2) that the order will become final and have effect unless, within such period of not less than 30 days as may be specified in the notice, a memorial praying that the order be subject to special parliamentary procedure is presented to the Secretary of State, by a person who is affected by the order and has such an interest as may be prescribed as being sufficient for the purpose (Sch 17 para 3(2)(b)). If no such memorial has been presented within the period so mentioned in respect of any order (Sch 17 para 4(1)(a)), or every such memorial has been withdrawn (Sch 17 para 4(1)(b)), the Secretary of State must confirm the order and it thereupon has effect (Sch 17 para 4(1)). If such a memorial has been presented in respect of such an order and has not been withdrawn, the order is subject to special parliamentary procedure: Sch 17 para 4(2). An order is, in any event, subject to special parliamentary procedure if the Secretary of State so directs: Sch 17 para 4(3). The Secretary of State may, at any time before it has been laid before Parliament, revoke, either wholly or partially, any order that is subject to special parliamentary procedure: Sch 17 para 4(4). As to special parliamentary procedure see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 912 et seq. 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: see s 221(1). The following persons are deemed to have sufficient interest for the purpose of presenting a memorial: (a) the drainage board upon whose application the said order has been made; (b) any person using the navigable waters in respect of which the order has been made and who will be affected by the imposition of the tolls imposed thereby, or any association of traders or freighters or chambers of commerce, shipping or agriculture representing the interests of that person; (c) any harbour authority, conservancy authority or navigation authority whose harbour, conservancy or navigation may be reached by the said navigable waters: Land Drainage Act 1930 (Prescription of Interest) Regulations 1932, SR & O 1932/306, reg 1 (which regulations have effect by virtue of the Water Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1991 s 2(2), Sch 2 para 1(1), (2)). ### 711. Regulation of navigation by water and sewerage undertakers.

Under the Water Industry Act 1991, every relevant undertaker<sup>1</sup> has powers to regulate navigation by byelaws<sup>2</sup>. These powers are similar to those possessed by the Environment Agency<sup>3</sup>. Byelaws may be made with respect to any waterway<sup>4</sup> owned or managed by the undertakers and with respect to any land<sup>5</sup> held or managed with the waterway<sup>6</sup>, and may be made for any of the following purposes:

- 1410 (1) the preservation of order on or in any such waterway or land<sup>7</sup>;
- 1411 (2) the prevention of damage to anything on or in any such waterway or land or to any such land<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1412 (3) securing that persons<sup>9</sup> resorting to any such waterway or land behave so as to avoid undue interference with the enjoyment of the waterway or land by others<sup>10</sup>.

Such byelaws include byelaws:

- 1413 (a) regulating sailing, boating<sup>11</sup>, bathing and fishing and other forms of recreation<sup>12</sup>;
- 1414 (b) prohibiting the use of the waterway in question by boats which are not registered with the undertaker making the byelaws in the manner required by those byelaws<sup>13</sup>;
- 1415 (c) requiring the provision of such sanitary appliances as may be necessary for the purpose of preventing pollution<sup>14</sup>;
- 1416 (d) providing for a contravention<sup>15</sup> of the byelaws to constitute a summary offence<sup>16</sup>; and
- 1417 (e) authorising the imposition of reasonable charges in respect of the registration of boats for the purposes of the byelaws<sup>17</sup>.

No such byelaw has effect until confirmed by the Secretary of State<sup>18</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>19</sup>. At least one month<sup>20</sup> before it applies for the confirmation of any such byelaw, the undertaker concerned must cause a notice of its intention to make the application to be published in the London Gazette and in such other manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the proposed byelaw to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it<sup>21</sup>. Copies of the notice must be served<sup>22</sup> on any persons carrying out functions under any enactment<sup>23</sup> who appear to the undertaker to be concerned<sup>24</sup>; and a copy of the byelaw must be deposited, for at least one month before the application is made, at one or more of the undertaker's offices, including, if there is one, an office in the area to which the byelaw would apply<sup>25</sup>.

With or without a local inquiry<sup>26</sup>, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may refuse to confirm any byelaw submitted for confirmation by a relevant undertaker, or may confirm the byelaw either without or, if the undertaker consents, with modifications<sup>27</sup>. The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may fix the date on which any byelaw as confirmed is to come into force<sup>28</sup>, and if no date is fixed, the byelaw comes into force at the end of the period of one month beginning with the date of confirmation<sup>29</sup>.

Every byelaw made by a relevant undertaker and confirmed under these provisions must be printed and deposited at one or more of the undertaker's offices, including, if there is one, an office in the area to which the byelaw applies, and copies of the byelaw must be available at those offices, at all reasonable times, for inspection by the public free of charge<sup>30</sup>.

Byelaws made under these provisions cease to have effect at the end of the period of ten years beginning with the day when they were made unless extended by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers<sup>31</sup>. If it appears to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers that the revocation of a byelaw is necessary or expedient, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may<sup>32</sup> revoke that byelaw after giving notice<sup>33</sup> to the undertaker which made it<sup>34</sup> and considering any representations or objections made by that undertaker<sup>35</sup> and, if the undertaker so requires, holding a local inquiry<sup>36</sup>.

The production of a printed copy of a byelaw purporting to be made by a relevant undertaker upon which is indorsed a certificate, purporting to be signed on its behalf and giving the specified information<sup>37</sup> is prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the certificate, without proof of the handwriting or official position of any person purporting to sign the certificate<sup>38</sup>.

(6) THE RIVER THAMES

712. Navigation on the River Thames.

Navigation on the River Thames up to Teddington<sup>1</sup> is subject to the control of the Port of London Authority<sup>2</sup>. Statutory provision is made as to the regulation of navigation and vessels in this part of the river<sup>3</sup>, the removal of obstructions and hazards to navigation<sup>4</sup>, and works on and control of the river<sup>5</sup>. The authority has powers to make byelaws for conservation and improvement of the Thames as a navigable waterway, for the regulation of vessels in the river, and for various purposes to promote safety and to regulate the use of the river and its facilities<sup>6</sup>.

1 The boundary, called 'the landward limit', is a line drawn across the river from a stone pillar erected on the Surrey bank at grid coordinates TQ 16361 71912: see the Port of London Act 1968 s 2(1), Sch 1 para 1.

2 See the Port of London Act 1968 s 5. As to the Port of London Authority see PORTS AND HARBOURS vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 623 et seq.

5 See the Port of London Act 1968 Pt V (ss 60-93); and LONDON GOVERNMENT.

6 See the Port of London Act 1968 ss 162, 167; and LONDON GOVERNMENT.

7 For most purposes of the Thames Conservancy Acts 1932 to 1972, 'Thames' means so much of the Rivers Thames and Isis as is between the east side of the Town Bridge at Cricklade and the landward limit of the Port of London and so much of the River Kennet as is between a line drawn across the river 70 yards (64 metres) eastward of the east side of the High Bridge at Reading and the River Thames, and all locks, cuts and works within those portions of those rivers: Thames Conservancy Act 1932 s 4 (amended by the Thames Conservancy Act 1950 s 3). However, for the purposes of the statutory provisions relating to rights of navigation and the removal of obstructions and dangerous erections, certain parts of the rivers are excluded; while the Environment Agency has certain powers under the Thames Conservancy Act 1932 which are exercisable in the Thames below Teddington Lock: see further LONDON GOVERNMENT.

8 As to navigation on the River Thames above Teddington see LONDON GOVERNMENT. The Agency also has certain powers exercisable below Teddington: see further LONDON GOVERNMENT. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

(1) INTRODUCTION

(i) Waters and Waterways

713. Inland waterways and inland waters.

This part of this title sets out the law relating to inland waterways<sup>1</sup>. The treatment of inland waterways focuses on the law which establishes the navigation authorities<sup>2</sup> and which provides for certain aspects of the inland waterways system to be regulated and managed<sup>3</sup>.

The law relating to inland waters is discussed elsewhere in this title<sup>4</sup>, as is the public right of navigation in both tidal<sup>5</sup> and non-tidal waters<sup>6</sup>.

1 See PARA 714 et seq. For these purposes, inland waterways include the canals (narrow, broad and ship), the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads, the naturally navigable parts of tidal rivers (such as the Thames and the Severn) and many smaller rivers, as well as the rivers which have been made navigable, and the navigable drains of the Fens.

2 Ie principally the British Waterways Board, the Environment Agency, and the Broads Authority: see PARA 717 et seq.

A. LEGISLATIVE SCHEME

714. Development of the law of inland waterways.

Although parts of the law relating to interests in and rights over inland waters may be ancient<sup>1</sup>, the law relating to inland waterways has its modern origins in the special provision made in the second half of the 18th century and early 19th century in relation to canal companies and their running of the canals<sup>2</sup>.

With effect from 1 January 1948, canals were nationalised as part of the general scheme of the Transport Act 1947<sup>3</sup>, which also established the British Transport Commission<sup>4</sup>. However, only specified undertakings were vested in the Commission and some of the previous canal companies and corporations continued in existence<sup>5</sup>. With effect from 1 January 1963, the Transport Act 1962 reorganised the nationalised transport undertakings carried on by the British Transport Commission and, to this end, established four new boards as public authorities, together with a holding company, among which the functions and the property of the British Transport Commission were divided<sup>6</sup>. The British Waterways Board assumed responsibility for the nationalised part of the inland waterways system<sup>7</sup>.

The British Waterways Board is now but the largest of dozens of navigation authorities (some of which are public bodies, but others, such as the surviving canal companies, are private) that manage the inland waterways system, and the modern law relating to inland waterways set out in this title comprises a matrix of the law (mostly institutional and regulatory) that is relevant to each<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the law relating to inland waters see PARA 63 et seq.

2 Inland waterways were developed primarily as a freight transport system when the navigable rivers were supplemented by purpose-built canals built by promoters who obtained an Act of Parliament in each case, a procedure later used in the development of the railway system and works associated with it: see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 291 et seq. (Note, however, that there is no Clauses Consolidation legislation as there is with railways: see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 291). The legislation that regulated the canal companies and the canal system continues to have some residual relevance: see PARA 780 et seq. It should be noted also that, notwithstanding the powers and duties applicable to the British Waterways Board under general and local legislation (see PARA 725), the board remains subject to, and has the benefit of, over 500 special Acts under which the waterways it is now responsible for were created (see PARA 780 et seq).

3 As to which see the Transport Act 1947 s 12, Sch 3 (repealed).

4 The British Transport Commission was established under the Transport Act 1947 s 1 (repealed) with the general duty under s 3 (repealed) to provide an efficient, adequate, economical and properly integrated system of public inland transport and port facilities within Great Britain. As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 22 note 5.

5 Approximately half of the inland waterway system's capacity was brought under the control of the British Transport Commission as a result of nationalisation and some original canal companies, eg the Chelmer and Blackwater Navigation, still exist today as navigation authorities: see PARA 714.

6 The British Railways Board, the London Transport Board, the British Transport Docks Board and the British Waterways Board, together with the Transport Holding Company, were established as successors to the Commission: see the Transport Act 1962 ss 1, 29 (both as originally enacted). All the property, rights and liabilities of the Commission were transferred to and vested in the boards and the holding company: see Pt II (ss 31-42) (as originally enacted). See further RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 4.

715. Cognate law and legislation.

Numerous provisions in the legislation relating to the improvement of highways make express provision for the protection of canal and inland navigation undertakings<sup>8</sup>, and transport authorities<sup>9</sup> are entitled to special protection under the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991<sup>10</sup>.

Although special provision is not made, Part I of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 applies to work and work places in and around inland waterways as it applies generally<sup>11</sup>. Any inland waterway in England and Wales<sup>12</sup> comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board<sup>13</sup> which is not a commercial waterway or cruising waterway<sup>14</sup> is deemed to be a watercourse for the purpose of the provisions of the Public Health Act 1936<sup>15</sup> and is deemed to be land in relation to which the power<sup>16</sup> to require proper maintenance applies<sup>17</sup>.

1 Eg authority conferred by an authorising provision: see PARA 799 et seq.

2 As to the control of development and the planning system and legislation in England and Wales see generally TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 1.

3 For the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, 'statutory undertakers' means persons authorised by any enactment to carry on any railway, light railway, tramway, road transport, water transport, canal, inland navigation, dock, harbour, pier or lighthouse undertaking or any undertaking for the supply of hydraulic power and a relevant airport operator (within the meaning of the Airports Act 1986 Pt V (ss 57-62)): see the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 262(1); and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1009. As to duties imposed on statutory undertakers regarding litter see the Environmental Protection Act 1990 Pt IV (ss 86-99); and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 721 et seq.

4 In the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, 'operational land' means, in relation to statutory undertakers, land which is used for the purpose of carrying on their undertaking and land in which an interest is held for that purpose: see s 263(1); and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1010. This definition is subject to s 263(2)-(4) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1010) and to s 264 (cases in which land is to be treated as not being operational land: see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1011).

B. EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LAW

716. European Community legislation affecting inland waterways.

Although specific provision is made in the EC Treaty<sup>1</sup> for matters relating to inland waterways, the emphasis in that provision is on transport by inland waterway<sup>2</sup>. Given the geographical isolation of the network in Great Britain<sup>3</sup> from that of the other member states, the law so made has quite a limited application, notwithstanding its effect within certain areas of activity<sup>4</sup>.

Pursuant to the EC Treaty provisions which govern transport by inland waterway<sup>5</sup>, the following Regulations have been made:

- 1418 (1) the Regulation applying rules of competition to transport by rail, road and inland waterway<sup>6</sup>;
- 1419 (2) the Regulation on action by member states concerning the obligations inherent in the concept of a public service in transport by rail, road and inland waterway<sup>7</sup>;
- 1420 (3) the Regulation on the granting of aids for transport by rail, road and inland waterway<sup>8</sup>;
- 1421 (4) the Regulation introducing an accounting system for expenditure on infrastructure in respect of transport by rail, road and inland waterway<sup>9</sup>;
- 1422 (5) the Regulation on structural improvements in inland waterway transport<sup>10</sup>;
- 1423 (6) the Regulation on the elimination of controls performed at the frontiers of member states in the field of road and inland waterway transport<sup>11</sup>;
- 1424 (7) the Regulation laying down the conditions under which non-resident carriers may transport goods or passengers by inland waterway within a member state<sup>12</sup>;
- 1425 (8) the Regulation on controls carried out within the Community in the field of road and inland waterway transport in respect of means of transport registered or put into circulation in a third country<sup>13</sup>;
- 1426 (9) the Regulation on common rules applicable to the transport of goods or passengers by inland waterway between member states with a view to establishing freedom to provide such transport services<sup>14</sup>; and
- 1427 (10) the Regulation on a Community-fleet capacity policy to promote inland waterway transport<sup>15</sup>.

The following Directives have been also been made pursuant to those Treaty provisions<sup>16</sup>:

- 1428 (a) the Directive on reciprocal recognition of navigability licences for inland waterway vessels<sup>17</sup>;
- 1429 (b) the Directive on the reciprocal recognition of national boatmasters' certificates for the carriage of goods and passengers by inland waterway<sup>18</sup>;
- 1430 (c) the Directive on the appointment and vocational qualification of safety advisers for the transport of dangerous goods by road, rail and inland waterway<sup>19</sup>;
- 1431 (d) the Directive on the harmonisation of the conditions for obtaining national boatmasters' certificates for the carriage of goods and passengers by inland waterway in the Community<sup>20</sup>;

- 1432 (e) the Directive on the systems of chartering and pricing in national and international inland waterway transport in the Community<sup>21</sup>;
- 1433 (f) the Directive laying down technical requirements for inland waterway vessels<sup>22</sup>.

The Working Time Directive is also relevant to the extent that it applies to mobile workers on inland waterways<sup>23</sup>.

4    The provisions mentioned in this paragraph are referred to mostly for the sake of completeness, with the exception of the Directive laying down technical requirements for inland waterway vessels (see head (f) in the text), which, as implemented by the Recreational Craft Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1464 (see note 22), has had a significant impact on the inland boating business. The employment-related measures cited in notes 20, 23 should also be noted for their effect.

EC Council Regulation 1191/69 (OJ L156, 28.06.1969, p 1 (S Edn 1952-1972 p 33)) of 26 June 1969 on action by member states concerning the obligations inherent in the concept of a public service in transport by rail, road and inland waterway (amended by EC Council Regulation 3572/90 (OJ L353, 17.12.1990, p 12); and EC Council Regulation 1893/91 (OJ L169, 29.06.1991, p 1)). EC Council Regulation 1191/69 is repealed as of 3 December 2009: see European Parliament and Council Regulation 1370/2007 (OJ L315, 3.12.2007, p 1) arts 10.1, 12. European Parliament and Council Regulation 1370/2007 does not cover the award of public service contracts in relation to public passenger transport services by inland waterway; and, therefore, the organisation of public passenger transport services by inland waterway and, in so far as they are not covered by specific Community law, by national sea water will be subject, from 3 December 2009, to compliance with the general principles of the Treaty, unless member states choose to apply the Regulation to those specific sectors: see Preamble para (10), art 12.

(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS

(i) In general

717. Control of waterways, etc.

The jurisdiction over ports, harbours, rivers, creeks and arms of the sea and their navigation, exercised from the earliest times by the Crown under the royal prerogative, has devolved over time on a variety of bodies<sup>1</sup>.

Accordingly, control and ownership of the modern inland waterways system is diverse, being shared by more than 30 navigation authorities<sup>2</sup> (some public bodies, others private) and the particular degree of control they exercise, and the rights, powers and duties conferred on them, depend very much on the particular statutes which govern the waterways under their control<sup>3</sup>. The largest navigation authority, the British Waterways Board<sup>4</sup>, has power to make byelaws for regulating the use of canals<sup>5</sup> including the express power of excluding any vessel from its canals, or prohibiting the use by any vessel of canals, or prohibiting the use of its canals except in accordance with such conditions as the board may prescribe, save that the last mentioned byelaws do not apply to tidal waters<sup>6</sup>. The Environment Agency<sup>7</sup> also has power to make byelaws in relation to certain recreational waterways for any matter falling within its functions as the authority responsible for maintaining and improving those waterways for the purposes of recreation and leisure and for controlling the navigation of those waterways<sup>8</sup>. Certain other authorities also have powers to make byelaws in relation to the navigation of their rivers<sup>9</sup>; and there are powers to make byelaws in respect of pleasure boats<sup>10</sup>.

The International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea 1972<sup>11</sup> apply to all vessels upon the high seas and in all waters connected with the high seas and navigable by seagoing vessels<sup>12</sup>, except that those rules do not interfere with the operation of a special local rule as to the navigation of any harbour, river, lake or inland water<sup>13</sup>.

1 See PARA 708. As to provision made for Crown rights in the British Waterways Acts see PARA 725.

2 As to navigation authorities see PARA 718.

3 Generally, however, such statutes contain provisions providing for the maintenance and improvement of the navigation and associated structures, for the making of byelaws to control activities in, or adjacent to, the navigable waterways, and the imposition of charges on users of the navigation: see PARA 708.

4 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

5 As to canal byelaws, regulations and offences see PARA 784 et seq.

6 See the British Waterways Act 1971 s 5; and PARA 786. As to tidal inland waters see PARA 71 et seq.

7 As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17.

8 See PARA 709. The Environment Agency also has certain general navigation powers where navigable waters are not under the control of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority: see PARA 710.

9 Most notable of these is the Broads Authority under the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988: see PARA 734 et seq.

10 See PARA 684 et seq.

11 See the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea (London, 20 October 1972; TS 77 (1977); Cmnd 6962) rr 1-36, Annexes I-III: see SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW vol 94 (2008) PARA 715 et seq.

12 As respects United Kingdom ships and other ships in United Kingdom waters, see the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea 1972 reg 1(a); the Merchant Shipping (Distress Signals and Prevention of Collisions) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/75; and SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW vol 94 (2008) PARA 720.

13 See the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea 1972 reg 1(b); the Merchant Shipping (Distress Signals and Prevention of Collisions) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/75; and SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW vol 94 (2008) PARA 720.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) In general/718. The navigation authorities.

718. The navigation authorities.

The identity of the navigation authority responsible for a particular waterway is often a matter of historical accident and each authority tends to govern through its own legislative regime<sup>1</sup>. The three largest of the navigation authorities are:

- 1434 (1) the British Waterways Board, whose system consists largely of canals and river navigations which were nationalised in 1948<sup>2</sup>;
- 1435 (2) the Environment Agency, whose navigations were passed to it from the former National Rivers Authority which in turn had inherited them from the former water authorities when the industry was privatised in 1989<sup>3</sup>;
- 1436 (3) the Broads Authority, which was made the navigation authority for the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads when it was created in 1988<sup>4</sup>.

Both the British Waterways Board and the Environment Agency receive government grants towards the cost of meeting their navigation obligations; the Broads Authority receives grant aid from central and local government for its conservation work and recreational management but finances its navigation responsibilities entirely from tolls<sup>5</sup>.

Other waterways have stayed in the hands of<sup>6</sup>, or have passed into the control of, a wide variety of other bodies, many of them in the private sector and for whom navigation may not be the prime concern<sup>7</sup>.

However, this position is not static. The British Waterways Board has power to apply to the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> for an order transferring all or part of the undertaking of any navigation authority and any functions or property of such authority<sup>9</sup>; and the Environment Agency may apply to the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers for an order transferring to it the functions of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority<sup>10</sup>.

Navigation on the River Thames up to Teddington<sup>11</sup> is subject to the control of the Port of London Authority<sup>12</sup>, and above Teddington to the control of the Environment Agency<sup>13</sup>.

1 The most commonly cited statutory definition of 'navigation authority' is that in the Water Resources Act 1991 (which also provides the common statutory definitions of 'harbour authority' and 'conservancy authority'): see PARA 189 notes 1-3. However, as to the meaning of 'navigation authority' under the British Waterways Act 1983 see PARA 731 note 3. A list of navigation authorities is available on the British Waterways Board website www.britishwaterways.co.uk.

2 As to the nationalisation of canals and rivers etc see PARA 714. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

3 See PARA 733. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. Historically, most of the navigations referred to in head (2) in the text had been controlled by river boards or conservancies mainly concerned with land drainage. As to the transfer of functions of the National Rivers Authority to the Environment Agency see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 70.

4 See PARA 734 et seq.

5 As to the general duties and powers of the British Waterways Board see PARA 738 et seq; and as to navigation authorities other than the British Waterways Board see PARA 772 et seq.

6 Eg in the case of original canal companies which have survived: see PARA 714.

7 This category of bodies includes property development companies (eg in the case of the Manchester Ship Canal); drainage commissioners (eg in the case of the Middle Level Navigation); the National Trust (in the case of the River Wey Navigations); port authorities (eg in the case of the tidal Thames: see also the text to notes 11-12); and local authorities (eg in the case of the Basingstoke Canal). Charitable trusts (such as the Upper Avon Navigation, for whom navigation is the primary concern) may also be a navigation authority, the improvement and operation of public inland navigation being a legitimate charitable object: see eg the definition of 'qualified body' in the Transport Act 1968 s 113; and PARA 720 note 2.

The standards applied by this category of navigation authority may be defined, for example, by reference to the depth of water to be maintained through the system, or by the main type of user, but, in some cases, there may be no statutory requirement to maintain standards.

8 As to the Secretary of State (which may include references to the Welsh Ministers in relation to Wales) see PARA 719.

9 See PARA 731. British Waterways has taken over a number of waterways including the south Stratford-upon-Avon Canal (strictly speaking, a transfer back from the National Trust, it having previously been in the ownership and control of the British Transport Commission), the Yorkshire Ouse, the Linton Lock Navigation, and the Tees Navigation.

10 See the Water Resources Act 1991 Sch 2; and PARA 709.

11 Ie where the river becomes tidal.

12 As to the Port of London Authority see PORTS AND HARBOURS vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 623 et seq.

13 See PARA 712. Historically, the Thames Conservancy was responsible for the management of the upper Thames from its source to Teddington and had far-reaching powers concerning the navigation etc of the river, which were contained in the Thames Conservancy Acts 1932 to 1972. These are local provisions outside the scope of this work but they were applied to the Thames Water Authority (now the Environment Agency) by virtue of the Water Act 1973 s 34(2), Sch 6 Pt II (repealed): see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 342.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) In general/719. The Secretary of State and Welsh Ministers.

719. The Secretary of State and Welsh Ministers.

The Minister of Transport is named in the Transport Acts of 1962 and 1968 as the minister responsible for dealing with the matters under those Acts<sup>1</sup> and that minister's functions are now vested in the Secretary of State for Transport<sup>2</sup>. More recent enactments refer simply to the 'Secretary of State'<sup>3</sup>. Amongst other duties, it is the duty of the Secretary of State to promote a national policy for the use of inland waterways for commercial transport<sup>4</sup>.

The control and management of the inland waterways system in England and Wales<sup>5</sup> rests with the various navigation authorities (both public and private)<sup>6</sup>. The biggest of the public bodies, namely the British Waterways Board and the Environment Agency<sup>7</sup>, both fall within the remit of the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs<sup>8</sup>.

Many statutory functions vested in a Minister of the Crown, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, have been transferred to the Welsh Ministers<sup>9</sup>.

1 See definition of 'the minister' in the Transport Act 1962 s 92(1) and the Transport Act 1968 s 159(1) (definition amended by the Railways Act 1993 s 152, Sch 14). The origins of this line of responsibility can be traced to when the inland waterways were regarded mainly as a transport asset: see PARA 714.

2 The Secretary of State for the Environment Order 1970, SI 1970/1681, abolished the Ministry of Transport and, subject to limited exceptions not relevant to the Transport Acts of 1962 and 1968, transferred to the Secretary of State (in effect the Secretary of State for the Environment) the functions of the Minister of Transport. The Secretary of State for Transport Order 1976, SI 1976/1775, created a separate Department of Transport and all the transport functions of the Secretary of State for the Environment were transferred to the Secretary of State for Transport. In 1979, by virtue of the Minister of Transport Order 1979, SI 1979/571, a Ministry of Transport was again formed and the functions of the Secretary of State for Transport were transferred to the Minister of Transport. This situation continued until 1981, when, by virtue of the Transfer of Functions (Transport) Order 1981, SI 1981/238, the functions of the Minister of Transport were again transferred to the Secretary of State for Transport. The Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions Order 1997, SI 1997/2971, arts 3-6, transferred the functions of the Secretary of State for Transport to the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions. By virtue of the Transfer of Functions (Transport, Local Government and the Regions) Order 2002, SI 2002/2626, those functions were again transferred to the Secretary of State for Transport.

3 See eg the Transport Act 1978. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

4 See the Transport Act 1978 s 13.

5 As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2.

6 As to the bodies which act as navigation authorities in England and Wales see PARA 718.

7 See PARA 717.

8 As to the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 452 et seq; ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 58 et seq.

9 These functions were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales by the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, arts 2, 3, Sch 1 and are now vested in the Welsh Ministers by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. Where such transfer has taken place this is referred to in the paragraph in question.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) In general/720. Power conferred on navigation authorities to make waterways byelaws.

720. Power conferred on navigation authorities to make waterways byelaws.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may, on the application of any qualified body<sup>2</sup> which owns or manages an inland waterway<sup>3</sup> and after consultation<sup>4</sup> with the relevant authority<sup>5</sup>, by order confer on that body power to make byelaws in relation to that waterway for such purposes as may be specified in the order<sup>6</sup>. Byelaws made by virtue of such an order do not have effect until confirmed by the Secretary of State, and before applying to the Secretary of State for the confirmation of any byelaws the body concerned must take such steps as may be specified in the order for securing that persons<sup>7</sup> affected by the byelaws have an opportunity of making representations thereon to the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup>.

If any person contravenes, or fails to comply with, any byelaws made by virtue of such an order he is guilty of an offence<sup>9</sup>. Such an order may contain such supplementary provisions as the Secretary of State thinks necessary or expedient<sup>10</sup>.

1 The Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719. Functions in relation to Wales under the Transport Act 1968 s 113 are not transferred to the Welsh Ministers.

2 'Qualified body' means any navigation authority as defined in the Water Resources Act 1991 s 221(1) (see PARA 189 note 1), a body mentioned in the Transport Act 1968 s 109(2) (except in s 109(2)(c)) (see PARA 743) and any other body having public or charitable objects: s 113(5); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(a). As to the navigation authorities generally see PARA 718. As to the power conferred on the British Waterways Board to make canal byelaws under the British Transport Commission Act 1954 s 16 see PARA 770. As to byelaws made by canal companies see PARA 780.

3 'Inland waterway' includes every such waterway whether natural or artificial: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1); Transport Act 1968 s 159(1).

4 As to the exercise of the duty to consult see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 627.

5 'Relevant authority', in relation to any order, means, except in a case where it is itself the applicant for the order, the Environment Agency or any local authority in whose area the waterway in question is wholly or partly situated: Transport Act 1968 s 113(5) (amended by the Water Act 1989 s 190, Sch 25 para 38; and by virtue of SI 1996/593). As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. 'Local authority' means as respects England and Wales, the council of a county, county district or London borough, and the Common Council of the City of London: Transport Act 1968 s 115(3) (definition amended by the Local Government Act 1972 s 272(1), Sch 30; Local Government Act 1985 s 102, Sch 17). As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> may make grants or other payments for the purpose of securing or encouraging the carriage of goods by inland waterway or by sea rather than by road where satisfied that that is in the public interest<sup>3</sup>. Such grants or payments may in particular be made in respect of facilities for or in connection with the carriage of goods by inland waterway or by sea (including facilities for loading or unloading goods)<sup>4</sup>; and must be of such amount and subject to such conditions (including conditions requiring their repayment in specified circumstances) as the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers may determine<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 So far as it relates to inland waterways in Wales the power conferred by the Transport Act 2000 s 272 is a power of the Welsh Ministers: s 272(4); Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 32. Functions under the Transport Act 2000 s 272 were originally vested in the National Assembly for Wales and are now exercisable by the Welsh Ministers by virtue of the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. #### 725. The British Waterways Board.

The undertakings that had been brought under the control of the British Transport Commission by virtue of the Transport Act 1947<sup>1</sup> were reorganised under the Transport Act 1962<sup>2</sup> so that the Commission's inland waterway undertaking and certain harbours<sup>3</sup> came to rest with the British Waterways Board, a public authority established by that same statute<sup>4</sup>. The British Waterways Board's strategy for the nationalised part of the inland waterways system led to a Government White Paper<sup>5</sup> the proposals of which were put into effect by the Transport Act 1968, thereby giving the British Waterways Board a new remit to develop its waterways' potential for leisure, envisaging that the bulk of the system should be kept for pleasure cruising<sup>6</sup>.

The board's statutory powers conferred by the various Transport Acts have been supplemented by the British Waterways Acts 1963 to 1995<sup>7</sup>. Nothing in the British Waterways Act 1995 affects prejudicially any estate, right, power, privilege, authority or exemption of the Crown<sup>8</sup>, or prejudices or derogates from the jurisdiction or authority or any of the rights or privileges of the Corporation of Trinity House of Deptford Strond<sup>9</sup>. Provision is made under the British Waterways Act 1995 for certain matters to be referred to arbitration<sup>10</sup>; and for certain legal proceedings to be instituted in the county court rather than in the High Court<sup>11</sup>.

7 The British Waterways Acts 1963 to 1988 and the British Waterways Act 1995 may be cited together as the British Waterways Acts 1963 to 1995: see the British Waterways Act 1995 s 1(2). Being local Acts these are usually outside the scope of this work. However, the British Waterways Act 1995 is set out in some detail in this title. The Act confers powers on the British Waterways Board to secure the safety of the waterway users and of owners and occupiers of adjoining land by providing for it to enter land and repair or maintain (or to carry out other operations with respect to) the waterways and undertakings owned or managed by it, as well as other works: see Pt II (ss 3-14); and PARA 762 et seq. The British Waterways Act 1995 also provides for the regulation and management of the board's waterways (see Pt III (ss 16-21); and PARA 786 et seq), imposes general environmental and recreational duties on the board (see PARA 745), and enables the board to establish undertakings on request (see PARA 748). Some provisions of the Act have local application only and are not covered: see ss 25-30. The British Waterways Acts 1963 to 1988 are not set out in detail but are referred to where this is considered appropriate: see principally PARA 762 et seq; also PARAS 731-732.

8 Nothing in the British Waterways Board Act 1995 affects prejudicially any estate, right, power, privilege, authority or exemption of the Crown including (without prejudice to the general law concerning the applicability of statutes to the Duchy of Cornwall) the Duchy of Cornwall and, in particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, nothing in the Act authorises the British Waterways Board to take, use, enter upon or in any manner interfere with, any land or hereditaments or any rights of whatsoever description (including any portion of the shore or bed of the sea or of any river, channel, creek, bay or estuary):

- 35 (1) belonging to Her Majesty in right of Her Crown and under the management of the Crown Estate Commissioners, without the consent in writing of those commissioners (s 34(1)(a));
- 36 (2) belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall or enjoyed by the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall without the consent in writing of the Duke of Cornwall testified in writing under the seal of the Duchy or, as the case may be, the consent in writing of two or more of such of the regular officers of the Duchy or of such other persons as may be duly authorised under the Duchy of Cornwall Management Act 1863 s 39 (see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 322) (British Waterways Act 1995 s 34(1)(b)); or
- 37 (3) belonging to a government department, or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department, without the consent in writing of that government department (s 34(1)(c)).

A consent under s 34(1) may be given unconditionally or subject to such conditions and on such terms as are considered necessary or appropriate: s 34(2). 10 Where under any provision of the British Waterways Act 1995 any difference (other than a difference as to the meaning or construction of that provision) is to be determined by arbitration, then such difference must be referred to and settled by a single arbitrator to be agreed between the parties or, failing agreement, to be appointed on the application of either party (after notice in writing to the other), by the President of the Institution of Civil Engineers: British Waterways Act 1995 s 32. The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-84) apply to any such arbitration: see s 94; and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1209.

726. Constitution of the British Waterways Board.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> consists of a chairman, a vice chairman and not more than nine nor less than four other members<sup>2</sup>. The chairman of the board is appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, and the other members of the board (including any vice chairman) are appointed by the Secretary of State after consultation with the chairman of the board<sup>4</sup>. The chairmen and other members of the board are appointed from among persons who appear to the Secretary of State to have had wide experience of, and to have shown capacity in, the operation, management or administration of inland navigations or related matters or who appear to him to have special knowledge relating to some important aspect of the board's work or to have had wide experience of, and to have shown capacity in, transport, industrial, commercial or financial matters, administration, applied science or the organisation of workers<sup>5</sup>. In appointing persons to the British Waterways Board, the Secretary of State must have regard to the desirability of having members who are familiar with the special requirements and circumstances of particular regions and areas served by the board in England and Wales<sup>6</sup>.

Before appointing a person to be a member of the board, the Secretary of State must satisfy himself that that person will have no such financial or other interest as is likely to affect prejudicially the discharge by him of his functions<sup>7</sup> as a member of the board, and the Secretary of State must also satisfy himself from time to time with respect to every member of the board that he has no such interest; and any person who is, or whom the Secretary of State proposes to appoint to be, a member of the board must, whenever requested by the Secretary of State to do so, furnish to him such information as the Secretary of State considers necessary for the performance by the Secretary of State of his duties with regard to members' interests<sup>8</sup>.

A member of the British Waterways Board holds and vacates his office in accordance with the terms of his appointment and is, on ceasing to be a member, eligible for re-appointment<sup>9</sup>. Any member appointed by the Secretary of State may at any time by notice in writing<sup>10</sup> to the Secretary of State resign that member's office<sup>11</sup>. The board must pay to its members such salaries or fees, and such allowances, as the Secretary of State may, with the approval of the Treasury<sup>12</sup>, determine<sup>13</sup>. If a person ceases to be a member of the board, otherwise than on the expiration of his term of office, and it appears to the Secretary of State that there are special circumstances which make it right that that person should receive compensation the Secretary of State may, with the approval of the Treasury, require the board to pay to that person a sum of such amount as the Secretary of State may with the approval of the Treasury determine<sup>14</sup>.

The Secretary of State must, as soon as possible after the first appointment by him of any person as a member of the board, lay before each House of Parliament<sup>15</sup> a statement of the salary or fees and of the allowances that are or will be payable under the above provisions; and, if any subsequent determination by him under those provisions involves a departure from the terms of that statement, or if such a determination by him relates to the payment of, or of payment towards the provision of, a pension to or in respect of, a member of the board, the Secretary of State must, as soon as possible after the determination, lay a statement thereof before each House of Parliament<sup>16</sup>.

Members of the British Waterways Board are disqualified for membership of the House of Commons<sup>17</sup>.

As to the exercise of the duty to consult see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 627. As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

- 6 Transport Act 1962 s 1(6A)(a) (s 1(6A) added by SI 2000/3251). Likewise, the Scottish Ministers are to have regard to the desirability of having members who appear to them to have special knowledge of Scotland: Transport Act 1962 s 1(6A)(b) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2.
- 7 'Function' includes powers, duties and obligations: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1).
- 8 Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 7(1). This provision also applies to any appointment to the board made by the Scottish Ministers: see Sch 1 para 7(1A) (added by SI 2000/3251). As to members interests see further PARA 727.

- 11 Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 6(2) (Sch 1 para 6(2) substituted, (3) added, by SI 2000/3251). Any member appointed by the Scottish Ministers may by notice in writing to them resign that member's office: see the Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 6(3) (as so added).
- 12 As to the meaning of 'Treasury' see PARA 108 note 6.
- 13 Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 8(1)(a). The references to the approval of the Treasury (which, by virtue of the Minister for the Civil Service Order 1968, SI 1968/1656, art 2(1)(c), 3(2) (lapsed) are to have effect as if they were references to the Minister for the Civil Service) are omitted: Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 8(1)(b) (substituted by SI 2000/3251). It is thought this substitution is an error. The Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 8(1)(b) as enacted and subsequently amended, read: 'in the case of any of the members as to whom the Secretary of State may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine that such provision should be made, must pay to or in respect of them such pensions as he may determine; (by virtue of the Minister for the Civil Service Order 1968, SI 1968/1656, art 2(1)(c), 3(2), the reference above to the approval of the Treasury is to have effect as if it were a reference to the approval of the Minister for the Civil Service)': Transport Act 1962 Sch 1 para 8(1)(b) (amended by the Transport Act 1968 s 67). 'Pension', in relation to a person, means a pension, whether contributory or not, of any kind whatsoever payable to or in respect of him, and includes a gratuity so payable and a return of contributions to a pension fund, with or without interest thereon or any other addition thereto and any sums payable on or in respect of the death of that person: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1). As to pensions and pension schemes see ss 73, 74 (amended by the Statute Law Revision (Consequential Repeals) Act 1965; Arbitration Act 1996 s 107(1), Sch 3 para 16(2); Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 15(1), Sch 4 Pt 1 paras 53, 54); and the Transport Act 1968 s 136 (amended by the Railways Act 1993 s 152, Sch 14).

As to the application of Sch 1 para 8(1) to appointments made by the Scottish Ministers see Sch 1 para 8(1A) (Sch 1 para 8(1A) added, (3) amended, by SI 2000/3251). So much of Sch 1 para 8(1) as requires that the pensions, if any, which are to be paid in the case of members of the board are to be determined by the Secretary of State with the approval of the Treasury (or in the case of appointments made by them, by the Scottish Ministers) does not apply in relation to any pension payable apart from the provisions of Sch 1 para 8: Sch 1 para 8(3) (as so amended).

727. Status and proceedings of the British Waterways Board.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> is a public authority<sup>2</sup>, and body corporate with perpetual succession and a common seal<sup>3</sup>. The board may act notwithstanding a vacancy among its members<sup>4</sup>. The quorum of the board is three and, subject as above, the board may regulate its own procedure<sup>5</sup>. The application of the seal of the board must be authenticated by the signature of the secretary of the board or some other person authorised by the board, either generally or specially, to act for that purpose<sup>6</sup>. Every document purporting to be an instrument issued by the board and to be so sealed, or to be signed on behalf of the board, must be received in evidence and is deemed to be such an instrument without further proof unless the contrary is shown<sup>7</sup>.

A member of the board who is in any way directly or indirectly interested in a contract made or proposed to be made by the board must disclose the nature of his interest at a meeting of the board; and the disclosure must be recorded in the minutes of the board, and the member must not take any part in any deliberation or decision of the board with respect to that contract<sup>8</sup>. A member of the board need not attend in person at a meeting of the board in order to make any disclosure which he is so required to make if he takes reasonable steps to secure that the disclosure is made by a notice which is brought up and read at the meeting<sup>9</sup>.

The board is not to be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown, or as enjoying any status, immunity or privilege of the Crown, or (subject to the express provisions of the Transport Act 1962 relating to stamp duty<sup>10</sup> and income tax) as exempt from any tax, duty, rate, levy or other charge whatsoever, whether general or local, and its property is not to be regarded as property of, or property held on behalf of, the Crown<sup>11</sup>.

Conduct of its business by the British Waterways Board.

B. CONDUCT OF BUSINESS BY THE BRITISH WATERWAYS BOARD

728. Conduct of its business by the British Waterways Board.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may, after consultation with the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup>, give to that board directions<sup>3</sup> of a general character as to the exercise and performance by the board of its functions<sup>4</sup> (including the exercise of rights conferred by the holding of interests in companies) in relation to matters which appear to him to affect the national interest<sup>5</sup>. The board, in framing and carrying out proposals involving substantial outlay on capital account by the board or by a subsidiary of the board<sup>6</sup>, must act on lines settled from time to time with the approval of the Secretary of State<sup>7</sup>. Similarly, in the exercise and performance of its functions as to training and education, the board must act on lines settled from time to time with the approval of the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup>.

Without prejudice to the above provisions, the Secretary of State may, after consultation with the board, direct it to discontinue any of its activities, dispose of any part of its undertaking, dispose of any assets held by it, call in any loan made by it or exercise any power it may possess to revoke any guarantees given by it<sup>9</sup>. However, the Secretary of State must not give any such directions unless he is satisfied that the carrying on of the activities or the retention of the part of the undertaking or the assets or the continuance of the loan or guarantee, as the case may be, is unnecessary for the proper discharge of the duties of the board under the Transport Act 1962<sup>10</sup>. The Secretary of State may, after consultation with the board, direct it to exercise its control over its subsidiary so as to require the subsidiary to discontinue any of its activities, dispose of any part of its undertaking, dispose of any assets held by it, call in any loan made by it or exercise any power it may possess to revoke any guarantees given by it<sup>11</sup>.

If it appears to the Secretary of State that there is anything which the board ought in the interests of national defence to have power to do, or which the board ought in the interests of national defence to be required to do, and that it would be consistent with the duties imposed on the board by the Transport Act 1962, he may authorise or direct the board to do that thing; and no limitation on the powers of the board contained in the Act or in any local enactment<sup>12</sup> prevents the board from acting in accordance with the authorisation or direction<sup>13</sup>.

The board must furnish the Secretary of State with such returns, accounts and other information with respect to its property and activities, and the property and activities of any company which is its subsidiary, as he may from time to time require<sup>14</sup>. However, the board must, as soon as possible after the end of each of its accounting years, make to the Secretary of State a report on the exercise and performance of its functions during that year and on its policy and programme, and the Secretary of State must lay a copy of every such report before each House of Parliament<sup>15</sup>. The report for any year must set out any direction given by the Secretary of State<sup>16</sup> to the board during that year, unless the Secretary of State has notified to the board his opinion that it is against the interests of national security to do so, and must include a statement of the salaries or fees and of the emoluments of each of the members of the board during that year<sup>17</sup>.

The board must operate a machinery for negotiation and consultation with staff<sup>18</sup>.

UPDATE

728 Conduct of its business by the British Waterways Board

NOTE 18--Transport Act 1968 s 137 further amended: Local Transport Act 2008 Sch 4 para 14.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(ii) The British Waterways Board/B. CONDUCT OF BUSINESS BY THE BRITISH WATERWAYS BOARD/729. Subsidiaries of the British Waterways Board.

729. Subsidiaries of the British Waterways Board.

It is the duty of the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> to exercise its control over each of its subsidiaries<sup>2</sup> so as to ensure that the subsidiary:

- 1437 (1) does not engage in activities in which the board has no power to engage (including activities in which the board has no power to engage because the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> has not been obtained)<sup>4</sup>;
- 1438 (2) does not do anything which the Secretary of State has directed the board not to do<sup>5</sup>;
- 1439 (3) does not, except with the consent of the Secretary of State, borrow money from any person<sup>6</sup> other than the board<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1440 (4) does not, except with the consent of the Secretary of State, raise money by the issue of shares or stock to any person other than the board<sup>8</sup>.

The Secretary of State may give to the board such directions<sup>9</sup> as appear to him appropriate for ensuring that the board carries out the duty so imposed on it<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 'Subsidiary', in relation to any body corporate, means a body corporate which is a subsidiary of the first mentioned body corporate as defined by the Companies Act 1985 s 736: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1) (definition amended by the Companies Consolidation (Consequential Provisions) Act 1985 s 30, Sch 2; Companies Act 1989 s 144(4), Sch 18 para 4; Railways Act 1993 s 152, Sch 14); Transport Act 1968 s 159(1) (definition amended by the Railways Act 1993 s 36(5)). The Transport Act 1962 s 25(1) does not apply in the case of a joint subsidiary: see the Transport Act 1968 s 51(6) (amended by SI 2000/3251). For these purposes, where a company of which two or more authorities to which the Transport Act 1968 s 51 applies are members would, if those authorities were a single body corporate, be a wholly owned subsidiary of that body corporate, then, whether or not that company is apart from s 51(6) a subsidiary of one of those authorities, that company is deemed for the purposes of the Transport Act 1962 and of the provisions of the Transport Act 1968 other than Pt VI (ss 95-103) (drivers' hours) to be a wholly owned subsidiary of each of those authorities; and any such company is referred to in s 51 in relation to each of those authorities as a 'joint subsidiary' of that authority: s 51(5) (amended by the Goods Vehicles (Licensing of Operators) Act 1995 s 60(1), Sch 7 para 3).

Powers exercisable subject to consent of the Secretary of State.

730. Powers exercisable subject to consent of the Secretary of State.

Any consent which the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> is authorised to give<sup>2</sup> may be given for any case or description of cases specified in the consent, or may be general, and may be given subject to conditions<sup>3</sup>. Nothing done by the British Waterways Board<sup>4</sup> is unlawful on the ground that it was done without the necessary consent of the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>. If it appears to the Secretary of State that the board proposes to do anything, or has done anything, without the consent of the Secretary of State which in his opinion requires his consent, he must, after consultation with the board<sup>6</sup>, give it such directions<sup>7</sup> as appear to him to be appropriate<sup>8</sup>. The directions which the Secretary of State may give under this power in a case where the board has already done anything without his consent may in particular require the board to discontinue any activity or to dispose of any assets, and directions may be so given notwithstanding that they make it necessary for the board to dispose of assets at a loss<sup>9</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(ii) The British Waterways Board/B. CONDUCT OF BUSINESS BY THE BRITISH WATERWAYS BOARD/731. Transfer of undertakings to the British Waterways Board.

731. Transfer of undertakings to the British Waterways Board.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may on application to him by the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> make an order transferring to the board all or part of the undertaking of any navigation authority<sup>3</sup> and any functions<sup>4</sup> or property of such authority<sup>5</sup>.

No such order is to be made if the navigation authority whose undertaking, functions or property are the subject of the order objects to the making of the order<sup>6</sup>. Nor is an order to be made for the transfer to the board of any property forming part of the permanent endowment of a charity or of any land<sup>7</sup> which is held by or in trust for a charity and is or has at any time been occupied for the purposes of the charity, unless an order<sup>8</sup> authorising the transfer has first been made<sup>9</sup>.

An order may contain such transitional, incidental, supplementary and consequential provisions as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient including<sup>10</sup> such provisions as he considers necessary or expedient with respect to:

- 1441 (1) the transfer of assets and liabilities, the payment of compensation and other financial adjustments<sup>11</sup>;
- 1442 (2) the amendment, adaptation or repeal of local enactments<sup>12</sup>;
- 1443 (3) the classification of any inland navigation to which the order applies as a commercial or cruising waterway<sup>13</sup> or for the navigation to be dealt with as an inland waterway forming part of the remainder of the board's undertaking<sup>14</sup>;
- 1444 (4) the imposition on the board of the responsibility for maintenance of the inland navigation appropriate to its classification under head (3) above<sup>15</sup>;
- 1445 (5) the inclusion of any such inland navigation in the British Waterways Act 1971<sup>16</sup>.

Nothing contained in the above provisions nor in any order made under them extends to prejudice or derogate from the jurisdiction or authority or any of the rights or privileges of the Corporation of Trinity House of Deptford Strond<sup>17</sup> without its consent<sup>18</sup>.

3 'Navigation authority' means a person or body of persons (whether corporate or unincorporate) having a duty or power imposed or conferred by or under an enactment to manage or maintain an inland navigation: see the British Waterways Act 1983 s 10(1)(a). References to the undertaking of a navigation authority and to an inland navigation include an inland navigation which at the time of the making of an order under s 10 may no longer be navigable and references to a navigation authority include references to a body which no longer has any members but which, if it had members, would be such an authority: see s 10(1)(b). 'Inland navigation' means a canal or any inland navigation other than a canal, whether natural or artificial and whether tidal or not: see s 10(1)(a). INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(ii) The British Waterways Board/B. CONDUCT OF BUSINESS BY THE BRITISH WATERWAYS BOARD/732. Orders transferring undertakings, functions or property of navigation authorities.

732. Orders transferring undertakings, functions or property of navigation authorities.

Before determining whether to make an order on an application under the provisions relating to the transfer of undertakings to the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State must consult<sup>2</sup>:

- 1446 (1) the navigation authority<sup>3</sup> from whom any functions<sup>4</sup> or property are proposed in the application to be transferred to the board (except where the authority is a body which no longer has any members)<sup>5</sup>;
- 1447 (2) in the case of an order adding to the commercial waterways in the Transport Act 1968<sup>6</sup>, any organisation appearing to him to represent persons<sup>7</sup> operating, or desiring to operate, commercial freight-carrying vessels on the inland navigation<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1448 (3) the Inland Waterways Advisory Council<sup>9</sup>.

If the Secretary of State proposes to make an order on the application, he must prepare a draft order, and must cause notice of his intention to make an order, and of the place where copies of the draft order, and of any map to which it refers, may be inspected and obtained, and of the time (not being less than 28 days) within which, and the manner in which, objections to the draft order may be made:

- 1449 (a) to be published in the London Gazette, and in such other manner as he thinks best adapted for informing persons affected<sup>10</sup>; and
- 1450 (b) to be served on the navigation authority from whom any functions or property are proposed to be transferred (and on any other body, being a navigation authority, conservancy authority, harbour authority, a general lighthouse authority<sup>11</sup>, a water authority or other statutory water undertaker<sup>12</sup>, appearing to the Secretary of State to be affected by the proposals)<sup>13</sup>.

Before making any order on the application the Secretary of State must consider any objections which may be made to the draft order, and may if he thinks fit cause a local inquiry to be held with respect to any such objections; and in making the order the Secretary of State may make such modifications in the terms of the draft as appears to him desirable<sup>14</sup>.

After making such an order, the Secretary of State must, if an objection has been made by any body on whom notice is required to be served<sup>15</sup> and has not been withdrawn, serve notice of the making of the order and its effect on every such body who has made objection which has not been withdrawn<sup>16</sup>. Where a notice is required to be so served the order does not have effect before the expiry of a period of 28 days from the date of service of that notice; and if within that period any such body gives notice to the Secretary of State objecting to the order, and the objection is not withdrawn, the order is subject to special parliamentary procedure<sup>17</sup>.

After making the order, the Secretary of State must publish in the London Gazette, and in such other manner as he thinks best adapted for informing persons affected, a notice stating that the order has been made, and naming a place where a copy of it may be seen at all reasonable hours<sup>18</sup>.

If any person aggrieved<sup>19</sup> by an order under the British Waterways Act 1983 desires to question its validity on the ground that it is not within the powers of the Act, or that any requirement of the Act has not been complied with in relation to the order, he may, within six weeks after the first publication of the notice of the making of the order<sup>20</sup> make an application for the purpose to the High Court; and if any such application is made, the court, if satisfied that the order is not within the powers of the Act or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced by any requirements of the Act not having been complied with, may quash the order either generally or in so far as it affects the applicant<sup>21</sup>. Except as so provided<sup>22</sup>, the validity of an order under the British Waterways Act 1983 may not, either before or after the order has been made, be questioned in any legal proceedings whatsoever<sup>23</sup>.

The costs incurred by the Secretary of State in connection with the making and notification of an order under the British Waterways Act 1983<sup>24</sup> are to be paid by the board<sup>25</sup>.

(iii) The Environment Agency

733. Role of the Environment Agency.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> has functions as a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority in relation to some inland waterways in England and Wales<sup>2</sup>. The Agency also has duties in relation to the conservation and enhancement of the natural beauty and amenity of inland and coastal waters and of land associated with such waters, the conservation of flora and fauna which are dependent on an aquatic environment, and the use of such waters and land for recreational purposes<sup>3</sup>. The Environment Agency has power to make byelaws in relation to certain recreational waterways for any matter falling within its functions as the authority responsible for maintaining and improving those waterways for the purposes of recreation and leisure and for controlling the navigation of those waterways<sup>4</sup>. The Agency also has certain general navigation powers where navigable waters are not under the control of a navigation, harbour or conservancy authority<sup>5</sup>.

(iv) The Broads Authority

734. The Broads Authority.

The Broads Authority is a body corporate which performs the functions conferred on it by the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988<sup>1</sup>. The Authority consists of nine members appointed by the various local authorities in Norfolk and Suffolk<sup>2</sup>, ten members appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, and two members appointed by the Authority from those members of its navigation committee<sup>4</sup> who are not already members of the Authority<sup>5</sup>.

Every member of the Authority is appointed for such term, not exceeding four years, as the person appointing him may specify<sup>6</sup>, and holds and vacates office in accordance with the terms of his appointment<sup>7</sup>. The appointment of a person to the Authority by a local authority ends if he ceases to be a member of the authority<sup>8</sup>; and a local authority may at any time end the appointment of a person appointed to the Authority by that local authority and appoint another person in his place<sup>9</sup>. The appointment to the Authority of a member of the navigation committee ends if he ceases to be a member of that committee<sup>10</sup>. The appointment of any person to the Authority may be ended by resignation by notice in writing<sup>11</sup> given to the proper officer of the Authority<sup>12</sup>. Where a vacancy among the persons appointed to the Authority occurs for any reason other than one mentioned above, the relevant appointing authority must give notice of that fact to the Authority or (as the case may require) the Authority must give notice of that fact to the relevant authority<sup>13</sup>. The proper officer of the Authority must as soon as practicable publish notice of any appointment to the Authority, or ending of such an appointment, and any such notice must give the name of the person concerned<sup>14</sup>.

The Authority must in every year hold an annual meeting and such other meetings as it thinks fit<sup>15</sup>. The annual meeting of the Authority must be the first meeting held after 1 July in the year in question<sup>16</sup>; and the date and time for any meeting of the Authority must be determined by the Authority<sup>17</sup>. The chairman of the Authority may call a meeting of the Authority at any time<sup>18</sup>; and any five or more members of the Authority may call a meeting of the Authority if they have made a written request to the chairman for such a meeting but the chairman has either refused to call the meeting or has failed to call it before the end of the period of seven days beginning with the date of the making of the request<sup>19</sup>. No business may be transacted at any meeting of the Authority unless more than one quarter of its members are present<sup>20</sup>. If, at any meeting of the Authority, both the chairman and vice-chairman of the Authority are absent, another member, chosen by the members present, must preside<sup>21</sup>.

The Authority must in each year appoint a chairman and vice-chairman from among its members<sup>22</sup>. The Authority must not appoint a person to the office (by whatever name it is known) of chief officer of the Authority, or determine, or vary, any of the terms and conditions on which he is employed by the Authority, without first consulting Natural England<sup>23</sup>.

Provision is made for the alteration of the constitution of the Authority in certain circumstances<sup>24</sup>. The Authority is under a duty to adopt a code of conduct for its members<sup>25</sup>.

1 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 s 1(1). As to the functions of the Authority see PARA 735. Information about the Broads Authority and its functions is available on the Authority's website at www.broads-authority.gov.uk.

6 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 1 para 1(1). Any member of the Authority whose term of office has expired is, subject to the provisions of Sch 1, eligible for re-appointment: Sch 1 para 1(3).

7 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 1 para 1(2). The appointment of any person as a member of the Authority by a local authority or the Secretary of State takes effect on the receipt by the Authority of notification of the appointment, or if later, on the date on which a vacancy among those members of the Authority who were appointed by the person making the appointment in question first occurs after that appointment is made: see Sch 1 para 1(4). The appointment of any person as a member of the Authority by the Authority from the members of its navigation committee takes effect on the date on which the appointment is made, or if later, on the date on which a vacancy among the members of the Authority so appointed first occurs after the appointment is made: see Sch 1 para 1(5). Anyone appointed as a member of the Authority by any person may not, at any time after his appointment has taken effect and before it has ended, be appointed as such a member by any other person: Sch 1 para 1(6). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

8 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 1 para 2(1). Where a person's appointment ends by virtue of this provision, the local authority must as soon as practicable give notice of that fact to the Authority: Sch 1 para 2(3). Schedule 1 para 2(3), (8) (see the text to note 13) and (9) (see the text to note 14) do not apply in relation to any person who ceases to be a member of the Authority by virtue of his retirement from membership of a local authority, is re-elected to membership of that local authority on the day of that retirement, and is re-appointed as a member of the Authority by that local authority: Sch 1 para 2(10).

9 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 1 para 2(4). Where an authority exercises its powers under Sch 1 para 2(4) it must give notice of the ending of the appointment to the Authority (Sch 1 para 2(5)(a)), and the new appointment takes effect, and the previous appointment ends, at the end of the period of one month beginning with the date on which the notice is given (Sch 1 para 2(5)(b)).

NOTE 3--Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 s 1(5) substituted, s 1(6) omitted: Broads Authority Act 2009 Sch 7 para 1, Sch 8 Pt 1.

NOTE 23--Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 1 para 6 further amended: Broads Authority Act 2009 Sch 7 para 10, Sch 8 Pt 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(2) SUPERVISION OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(iv) The Broads Authority/735. Functions of the Broads Authority.

735. Functions of the Broads Authority.

It is the general duty of the Broads Authority<sup>1</sup> to manage the Broads<sup>2</sup> for the purposes of:

- 1451 (1) conserving and enhancing the natural beauty, wildlife and cultural heritage of the Broads<sup>3</sup>;
- 1452 (2) promoting opportunities for the understanding and enjoyment of the special qualities of the Broads by the public<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1453 (3) protecting the interests of navigation<sup>5</sup>.

In discharging its functions, the Authority must have regard to: (a) the national importance of the Broads as an area of natural beauty and one which affords opportunities for open-air recreation<sup>6</sup>; (b) the desirability of protecting the natural resources of the Broads from damage<sup>7</sup>; and (c) the needs of agriculture and forestry and the economic and social interests of those who live or work in the Broads<sup>8</sup>. The Authority has various miscellaneous functions<sup>9</sup>; and power to do anything which is necessary or expedient for the purpose of enabling it to carry out its functions, or for incidental purposes, including power to acquire, manage, reclaim and dispose of land<sup>10</sup> or other property<sup>11</sup>, to carry out any building or other operations<sup>12</sup>, and to carry on any business or undertaking<sup>13</sup>.

The Authority must prepare and publish a plan (known as 'the Broads Plan') setting out its policy with respect to the exercise of its functions<sup>14</sup>, and review that plan at least once in every five years<sup>15</sup>. The Authority must also prepare a map showing any areas within the Broads whose natural beauty it is, in the opinion of the Authority, particularly important to conserve<sup>16</sup>, and at least once in every five years, review the particulars shown on the map and make such variations (if any) as it considers necessary<sup>17</sup>. The Authority may make byelaws for the purpose of securing that persons resorting to land<sup>18</sup> to which the byelaws apply do no damage to the land or anything in, on or under it, or interfere unduly with the enjoyment of the land by other persons<sup>19</sup>.

The Authority must maintain the navigation area<sup>20</sup> for the purposes of navigation to such standard as appears to it to be reasonably required, and take such steps to improve and develop it as it thinks fit<sup>21</sup>. The Authority may make byelaws for the good management of the navigation area, the conservation of its natural beauty and amenities and the promotion of its use for purposes of recreation<sup>22</sup>. The Authority also has certain additional functions in relation to the navigation area<sup>23</sup>. The Authority has powers to issue works licences in respect of the construction, alteration, renewal or extension any works, or the undertaking of any dredging, within or adjacent to the navigation area, which works are otherwise prohibited<sup>24</sup>.

The Broads Authority is a competent harbour authority for the purposes of the Pilotage Act 1987<sup>25</sup>.

Provision is made as to the finances and accounts of the Authority<sup>26</sup>. The Authority must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after the end of each financial year<sup>27</sup> prepare and publish a report on the discharge of its functions during that financial year<sup>28</sup>.

1 As to the Broads Authority see PARA 734.

2 'The Broads' means, subject to the variations made by the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 Sch 2 Pt I, and any variation made in accordance with the provisions of Sch 2 Pt II, the area coloured pink on the deposited map: s 2(3). 'Deposited map' means the set of maps dated November 1986 deposited in connection with the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Bill in the office of the Clerk of the Parliaments and the Private Bill Office of the House of Commons: s 25(1). As to the Clerk of the Parliaments see PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 855. As to the Private Bill Office see PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 943.

19 Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 s 6(1). Byelaws made by the Authority are available on the Authority's website at www.broads-authority.gov.uk.

20 'Navigation area' means, subject to any variation for the time being in force by virtue of an order under the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 s 8(3): (1) those stretches of the rivers Bure, Yare and Waveney, and their tributaries, branches and embayments (including Oulton Broad) which, at the passing of the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988, were in use for navigation by virtue of any public right of navigation; (2) the banks of the waterways which make up those stretches; and (3) Haddiscoe New Cut and its banks; but does not include any part of the Haven or any part of any bank which lies above the level of mean high water spring tides (in the case of a tidal waterway) or above the mean water level (in any other case): s 8(1). As to the public right of navigation see PARA 689 et seq. In response to any proposal made to him by the Authority for the variation of the navigation area in a manner which does not affect its boundary with the Haven, the Secretary of State may by order vary the navigation area in accordance with the proposal: see s 8(3), (4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. Subject to any provisions made by or under the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988, the navigation area is open to any person (upon payment by him of all navigation charges) for navigation, the shipping and unshipping of goods, and the embarking and landing of passengers: see s 8(5), (7). However, the navigation area is not open for the navigation of any hovercraft or any other prescribed class or description of craft: see s 8(6), (8). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

21 See the Norfolk and Suffolk Broads Act 1988 s 10(1), (2). The Authority must appoint a committee of the Authority to be known as the navigation committee: see s 9, Sch 4. The Authority must keep under review the extent to which its functions in relation to the navigation area are delegated to the navigation committee: s

9(7). In exercising its functions the Authority must have regard to any representations made to it by the navigation committee on matters relating to the navigation area: s 9(9).

(v) The Inland Waterways Advisory Council

737. Establishment and functions of the Inland Waterways Advisory Council.

The Inland Waterways Advisory Council<sup>1</sup> consists of a chairman and not less than 12 other members<sup>2</sup>. The chairman is to be appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> after consultation with the Scottish Ministers<sup>4</sup>; two of the members are to be appointed by the Scottish Ministers after consultation with the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>; and the other members of the Council are to be appointed by the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup>. The members must include persons who appear to the person making the appointment to have wide knowledge of, and interest in, inland waterways<sup>7</sup>.

The council must provide the Secretary of State and navigation authorities<sup>8</sup> with such advice as appears to the Council appropriate about matters relevant to inland waterways in England and Wales<sup>9</sup>, and it may provide any other interested person<sup>10</sup> with such advice<sup>11</sup>.

The Council may, with the approval of the Secretary of State and after consulting the Scottish Ministers, appoint such regional committees as it thinks fit, and it may appoint such other committees as it thinks fit<sup>12</sup>. The Council may determine the procedure (including quorum) of the Council or any committee<sup>13</sup>.

1 This body was established by the Transport Act 1968 s 110 (as originally enacted) and known then as the Inland Waterways Amenity Advisory Council: see the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 73. The Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 Pt 7 (ss 73-77) severs the administrative connections that this body used to have with the British Waterways Board, establishing it as an independent body, and replacing the Council's former statutory advisory functions with wider terms of reference (see the text to notes 8-11). As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 Transport Act 1968 s 110(1), (2) (s 110 substituted by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 74). Information about the Inland Waterways Advisory Council and its functions is available on the Council's website at www.iwac.org.uk.

3 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

4 Transport Act 1968 s 110(3) (as substituted: see note 2). The Secretary of State may pay the chairman of the council such remuneration as the Secretary of State may determine: s 110A(5) (s 110A added by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 75). Where the chairman is in receipt of such remuneration he is not to be paid any allowance under the Transport Act 1968 s 110A(4) (see note 7) in respect of loss of remunerative time: s 110A(6) (as so added). The chairman of the Inland Waterways Advisory Council is disqualified for membership of the House of Commons: see the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 s 1(1)(f), Sch 1 Pt III (amended by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 105(1), Sch 11 Pt 2 para 175(1)(a), (2)); and PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 908. As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

5 Transport Act 1968 s 110(4) (as substituted: see note 2). In making those appointments, the Scottish Ministers must have regard to the desirability of appointing persons who appear to them to have specialist knowledge of Scotland: s 110(5) (as so substituted).

6 Transport Act 1968 s 110(6) (as substituted: see note 2).

7 Transport Act 1968 s 110(7) (as substituted: see note 2). As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 720 note 3. Persons appointed to be members of the council hold and vacate office in accordance with the terms of their appointment and, on ceasing to hold office, are eligible for reappointment; but any such person may at any time by written notice to the Secretary of State (or, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers) resign his office: s 110A(1) (as added: see note 4). As to the meaning of 'written' see PARA 22 note 1. The Secretary of State (or, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers) may pay the members of the Council travelling and other expenses and allowances for loss of remunerative time: s 110A(4) (as so added).

8 'Navigation authority' means any person who has a duty or power under any enactment to work, maintain, conserve, improve or control any canal or other inland navigation, navigable river, estuary, harbour or dock: Transport Act 1968 s 110B(2) (s 110B added by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 76). 'Harbour' means any harbour, whether natural or artificial, and any port, haven, estuary, tidal or other river or inland waterway navigated by sea-going ships, and any dock, including any pier, jetty or other place at which ships can ship or unship goods or passengers: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1); definition applied by the Transport Act 1968 s 159(1). 'Goods' includes animals: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

9 Transport Act 1968 s 110B(1)(a) (as added: see note 8). As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Council role in providing advice to the Scottish Ministers, the British Waterways Board and other interested persons about matters relevant to inland waterways in Scotland see s 110C (added by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 77).

10 'Interested person', in relation to any matter, means a person appearing to the Council to have a sufficient interest in the matter: Transport Act 1968 s 110B(3) (as added: see note 8).

11 Transport Act 1968 s 110B(1)(b) (as added: see note 8). The Secretary of State (and, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers) must provide the council with such staff, accommodation, services and other facilities as appear to the Secretary of State (and the Scottish Ministers) to be necessary or expedient for the proper performance of the Council's functions: s 110A(7) (as added: see note 4).

12 Transport Act 1968 s 110A(2) (as added: see note 4).

13 Transport Act 1968 s 110A(3) (as added: see note 4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/A. IN GENERAL/738. ### (3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES

(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board

A. IN GENERAL

738. General duties and powers of the British Waterways Board under the Transport Acts.

It is the duty<sup>1</sup> of the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> in the exercise of its powers under the Transport Act 1962 to provide to such extent as it may think expedient:

- 1457 (1) services and facilities on the inland waterways<sup>3</sup> owned or managed by it<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1458 (2) port facilities<sup>5</sup> at any harbour owned or managed by it<sup>6</sup>, and to have due regard to efficiency, economy and safety of operation as respects the services and facilities provided by it<sup>7</sup>.

Subject to the provisions of the Transport Act 1962, the board has power:

- 1459 (a) to carry goods and passengers by inland waterway and to provide facilities for traffic on the inland waterways owned or managed by it<sup>8</sup>;
- 1460 (b) to operate the harbours owned or managed by it and to provide port facilities at those harbours<sup>9</sup>;
- 1461 (c) to provide transport services by road<sup>10</sup>: (i) for the carriage of goods which have been or are to be carried by it by inland waterway<sup>11</sup>; and (ii) for the carriage of goods where the use of an inland waterway owned or managed by it has been temporarily interrupted, and to carry goods by those services<sup>12</sup>;
- 1462 (d) to abstract and sell untreated water<sup>13</sup> from any inland waterway owned or managed by the board for any purpose<sup>14</sup>, and to abstract and sell water from any other source, and otherwise to purchase and treat water and to treat and dispose of effluent<sup>15</sup>;
- 1463 (e) to consign goods on behalf of other persons<sup>16</sup> on routes wholly or partly over any of the inland waterways owned or managed by it or to or from, or on routes through, any of the harbours owned or managed by it<sup>17</sup>;
- 1464 (f) to store goods which have been or are to be carried on any of the inland waterways owned or managed by it, or which have been or are to be loaded or unloaded in or carried through any of the harbours owned or managed by it, and, so far as any premises provided for the purposes of that or any other part of its business are not required for those purposes, to use them to provide facilities for the storage of other goods<sup>18</sup>;
- 1465 (g) to enter into and carry out agreements<sup>19</sup>: (i) with carriers outside Great Britain<sup>20</sup> for the through carriage of goods and passengers under one contract or at a through rate or in the same vessels or containers<sup>21</sup>; and (ii) with any person engaged in coastal shipping<sup>22</sup> for co-ordinating the activities of that person with those of the board and, in particular, for facilitating the through carriage of goods, for the quoting of through rates and for the pooling of receipts or expenses<sup>23</sup>.

1 The Transport Act 1962 s 10(1) is not to be construed as imposing, either directly or indirectly, any form of duty or liability enforceable by proceedings before any court to which the board would not otherwise be subject: s 10(4) (amended by the Transport Act 1968 s 165(a), Sch 18 Pt I). However, this does not exclude common law liability: see Burnett v British Waterways Board [1973] 2 All ER 631, [1973] 1 WLR 700, CA.

2 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

3 As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 720 note 3.

4 Transport Act 1962 s 10(1)(a). The duty of the board under s 10(1) to provide services and facilities on the inland waterways owned or managed by it extends only to the commercial waterways and cruising waterways: Transport Act 1968 s 107(1). It is the duty of the British Waterways Board: (1) to secure that each of the inland waterways comprised in its undertaking which is not a commercial waterway or a cruising waterway is dealt with in the most economical manner possible (consistent, in the case of a waterway which is retained, with the requirements of public health and the preservation of amenity and safety), whether by retaining and managing the waterway, by developing or eliminating it, or by disposing of it (s 107(2)(a)); and (2) to secure that the best possible financial return is obtained from any of its assets which is not an inland waterway or harbour and is not required in connection with the provision of services and facilities by the board, whether by exploiting it, by developing it, or by disposing of it (s 107(2)(b)). The Transport Act 1962 s 10(4) (see note 1) applies also to the duty imposed on the board by the Transport Act 1968 s 107(2): s 107(3). As to commercial waterways and cruising waterways see PARA 741. As to the meaning of 'harbour' see PARA 737 note 8.

5 'Port facilities' means the constructing, improving, maintaining, regulating, managing, marking or lighting of a harbour or any part thereof; the berthing, towing, moving or dry-docking of a ship which is in, or is about to enter, or has recently left, a harbour; the loading or unloading of goods, or embarking or disembarking of passengers, in or from any such ship; the lighterage or the sorting, weighing, warehousing or handling of goods in a harbour; and the movement of goods within a harbour: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1). As to the meaning of 'goods' see PARA 737 note 8.

6 Transport Act 1962 s 10(1)(b).

7 Transport Act 1962 s 10(1). Without prejudice to the powers of the British Waterways Board apart from the Transport Act 1968 s 50(6), the board also has power to provide services and facilities for the use for amenity or recreational purposes (including fishing) of the inland waterways and reservoirs owned or managed by it: see s 50(6); and PARA 748.

8 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(a). As to the similar powers that have been conferred on the canal undertakers (which can become common carriers) see PARA 782. The British Waterways Board is not to be regarded as a common carrier by rail or inland waterway: s 43(6) (amended by the Railways Act 2005 s 59(1), Sch 12 paras 1(1), (2)(c)); and see CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS vol 7 (2008) PARA 5.

9 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(b).

10 In addition to the powers of the board to provide the transport services by road authorised by the Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(c), the board has power, with the consent of the Secretary of State for Transport (or, in connection with the exercise of the British Waterways Board's functions in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers) to provide other transport services by road for the carriage of goods and to carry goods by those services: see the Transport Act 1968 s 50(5) (amended by SI 2000/3251); and PARA 748. In the Transport Act 1968 'goods' includes animals and mails: s 159(1). As to the Secretary of State for Transport see PARA 719. As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

11 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(c)(i).

12 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(c)(ii).

13 As to the power to abstract and sell untreated water see also the Transport Act 1962 s 62(1); and PARA 744. See also the Water Resources Act 1991 s 66; and PARAS 229, 233.

14 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(d).

15 Ie, except in Scotland, the British Waterways Board has power:

- 41 (1) to abstract water from any source other than that mentioned in the Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(d) (see the text to notes 13-14) (s 10(3)(dd)(i) (s 10(3)(dd) added by SI 2003/1545));
- 42 (2) to purchase water (Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(dd)(ii) (as so added));
- 43 (3) to treat water (s 10(3)(dd)(iii) (as so added));
- 44 (4) to sell any water other than that mentioned in s 10(3)(d) (s 10(3)(dd)(iv) (as so added));
- 45 (5) to treat and dispose of effluent (s 10(3)(dd)(v) (as so added)).

As to the supply of water for canals generally see PARAS 744, 781.

16 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

17 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(e).

18 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(f). In addition to its power under the provisions of s 10(3)(f) to store certain goods and to use certain premises to provide facilities for the storage of other goods, the British Waterways Board has power, with the consent of the Secretary of State (or, in connection with the exercise of the board's functions in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers), to provide such facilities at any other premises: see the Transport Act 1968 s 50(1) (amended by the Transport Act 1981 s 40(1), Sch 12 Pt I; Transport Act 2000 s 274, Sch 31 Pt IV; SI 2000/3251); and PARA 748.

19 The board may enter into any such agreement notwithstanding that it involves the delegation of the functions of the board under any enactment relating to any part of its undertaking: see the Transport Act 1962 s 16(1), (2). As to the meaning of 'function' see PARA 726 note 7.

20 As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 22 note 5.

21 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(g)(i).

22 'Coastal shipping' means the carrying of goods or passengers in ships by sea to or from any point in Great Britain from or to any point in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands or the Republic of Ireland, but does not include the carrying of goods or passengers in the exercise of a right of ferry legally established whether by Act of Parliament or otherwise: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 22 note 5. As to ferries see PARA 832 et seq.

23 Transport Act 1962 s 10(3)(g)(ii).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/A. IN GENERAL/739. Additional powers of the British Waterways Board under the Transport Acts.

739. Additional powers of the British Waterways Board under the Transport Acts.

Subject to the Transport Act 1962, the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has power:

- 1466 (1) to enter into and carry out agreements with any person<sup>2</sup> for the carrying on by that person, whether as agent for the board or otherwise, of any of the activities which the board may itself carry on<sup>3</sup>;
- 1467 (2) without prejudice to head (1) above, to enter into agreements with the other boards<sup>4</sup> and with any subsidiary<sup>5</sup> of any of the boards or of the holding company<sup>6</sup>, for the management, working and use by one party to the agreement of works, land<sup>7</sup> or other property belonging to the other party, and with respect to the rendering of services and the pooling of receipts or expenses<sup>8</sup>;
- 1468 (3) to acquire land for the purposes of its business<sup>9</sup>;
- 1469 (4) in places where those using the services and facilities provided by the board<sup>10</sup> may require it, to provide both for them and for other persons facilities for the purchase and consumption of food and drink, places for refreshment and such other amenities and facilities as it may appear to the board requisite or expedient to provide<sup>11</sup>;
- 1470 (5) to dispose (whether absolutely or for a term of years) of any part of the undertaking of the board or any property which in its opinion is not required by it for the purposes of its business, and, in particular, to dispose of an interest in, or right over, any property, which, subject to the interest or right, is retained by the board<sup>12</sup>;
- 1471 (6) to do anything for the purposes of advancing the skill of persons employed by the board<sup>13</sup> or the efficiency of the equipment of the board<sup>14</sup> or of the manner in which that equipment is operated, including the provision by the board, and the assistance of the provision by others, of facilities for training, education and research<sup>15</sup>;
- 1472 (7) to provide houses, hostels and other like accommodation for persons employed by the board<sup>16</sup>;
- 1473 (8) to make housing loans to persons employed by the board to assist them to acquire housing accommodation and to guarantee loans made by building societies and other bodies to such persons for housing purposes<sup>17</sup>;
- 1474 (9) to invest any sums which are not immediately required by the board for the purposes of its business<sup>18</sup>;
- 1475 (10) to turn its resources to account so far as not required for the purposes of its business<sup>19</sup>; and
- 1476 (11) to do all other things<sup>20</sup> which in its opinion are necessary to facilitate the proper carrying on of its business<sup>21</sup>.

The board has power to acquire any undertaking or part of an undertaking if the assets comprised in the undertaking or the part of the undertaking are wholly or mainly assets which the board require for the purposes of its business<sup>22</sup>. The board has power, for the purposes of its business in England and Wales<sup>23</sup>, with the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>24</sup>, to lend money to, or give a guarantee for the benefit of, any person for the purposes of an undertaking carried on by that person, or, where that person is a body corporate, any undertaking carried on by a subsidiary of that body corporate<sup>25</sup>. The board has power, for the purposes of its business in England and Wales, with the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>26</sup>, to subscribe for or acquire any securities<sup>27</sup> of a body corporate<sup>28</sup>.

Each of the powers conferred on the board by certain provisions of the Transport Act 1962<sup>29</sup> is deemed to be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other powers so conferred; and those provisions relate only to the capacity of the board as a statutory corporation, and nothing in them is to be construed as authorising the disregard by the board of any enactment or rule of law<sup>30</sup>.

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

3 Transport Act 1962 s 14(1)(a).

4 The Transport Act 1962 established the British Railways Board, the London Transport Board (now dissolved), the British Transport Docks Board (now dissolved) and the British Waterways Board, together with the Transport Holding Company, as successors to the British Transport Commission see PARA 714. As to the abolition of the British Railways Board see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARAS 5, 44.

5 As to the meaning of 'subsidiary' see PARA 729 note 2.

6 The Transport Act 1962 referred to the Transport Holding Company, whose rights and liabilities have now been transferred to the National Freight Company Limited: see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 4.

7 'Land' includes any interest in land and any right over land: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1).

8 Transport Act 1962 s 14(1)(b). The British Waterways Board may enter into such an agreement notwithstanding that it involves the delegation of its functions under any enactment relating to any part of its undertaking: see s 16(1), (2). 24 Ie the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719. As to general provisions regarding powers exercisable subject to the Secretary of State's consent see PARA 730. For the purposes of the board's business in Scotland see the Transport Act 1962 s 14(4B), (4D) (as added: see note 25).

25 Transport Act 1962 s 14(4A), (4B) (s 14(4A)-(4D) added by SI 2000/3251). The Transport Act 1962 s 14(4B) does not affect the power of the board to lend money by way of investment or to subscribe for or acquire securities by way of investment, or to leave outstanding any loan made or guarantee given, or to retain any securities acquired, by the British Transport Commission before the vesting date: s 14(5) (amended by SI 2000/3251). As to the dissolution of the British Transport Commission see note 4.

26 For the purposes of the board's business in Scotland see the Transport Act 1962 s 14(4C), (4D) (as added: see note 25).

27 'Securities', in relation to a body corporate, means any shares, stock, debentures, debenture stock, and any other security of a like nature, of the body corporate: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1); Transport Act 1968 s 159(1).

28 Transport Act 1962 s 14(4C) (as added: see note 25). The Transport Act 1962 s 14(4C) does not affect the power of the board to lend money by way of investment or to subscribe for or acquire securities by way of investment, or to leave outstanding any loan made or guarantee given, or to retain any securities acquired, by the British Transport Commission before the vesting date: s 14(5) (as amended: see note 25).

29 Ie the provisions of the Transport Act 1962 ss 1-13: see s 14(6). The Transport Act 1962 s 14(6) applies to any powers conferred on the board by any provision of the Transport Act 1968 and to the provision of the Transport Act 1968 conferring that power as it applies to the powers and provisions mentioned in the Transport Act 1962 s 14(6): see the Transport Act 1968 s 52(1).

Where the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> engages, either directly or through a subsidiary<sup>2</sup>, in specified activities which are authorised under the Transport Acts<sup>3</sup>, it must, in carrying on those activities, act as if it were a company engaged in a commercial enterprise (or, as the case may be, must exercise its control over that subsidiary so as to ensure that the subsidiary in carrying on those activities acts as a company so engaged)<sup>4</sup>.

1 The Transport Act 1968 s 134 applies to the boards established under the Transport Act 1962 s 1 (see PARA 725): see the Transport Act 1968 s 134(1) (amended by the Transport Act 1985 s 57(6), Sch 3). As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

740 British Waterways Board's duty to act as body engaged in commercial enterprise

NOTE 1--Transport Act 1968 s 134(1) further amended: Local Transport Act 2008 Sch 4 para 13.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/A. IN GENERAL/741. British Waterways Board's duty to maintain waterways.

741. British Waterways Board's duty to maintain waterways.

- 1477 (1) waterways<sup>4</sup> to be principally available for the commercial carriage of freight ('commercial waterways')<sup>5</sup>;
- 1478 (2) waterways<sup>6</sup> to be principally available for cruising, fishing and other recreational purposes ('cruising waterways')<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1479 (3) the remainder<sup>8</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>9</sup> may by order<sup>10</sup> amend the Act<sup>11</sup> in so far as it relates to the classification of commercial waterways and cruising waterways<sup>12</sup>.

With a view to securing the general availability of the commercial and cruising waterways for public use, it is the duty of the British Waterways Board: (a) to maintain the commercial waterways in a suitable condition for use by commercial freight-carrying vessels<sup>13</sup>; and (b) to maintain the cruising waterways in a suitable condition for use by cruising craft<sup>14</sup>. However, neither head (a) nor head (b) above imposes on the board any duty to maintain a waterway, or any part of a waterway, in a suitable condition for use by a vessel unless its dimensions<sup>15</sup>: (i) correspond to, or are less than, those of a vessel of that kind which customarily used that waterway or part of it during the nine months preceding 8 December 1967<sup>16</sup>; or (ii) if the waterway, or a part of it, has been restored or improved since that date, are such as to make it suitable for use on that waterway or part of it<sup>17</sup>. Where there has been a change in the size, design or type of vessel customarily using a commercial or cruising waterway, then, after consultation with the board, the Secretary of State<sup>18</sup> may by order substitute for the existing duty on the board such duty in respect of the maintenance of the waterway as he considers appropriate having regard to that change<sup>19</sup>.

It is the duty of the board, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to its functions, to take into account the desirability of protecting for future use as cruising waterways (or as areas appropriate for other public recreational use) remainder waterways with potential for such use<sup>20</sup>.

2    As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 720 note 3.

3    As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

4    le the waterways for the time being specified in the Transport Act 1968 Sch 12 Pt I: see s 104(1)(a). The description contained in Sch 12 of any waterway must be read subject to any order made by the Secretary of State for Transport (or, in the case of a waterway in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers) for giving greater precision to that description by reference to a map: s 104(2) (s 104(2)-(4) amended by SI 2000/3251). the waterways as are specified in the British Waterways Act 1983 s 11(1), Sch 2 are deemed to be included in the Transport Act 1968 Sch 12 Pt II: see the British Waterways Act 1983 s 11(1), (2).

As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 722 note 5.

9 I.e. or, in the case of a waterway in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers: see the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3) (as amended: see note 4).

10 The Transport Act 1968 Sch 13 (see note 12) applies to the making of such an order, and any such order is subject to annulment in the case of an order made by the Secretary of State, in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament and, in the case of an order made by the Scottish Ministers, in pursuance of a resolution of the Scottish Parliament: see s 104(4) (as amended: see note 4). As to the making of orders generally see PARA 724. Such orders, being of local effect, are not recorded in this work.

11 I.e. the Transport Act 1968 Sch 12: see notes 4, 6. By virtue of an order made under s 104(3), the Secretary of State may: (1) transfer any waterway from one Part of Sch 12 to the other Part; (2) remove any waterway from either of those Parts; or (3) add to either Part any inland waterway comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board and which is not for the time being a commercial or a cruising waterway: see s 104(3) (as amended: see note 4).

12 See the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3) (as amended: see note 4). For the purposes of the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3), 'waterway' includes any part of that waterway: s 104(5). As to necessary consultation by the Secretary of State with the Inland Waterways Advisory Council and other parties in the case of a proposed order under s 104(3) see Sch 13 para 2 (amended by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 105(1), Sch 11 Pt 2 para 175(1)(a), (2)). As to the obligation of the Secretary of State to publish notice of his intention to make an such order see Sch 13 para 5(1). The Secretary of State must consider any objection which is made against the proposed order and not withdrawn and, if he has ordered an inquiry to be held, the report of the person holding the inquiry: Sch 13 para 5(1). The Secretary of State is obliged to hold an inquiry:

46 (1) where a proposed order would result in removing a commercial waterway from Sch 12 Pt I, or in removing a cruising waterway from Sch 12 Pt II without adding it to Sch 12 Pt I, provided the objection to the proposed order is made by a local authority or the Environment Agency (Sch 13 para 5(2)(a) (amended by the Water Act 1989 s 190(1), Sch 25 para 38(4); and by virtue of SI 1996/593); and 47 (2) where such an order relates to a waterway used to a significant extent for navigation at the time of publication of notice of the proposed order, if an objection is made by any organisation which appears to the Secretary of State to represent a substantial number of persons using the waterway at that time (Transport Act 1968 Sch 13 para 5(2)(b)).

References in Sch 13, however expressed, to the Secretary of State are to be construed as including a reference to the Scottish Ministers: see Sch 13 para 1(2) (added by SI 2000/3251). As to the Inland Waterways Advisory Council see PARA 737. As to the Environment Agency see PARA 17. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

Where an order under the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3), s 105(3) (classification and maintenance of the British Waterways Board's waterways: see the text to notes 19-20) or s 112 (maintenance and use of other waterways: see PARA 828) is required so as to give effect to any proposal, no provision may be included in an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 1 (railways etc: see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302) or s 3 (inland waterways: see PARA 801) which would remove that requirement, or alter the requirements of the Transport Act 1968 ss 104, 105, 112 or Sch 13 relating to orders under those sections: see the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 5(7); and PARA 802.

13 Transport Act 1968 s 105(1)(a). As to the enforcement of the duty under s 105 see PARA 742. In relation to any inland waterway which on 18 November 1968 was comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board, all local enactments passed with respect to any such inland waterway which conferred any public or private right of navigation over it or imposed any duty to maintain it for the purpose of navigation (including any duty to supply, or maintain a supply of, water for that purpose) are repealed: see the s 105(5). See also Moore v British Waterways Board [2009] All ER (D) 161 (Mar). Moreover, all such local enactments conferring such rights or duties are repealed in relation to inland waterways acquired by the British Waterways Board after 18 November 1968: see s 105(6). Any person who suffers loss following the extinguishment of a private right by reason of the operation of s 105(5) or (6) is entitled to be paid by the British Waterways Board compensation, to be determined in case of dispute by the Lands Tribunal: see ss 105(7), 115(1)(b). As to the Lands Tribunal see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 720 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law, draft legislation proposes the abolition of the Lands Tribunal and its replacement by the Upper Tribunal (as to which see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) para 13A). Where by virtue of s 105(5) a statutory right of navigation ceases to be exercisable as respects a waterway of which the British Waterways Board is not the owner, the board has power to authorise any use of the waterway which would have been authorised by that statutory right: s 105(8). References in Pt VII (ss 104-115) to any right of navigation over a waterway or canal include references to any right to use or keep any vessel or craft on the waterway or canal: s 115(1)(a). Nothing in s 105 must be construed as abrogating any rights of navigation which subsist otherwise than by virtue of the enactments referred to in s 105(5) and (6); and in those subsections references to rights conferred by an enactment do not include references to rights which are merely confirmed by it and which, if that enactment had not been passed, would subsist otherwise than by virtue of any such enactments as aforesaid: see s 115(2). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

14 Transport Act 1968 s 105(1)(b). 'Cruising craft' are vessels constructed or adapted for the carriage of passengers and driven by mechanical power: see s 105(1)(b). See also note 13.

18 As to waterways (or any part thereof) in Scotland see the Transport Act 1968 s 105(3A) (added by SI 2000/3251).

19 See the Transport Act 1968 s 105(3). Schedule 13 has effect in relation to the making of any such order, and any such order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 105(4). In the case of a proposed order under s 105(3):

48 (1) in respect of a commercial waterway or any part thereof, the Secretary of State must consult with any organisation appearing to him to represent persons operating commercial freight-carrying vessels on that waterway or part (Sch 13 para 3(a)(i)); and if the waterway or part is to a substantial extent used by cruising craft, with the Inland Waterways Advisory Council as to the effect of the proposed order on such use as aforesaid (Sch 13 para 3(a)(ii));

49 (2) in respect of a cruising waterway or any part thereof, the Secretary of State must consult with the Inland Waterways Advisory Council (Sch 13 para 3(b)).

Notices must be published as required by Sch 13 para 5 and the holding of an inquiry is obligatory in the circumstances specified in that paragraph: see note 12. Such orders, being of local effect, are not recorded in this work.

UPDATE

741 British Waterways Board's duty to maintain waterways

NOTE 13--Reference to the Lands Tribunal is now to the Upper Tribunals: Transport Act 1968 s 115(1)(b) (amended by SI 2009/1307).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/A. IN GENERAL/742. Enforcement of British Waterways Board's duty to maintain waterways.

742. Enforcement of British Waterways Board's duty to maintain waterways.

If, on an application<sup>1</sup> by any person<sup>2</sup> to the High Court, the court determines that there has been a serious and persistent failure by the British Waterways Board<sup>3</sup> to discharge certain of its statutory duties<sup>4</sup> to maintain a waterway, then, subject as provided below, the court may require the board to remedy that failure<sup>5</sup>.

The fact that proceedings on such an application (known as 'enforcement proceedings')<sup>6</sup> are in progress, or that the court has in any such proceedings imposed a requirement on the board, does not prevent the Secretary of State<sup>7</sup> from making an order amending the statutory provisions relating to the classification of waterways<sup>8</sup> or an order<sup>9</sup> substituting a new duty on the board in respect of the maintenance of any waterway<sup>10</sup>; but subject as set out below<sup>11</sup>, where such an order is made while enforcement proceedings are in progress, the court must nevertheless determine those proceedings on the basis of the board's duty as it stood when the proceedings were instituted<sup>12</sup>, and the making of such an order in no case absolves the board from complying with any requirement imposed by the court in the enforcement proceedings<sup>13</sup>. However, if a relevant order<sup>14</sup> is pending<sup>15</sup> when enforcement proceedings are instituted or if, after they have been instituted and before the court has imposed any requirement on the board, the Secretary of State<sup>16</sup> notifies the board that he is considering making a relevant order and gives the court a certificate<sup>17</sup>, then: (1) the court must not impose any requirement in those proceedings on the board so long as the relevant order is pending<sup>18</sup>; and (2) if the relevant order is made, the court must, in determining in those proceedings whether the board has failed to discharge its duty, have regard only to the duty, if any, to which the board is subject in consequence of the order having been made<sup>19</sup>.

1 Proceedings are started in the usual way when the court issues a claim form at the request of the claimant: see CPR 7.2; and CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 118.

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

3 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

4 I.e. its general duty under the Transport Act 1968 s 105(1) (see PARA 741) to maintain commercial and cruising waterways in a suitable condition, or a new specified duty substituted by an order made under s 105(3) (see PARA 741): s 106(1)(a), (b). References in s 106 to an order made under s 105(3) include references to such an order made by the Scottish Ministers by virtue of s 105(3A) (see PARA 741): s 106(8) (s 106(2)-(6), (8) amended by SI 2000/3251). As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

5 Transport Act 1968 s 106(1). However, apart from this right to such a determination from the High Court, neither s 105(1) nor s 105(3) (see PARA 741) is to be construed as imposing any duty or liability enforceable by proceedings before any court to which the board would not otherwise be subject: s 106(1).

6 Enforcement proceedings are treated as instituted at the time when the document beginning the proceedings (see note 1) is served on the board: Transport Act 1968 s 106(7).

7 I.e. or, in the case of any waterway or any part of a waterway in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers: see the Transport Act 1968 s 106(2) (as amended: see note 4). The Secretary of State is the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719.

8 I.e. an order under the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3): see PARA 741.

9 I.e. an order under the Transport Act 1968 s 105(3): see PARA 741.

10 Transport Act 1968 s 106(2) (as amended: see note 4).

11 le subject to the provisions of the Transport Act 1968 s 106(3): see the text to notes 14-19.

12 Transport Act 1968 s 106(2)(a).

13 Transport Act 1968 s 106(2)(b).

14 'Relevant order', in relation to any enforcement proceedings, means an order under the Transport Act 1968 s 104(3) or s 105(3) (see PARA 741) in relation to the waterway or part of a waterway which is the subject of the proceedings: s 106(5).

15 For these purposes, an order is 'pending' during the period of three months beginning with the day on which the Secretary of State (or, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers) notifies the board that he is (or they are) considering the making of an order under either s 104(3) or s 105(3) (see PARA 741), and, if before the expiration of that period notice of the proposed order is published under the provisions of Sch 13 (see PARA 741), during any further period until the order is made or the Secretary of State (or, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers) notifies the board that it will not be made: s 106(5) (as amended: see note 4). As soon as may be after giving the board any such notification, the Secretary of State must give notice in the London Gazette (and the Scottish Ministers likewise in the Edinburgh Gazette): s 106(6) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'month' see PARA 23 note 10.

16 le or, in the case of any waterway or any part of a waterway in Scotland, the Scottish Ministers: see the Transport Act 1968 s 106(3) (as amended: see note 4).

17 Transport Act 1968 s 106(3) (as amended: see note 4). The said certificate is a certificate in writing to the effect that it appears to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Scottish Ministers that the imposition of any requirement on the board on the basis of its existing duty would result in its incurring substantial expense and that, having regard to its financial position and its duty under the Transport Act 1962 s 18 (see PARA 750) and the Transport Act 1968 s 41 (see PARA 750), it would be unreasonable for it to bear that expense without a grant or further grant under s 43 (see PARA 752): s 106(4) (as so amended). As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/A. IN GENERAL/743. Board's power to make agreements for maintenance and transfer of canals.

743. Board's power to make agreements for maintenance and transfer of canals.

The British Waterways Board has power<sup>1</sup>:

1480 (1) to enter into an agreement with certain specified bodies for the maintenance by one of those bodies of any inland waterway<sup>2</sup> comprised in the board's undertaking which is not a commercial waterway or a cruising waterway<sup>3</sup> or of any part of, or any works connected with, such a waterway<sup>4</sup>;

1481 (2) by agreement with any of those bodies, to transfer to it any such waterway belonging to the board, together with any of its powers or obligations respecting the waterway<sup>5</sup>; and any of the specified bodies has all such powers as are required to enable it to enter into and carry out any such agreement or as are required to be exercised by it in consequence of any such transfer<sup>6</sup>.

No such agreement or transfer may be made with or to: (a) any local authority, unless what is to be maintained or transferred is situated in the authority's area<sup>17</sup>, or although not situated in that area is so situated that persons residing in the area have convenient access to it<sup>18</sup>; or (b) the Environment Agency unless the Secretary of State<sup>19</sup> has consented to the agreement or transfer<sup>20</sup>. The board may make an agreement for maintenance or transfer with two or more bodies on such terms as to the sharing of expenses between those bodies as they may agree<sup>21</sup>.

744. British Waterways Board's power to take water for the supply of its canals.

Any local enactment<sup>1</sup> which authorises the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> to take water for the purpose, whether express or implied, of using it for a canal owned or managed by the board, or for purposes which include that purpose, is to have effect as if there were included the purpose of selling, or affording the use of, water from the canal; and the board may exercise its powers<sup>3</sup> accordingly<sup>4</sup>.

These provisions must not be taken as authorising the board: (1) to disregard any restriction as to quantity, rate or otherwise on the water which may be taken from any source<sup>5</sup>; or (2) to affect the level or flow of water in any part of the canal, or in any river or watercourse fed by the canal, to a degree which conflicts with any of the board's obligations, and in particular with any statutory obligation to maintain the canal in a navigable condition<sup>6</sup>.

745. British Waterways Board's general environmental and recreational duties.

It is the duty of the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup>, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to its functions<sup>2</sup>:

- 1482 (1) so far as may be consistent with the purposes of any enactment<sup>3</sup> relating to those functions, to exercise any power conferred on it with respect to the proposals as to further the conservation and enhancement of natural beauty and the conservation of flora, fauna and geological or physiographical features of special interest<sup>4</sup>;
- 1483 (2) to have regard to the desirability of protecting and conserving buildings<sup>5</sup>, sites and objects of archaeological, architectural, engineering or historic interest<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1484 (3) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on the beauty or amenity of any rural or urban area or on any such flora, fauna, features, buildings, sites or objects<sup>7</sup>.

Subject to the duties imposed by heads (1) to (3) above, it is the duty of the board, in formulating or considering any proposals relating to its functions:

- 1485 (a) to have regard to the desirability of preserving for the public any freedom of access to towing paths and open land<sup>8</sup> and especially to places of natural beauty<sup>9</sup>;
- 1486 (b) to have regard to the desirability of maintaining the availability to the public of any facility for visiting or inspecting any building, site or object of archaeological, architectural, engineering or historic interest<sup>10</sup>;
- 1487 (c) to take into account any effect which the proposals would have on any such freedom of access or on the availability of any such facility<sup>11</sup>;
- 1488 (d) to take into account the desirability of protecting for future use as cruising waterways<sup>12</sup>, or as areas appropriate for other public recreational use, remainder waterways<sup>13</sup> with potential for such use<sup>14</sup>.

It is the duty of the board in determining what steps to take in performance of any duty imposed by virtue of heads (1) to (3) or heads (a) to (d) above to take into account the needs of persons who are chronically sick or disabled<sup>15</sup>.

Nothing in the above provisions<sup>16</sup> requires recreational facilities made available by the board to be made available free of charge<sup>17</sup>.

746. British Waterways Board's duty to promote research and development.

It is incumbent on the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> to take such steps as appear to it to be practicable and desirable for promoting:

- 1489 (1) research<sup>2</sup> on lines settled from time to time with the approval of the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> into matters affecting, or arising out of, the exercise of the functions<sup>4</sup> of the board or of any subsidiary<sup>5</sup> of the board<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1490 (2) the doing of such work as is requisite to enable: (a) the results of any research into any such matter as aforesaid (whether or not promoted by the board)<sup>7</sup>; and (b) anything resulting from any idea affecting, or arising out of, the exercise of any of those functions<sup>8</sup>, to be turned to account<sup>9</sup>;

but these provisions<sup>10</sup> are not to be construed as imposing upon the board, either directly or indirectly, any form of duty or liability<sup>11</sup> enforceable by proceedings before any court to which the board would not otherwise be subject<sup>12</sup>.

The board may take such steps as above with respect to any matter either by itself carrying out the necessary research or doing the necessary work or by arranging for that research to be carried out or that work to be done by some other person<sup>13</sup> with or without assistance (including financial assistance) from the board<sup>14</sup>.

749. British Waterways Board's powers of manufacture and production.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has power to construct, manufacture, produce, purchase, maintain and repair<sup>2</sup> anything required for the purposes of its business<sup>3</sup>, but<sup>4</sup> it does not have power to construct, manufacture, produce, purchase, maintain or repair anything not required for those purposes<sup>5</sup>.

The board also has power<sup>6</sup>:

- 1496 (1) to manufacture<sup>7</sup> for sale to outside persons<sup>8</sup> (that is to say, to persons other than the board or a subsidiary of the board), and to repair<sup>9</sup> for outside persons, anything which the board considers can advantageously be so manufactured or, as the case may be, repaired by the board by reason of the fact that the board or its subsidiary has materials or facilities for, or skill in, the manufacture or repair of that thing in connection with some existing activity<sup>10</sup> of the board or subsidiary<sup>11</sup>;
- 1497 (2) to sell<sup>12</sup> to outside persons, and for that purpose to purchase, anything which is of a kind which the board or its subsidiary purchases in the course of some existing activity of the board or subsidiary<sup>13</sup>;
- 1498 (3) at any place where the board, in the exercise of its powers<sup>14</sup>, provides a car park, to repair motor vehicles for outside persons, and to sell to outside persons petrol, oil and spare parts and accessories for motor vehicles, and for that purpose to purchase any of those things, whether or not those persons are using the car park<sup>15</sup>;
- 1499 (4) to sell goods<sup>16</sup> of any description to outside persons, whether or not persons using its waterways, at any place where persons using those waterways may require facilities for the purchase of those goods, and for that purpose to purchase any such goods<sup>17</sup>.

The board must not engage in any activity under head (1), (2) or (3) above unless it is satisfied that it can do so without detriment to its duties under the Transport Acts<sup>18</sup>, and the board must exercise its control over its subsidiaries accordingly<sup>19</sup>.

From time to time the board must submit to the Secretary of State<sup>20</sup> for his approval proposals as to the manner in which any of the above activities<sup>21</sup> are to be carried on by itself or any of its subsidiaries, and must carry on, or, as the case may be, exercise its control over that subsidiary so as to ensure that the subsidiary carries on, those activities in accordance with the Secretary of State's approval<sup>22</sup>; and the Secretary of State may: (a) in approving any proposals, approve them subject to such modifications or subject to compliance with such conditions as he thinks fit<sup>23</sup>; and (b) at any time, after consultation with the board, direct the board to discontinue or, as the case may be, to exercise its control over any of its subsidiaries so as to require the subsidiary to discontinue, any of the activities which the board or subsidiary is carrying on in accordance with the Secretary of State's approval<sup>24</sup>.

The Secretary of State must publish, in such manner as he thinks fit, any proposals so approved by him, and must send copies of those proposals to the Confederation of British Industry and the Trades Union Congress<sup>25</sup>.

750. Financial duty of the British Waterways Board.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> must charge to revenue in every year all charges<sup>2</sup> which are proper to be made to revenue, including, in particular, proper provision for the depreciation or renewal of assets and proper allocations to general reserve<sup>3</sup>.

Without prejudice to the power of the board to establish specific reserves, the board must establish and maintain a general reserve<sup>4</sup>. The management by the board of its general reserve, the sums to be carried from time to time to the credit thereof, and the application of the moneys comprised therein must be as the board may determine<sup>5</sup>. However, no part of the moneys comprised in the general reserve is to be applied otherwise than for the purposes of the board<sup>6</sup>; and the Secretary of State<sup>7</sup> may, with the approval of the Treasury<sup>8</sup>, give to the board directions<sup>9</sup> as to any matter relating to the establishment or management of the general reserve or the carrying of sums to the credit thereof, or the application thereof<sup>10</sup>.

The board may, with the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup> given with the approval of the Treasury, make charges to capital account representing interest on expenditure of a capital nature<sup>12</sup>, being interest for any period which ends on or before the end of the accounting period in which the project or scheme to which the expenditure relates is in the opinion of the Secretary of State completed<sup>13</sup>.

It is the duty of the British Waterways Board to perform its functions under the Transport Act 1962 or the Transport Act 1968 so as to secure that the combined revenues of the board and of its subsidiaries<sup>14</sup> taken together are not less than sufficient to meet its combined charges properly chargeable to revenue account, taking one year with another<sup>15</sup>. The board must secure that its subsidiaries charge to revenue account in every year all charges which are proper to be made to revenue account, including, in particular, proper provision for the depreciation or renewal of assets<sup>16</sup>.

751. Borrowing powers of the British Waterways Board.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> does not have power to borrow money except in accordance with the following provisions<sup>2</sup>.

The board may borrow<sup>3</sup> temporarily, by way of overdraft or otherwise, either from the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> or, with the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>, from any other person<sup>6</sup>, such sums as the board may require for meeting its obligations or discharging its functions<sup>7</sup> under the Transport Act 1962, but the aggregate of the amounts outstanding in respect of any temporary loans raised by the board under this provision must not exceed such limit as the Secretary of State may for the time being have imposed on the board for these purposes by a direction<sup>8</sup> given to the board<sup>9</sup>.

The board may borrow<sup>10</sup> (otherwise than by way of temporary loan) from the Secretary of State or, with the consent of the Secretary of State and the approval of the Treasury<sup>11</sup>, may borrow (otherwise than by way of temporary loan) in a currency other than sterling from any person, or in sterling from the Commission of the European Communities or from the European Investment Bank<sup>12</sup> such sums as the board may require for all or any of the following purposes<sup>13</sup>:

- 1500 (1) for meeting any expenses properly chargeable to capital, being expenses incurred in connection with the provision or improvement of assets in connection with the business of the board<sup>14</sup>;
- 1501 (2) for the provision of working capital<sup>15</sup>;
- 1502 (3) for acquiring an undertaking or part of an undertaking<sup>16</sup>;
- 1503 (4) for lending money to, or meeting a guarantee given for the benefit of, any person for the purpose of an undertaking carried on by him, or where that person is a body corporate, an undertaking carried on by a subsidiary<sup>17</sup> of that body corporate<sup>18</sup>;
- 1504 (5) for subscribing for or acquiring securities<sup>19</sup> of a body corporate, otherwise than by way of investment<sup>20</sup>;
- 1505 (6) for the payment of interest charged to capital account<sup>21</sup>;
- 1506 (7) to pay off any part of the commencing capital debt<sup>22</sup> of the board, any money borrowed by the board, or any liability<sup>23</sup> transferred to the board from the British Transport Commission<sup>24</sup> under or in pursuance of the Transport Act 1962<sup>25</sup>;
- 1507 (8) for any purpose for which capital moneys are properly applicable (whether or not specified in heads (1) to (7) above)<sup>26</sup>.

References to borrowing in the above provisions<sup>31</sup> do not include: (a) borrowing by the board from a body corporate which is a subsidiary of the board<sup>32</sup>; (b) the receipt of money by the board in the course of the carrying on of a savings bank operated by the board or the use by the board of money so received<sup>33</sup>; or (c) the receipt or use by the board of money of a pension fund<sup>34</sup> established for the purposes of a pension scheme<sup>35</sup> in which employees of the board or of a subsidiary of the board participate<sup>36</sup>.

The Treasury<sup>1</sup> may guarantee, in such manner and on such conditions as it may think fit, the repayment of the principal of, the payment of interest on and the discharge of any other financial obligation in connection with any sums which the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> borrows from a person<sup>3</sup> other than the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> in exercise of its powers<sup>5</sup> to borrow<sup>6</sup>. Immediately after giving any such guarantee, the Treasury must lay a statement of the guarantee before each House of Parliament<sup>7</sup>.

Any sums required by the Treasury for fulfilling any such guarantee must be charged on and issued out of the Consolidated Fund<sup>8</sup>; and where a sum is issued for fulfilling such a guarantee, the Treasury must, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year<sup>9</sup>, beginning with that in which the sum is issued, until the principal of the sum and the interest are finally discharged, lay annually before each House of Parliament a statement relating to that sum<sup>10</sup>. If sums are issued in fulfilment of any such guarantee given in favour of the board, the board must make to the Treasury, at such times and in such manner as the Treasury may direct, repayments of capital and interest<sup>11</sup>. Any sums so repaid to the Treasury must be paid into the Exchequer<sup>12</sup>.

756. Accounts of the British Waterways Board.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> must: (1) keep proper accounts and other records in relation thereto<sup>2</sup>; and (2) prepare an annual statement of accounts in such form and containing such particulars, compiled in such manner, as the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> may from time to time direct<sup>4</sup> with the approval of the Treasury<sup>5</sup>. The accounts of the board must be audited by an auditor or auditors to be appointed annually by the Secretary of State, and a person<sup>6</sup> must not be so appointed unless he is eligible for appointment<sup>7</sup> as a statutory auditor<sup>8</sup>. As soon as the accounts of the board have been so audited, the board must send a copy of the statement of accounts to the Secretary of State, together with a copy of the report made by the auditor or auditors on that statement<sup>9</sup>. A copy of that statement and of any such report must be included in the report which is to be laid by the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup> annually before each House of Parliament<sup>11</sup>.

The board is a designated body for the purposes of the Government Resources and Accounts Act 2000 and is therefore required to prepare and present to the Treasury such financial information in relation to the financial year as the Treasury requires to enable it to prepare Whole of Government Accounts<sup>12</sup>.

C. POWERS OVER LAND

757. Powers of acquisition and compulsory purchase of land.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may authorise the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> to purchase compulsorily<sup>3</sup> any land<sup>4</sup> in Great Britain<sup>5</sup> which it requires<sup>6</sup> for the purposes of its business<sup>7</sup>. The Secretary of State must not so authorise the board to purchase land for the purpose of constructing a pipeline if the construction of that pipeline requires<sup>8</sup> the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>9</sup>.

The power of purchasing land compulsorily under these provisions includes power to acquire an easement or other right over land by the creation of a new right<sup>10</sup>. However, this does not apply to an easement or other right over any land which would for the purposes of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 form part of a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment<sup>11</sup>.

1    I.e. the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719.

2    As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

3    The board also has power to promote Bills under the Transport Act 1962 s 17 which may include powers of compulsory purchase: see PARA 747.

4    As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 739 note 7.

5    As to the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 22 note 5. However, the Transport Act 1962 s 15 does not apply to the compulsory purchase of land in Scotland by the board: see s 15A(1) (s 15A added by SI 2000/3251). As to the compulsory purchase of land in Scotland by the board see s 15A (as so added). See also s 15(4) (amended by the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 s 34, Sch 4 para 1).

6    For these purposes, land required for the purposes of the business of a wholly owned subsidiary of the board is deemed to be land required for the purposes of the business of the board (see the Transport Act 1968 s 51(2)); and activities carried on by the board by virtue of the Transport Act 1968 s 48 (see PARA 749) or s 50(1)-(7) (see PARA 748) are deemed not to form part of the business of the board (see s 52(2) (amended by the Transport Act 1980 s 69, Sch 9 Pt III)). As to the meaning of 'wholly owned subsidiary' see PARA 739 note 10.

7    Transport Act 1962 s 15(1). The Acquisition of Land Act 1981 applies as if the board were a local authority within the meaning of that Act (see s 7; and COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 557): see the Transport Act 1962 s 15(1) (amended by the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 s 34, Sch 4 para 1, Sch 6 Pt I). However, the Transport Act 1962 s 15(1) is not to be taken as authorising the board to purchase compulsorily land which it has power to acquire by agreement under s 11(4) (see PARA 758): s 15(1) proviso.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/C. POWERS OVER LAND/758. Power of the British Waterways Board to develop land.

758. Power of the British Waterways Board to develop land.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has power<sup>2</sup> to develop its land<sup>3</sup> in such manner as it may think fit<sup>4</sup>. The board may<sup>5</sup>, in particular:

- 1510 (1) retain any part of its land which is not required for the purposes of its business and develop it for use by other persons<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1511 (2) where the use of its land for the purposes of its business can be combined with its use for other purposes, develop the land by constructing or adapting buildings thereon for use wholly or partly by other persons<sup>7</sup>, with a view to selling or otherwise disposing of any right or interest in the land or, as the case may be, the buildings or any part of the buildings, after the development is carried out<sup>8</sup>. The board must not incur any substantial item of expenditure in developing its land for use for purposes which are not the purposes of its business without the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>9</sup>, and the Secretary of State may from time to time give directions<sup>10</sup> to the board indicating what is to be treated for these purposes as a substantial item of expenditure<sup>11</sup>.

Where the board proposes under these provisions to develop any land for use otherwise than for the purposes of its business it has power, with the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>12</sup>, to acquire by agreement adjoining land for the purpose of developing it together with the other land<sup>13</sup>.

As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

10 As to directions see PARA 724.

11 Transport Act 1962 s 11(3). See also note 5.

12 The board may exercise the power conferred by the Transport Act 1962 s 11(4) without the consent of the Secretary of State in any case where the Secretary of State has under s 11(3) (see the text to notes 9-11) consented to the incurring by the board of a substantial item of expenditure in developing land which includes expenditure proposed to be incurred in the exercise of that power: see the Transport Act 1968 s 49(2); and PARA 759.

13 Transport Act 1962 s 11(4) (amended by the Transport Act 1968 ss 49(1), 165(a), Sch 18 Pt I). Except as so provided, the board does not have power to acquire land for purposes which are not related to any of the activities of the board other than the development of land: s 11(4) proviso. Board's power to develop its own land otherwise than for the purposes of its business.

759. Board's power to develop its own land otherwise than for the purposes of its business.

Where the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> proposes<sup>2</sup> to develop any of its land<sup>3</sup> for use otherwise than for the purposes of its business, the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> may give his consent<sup>5</sup> to the acquisition by the board by agreement of adjoining land for the purpose of developing it with the other land whether or not it appears to him that the other land cannot be satisfactorily developed unless the adjoining land is so acquired<sup>6</sup>. The board may exercise the power<sup>7</sup> to develop any of its land for use otherwise than for the purposes of its business without the consent of the Secretary of State in any case where the Secretary of State has consented<sup>8</sup> to the incurring by the board of a substantial item of expenditure in developing that land which includes expenditure proposed to be incurred in the exercise of that power<sup>9</sup>.

Where the board proposes<sup>10</sup> to dispose of any of its land it has power to acquire by agreement adjoining land for the purpose of disposing of it together with the other land; but the board must not incur any substantial item of expenditure under this provision without the consent of the Secretary of State; and the Secretary of State may from time to time give directions<sup>11</sup> to the board indicating what is to be treated for these purposes as a substantial item of expenditure<sup>12</sup>.

761. Power of the British Waterways Board to construct and operate pipelines.

- 1512 (1) to construct and operate pipelines<sup>3</sup> in Great Britain<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1513 (2) to enter into transactions with other persons<sup>5</sup> for the construction or operation by those other persons of pipelines on land<sup>6</sup> in Great Britain belonging to the board<sup>7</sup>.

However, the board must not without the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> construct any pipeline unless the pipeline is required for the purposes of the business of the board other than the operation of pipelines<sup>9</sup>.

The board does not have power to acquire land for the purpose of constructing pipelines except: (a) where the pipeline is or is to be mainly on land belonging to the board and acquired for other purposes<sup>10</sup>; or (b) where the pipeline is required for the purposes of the business of the board other than the operation of pipelines<sup>11</sup>.

Entry on to land in cases of emergency.

D. POWERS OF ENTRY ON LAND UNDER THE BRITISH WATERWAYS ACT 1995

762. Entry on to land in cases of emergency.

Where the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has reasonable cause to believe that:

- 1514 (1) the carrying out of relevant operations<sup>2</sup> is necessary<sup>3</sup>;
- 1515 (2) the relevant operations are required to be carried out without delay: (a) in the case of any relevant operations consisting of any inspection, survey or investigation, for the purpose of confirming that there exists an immediate danger to persons or property and, if so, establishing the nature of the repair, maintenance, alteration, protection or demolition required to remove the danger<sup>4</sup>; (b) in the case of any other relevant operations, for the purpose of removing or facilitating the removal of any immediate danger to persons or property<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1516 (3) it would not be reasonably practicable for the operations to be carried out without entry on to land (other than a highway<sup>6</sup>) adjoining or in the vicinity of an inland waterway<sup>7</sup>, any person authorised in writing<sup>8</sup> in that behalf by the board may enter the land and carry out the operations on that land<sup>9</sup> or on any adjoining land of the board<sup>10</sup>.

The board must inform the owner<sup>11</sup> and occupier of the land as soon as possible of the carrying out of emergency operations<sup>12</sup> and, not more than seven days after the entry on that land, it must serve on such owner and occupier a notice<sup>13</sup>: (i) specifying the land upon which entry has been made and the nature of the emergency operations<sup>14</sup>; and (ii) containing details of the right of the occupier to claim payment for such entry and the right of the owner and occupier to claim compensation<sup>15</sup>. The board must as soon as possible inform all relevant undertakers<sup>16</sup> of the carrying out of emergency operations likely to affect them and must thereafter give notice as soon as possible to the relevant undertakers of any such operations<sup>17</sup>.

Nothing contained in or done under the provisions relating to notice of entry<sup>18</sup> or the power to enter land and carry out relevant operations pursuant to notice of entry<sup>19</sup>, affects the powers of the board under the above provisions<sup>20</sup> to enter land and carry out emergency operations at any time<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 'Relevant operations' means: (1) the repair, maintenance, alteration, renewal, protection or demolition of any inland waterway; (2) the repair, maintenance, alteration, renewal or protection of any works (not forming part of any inland waterway) for the drainage of, or supply of water to, any inland waterway; (3) any inspection, survey or investigation of any inland waterway or adjoining land, or any works such as are referred to in head (2) above, for the purpose of ascertaining whether any such repair, maintenance, alteration, renewal, protection or demolition is required: British Waterways Act 1995 s 3(1). For the purposes of s 3(1), 'maintenance' includes the removal, felling, cutting back or treating of any tree or other vegetation: s 3(2). As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 745 note 13. As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 14 note 21.

Nothing in Pt II (ss 3-15) affects the obligation of the board: (a) to obtain a works licence under the Port of London Act 1968 s 66 (which relates to the licensing of works in the river Thames and adjoining waters: see LONDON GOVERNMENT) in respect of any operation constituting works to which s 66 relates (British Waterways Act 1995 s 14); or (b) to obtain a licence under the Thames Conservancy Act 1932 Pt III (ss 44-109) (see LONDON GOVERNMENT) in respect of any operation requiring a licence under Pt III (British Waterways Act 1995 s 15).

3 British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(1)(a).

4 British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(1)(b)(i).

5 British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(1)(b)(ii).

6 'Highway' is not defined in the British Waterways Act 1995. As to the meaning of the expression at common law see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 1; and as to the meaning under the Highways Act 1980 see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 7.

7 British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(1)(c).

8 As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

9 'On' in relation to the carrying out of relevant operations on land, includes in, under or over: British Waterways Act 1995 s 3(1).

10 British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(1). As to powers of entry in cases other than an emergency see PARAS 763-764. As to further provisions as to entry see PARA 765. As to offences relating to entry on land see PARA 769.

11 'Owner' means, in relation to any land in England or Wales, a person (other than a mortgagee not in possession) who, whether in his own right or as trustee for any other person, is entitled to receive the rack-rent of the land or, where the land is not let at a rack-rent, would be entitled if it were so let: see the British Waterways Act 1995 s 3(1). As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

12 'Emergency operations' means relevant operations carried out pursuant to the British Waterways Act 1995 s 4: s 3(1).

13 Subject to the British Waterways Act 1995 s 19(5) (see PARA 793), the British Waterways Act 1983 s 17 (see below) applies to all notices authorised or required to be served on any person by or under the British Waterways Act 1995: s 31(1). The British Waterways Act 1983 s 17(2)(e) applies to notices under the British Waterways Act 1995 s 4(2), to notices of entry under s 5 (see PARA 763) and to notices under s 21(12) (see PARA 794) as it applies to notices under the British Waterways Act 1983 s 12 (see PARA 771), as though the said s 12 applied to Scotland as well as to England and Wales: British Waterways Act 1995 s 31(2).

All notices authorised or required to be served on any person by or under the British Waterways Act 1983 must be in writing: s 17(1). Any such notice may be served: (1) by delivering it to the person upon whom it is to be served or by leaving it at his proper address or by sending it by post to him at that address (s 17(2)(a)); or (2) if the person is a body corporate, by serving it in accordance with head (1) above on the secretary or clerk of that body (s 17(2)(b)); or (3) if the person is a partnership, by serving it in accordance with head (1) above on a partner or a person having the control or management of the partnership business (s 17(2)(c)); or (4) if in the case of a notice relating to a vessel the name and address of the person upon whom the notice is to be served cannot after reasonable inquiry be ascertained, by exhibiting it in a conspicuous position on or near the vessel (s 17(2)(d)); or (5) if in the case of a notice under s 12 the name and address of any owner or occupier of land upon whom the notice is to be served cannot after reasonable inquiry be ascertained, either by leaving it in the hands of a person who is or who appears to be resident or employed on the land or by leaving it conspicuously affixed to some building or object on the land (s 17(2)(e)). For these purposes and for the purposes of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (see PARA 22 note 5) in its application to these provisions, the proper address of any person on whom notice is to be served by the board is his last known address, except that (a) in the case of service on a body corporate or its secretary or clerk it is the address of the registered or principal office of the body (s 17(3)(a)); (b) in the case of service on a partnership or a partner or a person having the control or management of the partnership business it is the principal office of the partnership (s 17(3)(b)); and for these purposes the principal office of a company registered outside the United Kingdom or of a partnership carrying on business outside the United Kingdom is its principal office within the United Kingdom (s 17(3)). If a person to be served by virtue of these provisions with any notice by the board has specified an address within the United Kingdom other than his proper address (as determined in pursuance of s 17(3) above) as the one at which he or someone on his behalf will accept documents of the same kind as that document, that address is also to be treated as his proper address for the purposes of s 17 and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 in its application thereto: British Waterways Act 1983 s 17(4). 'Vessel' includes any ship, boat, barge, lighter or raft and any other description of craft, whether used in navigation or not: s 2; British Waterways Act 1995 s 2(1). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 22 note 5.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/D. POWERS OF ENTRY ON LAND UNDER THE BRITISH WATERWAYS ACT 1995/763. Notice of entry.

763. Notice of entry.

Where the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has reasonable cause to believe that the carrying out of relevant operations<sup>2</sup> other than emergency operations is necessary<sup>3</sup>, and where it would not be reasonably practicable for the operations to be carried out without entry on to land<sup>4</sup> (other than a highway<sup>5</sup>) adjoining or in the vicinity of an inland waterway<sup>6</sup>, the board may serve<sup>7</sup> a notice of entry in the following terms<sup>8</sup>. A notice of entry:

1517 (1) must specify:

- 29. (a) the land on which entry is proposed to be made<sup>9</sup>;
- 30. (b) the nature of the relevant operations, the manner in which it is proposed they should be carried out and the nature of any apparatus to be placed and left on the land in connection with the relevant operations<sup>10</sup>;
- 31. (c) the date upon which it is intended that the relevant operations will commence (which must not be earlier than the day after the last date upon which a counter-notice<sup>11</sup> may be served in respect of the notice of entry) and their maximum duration<sup>12</sup>; and
- 32. (d) the hours during which the relevant operations are to be carried out<sup>13</sup>;

1518 (2) must contain details of the rights to object to the notice (including a form of counter-notice for use by the recipient<sup>14</sup>) and to claim payment for such entry together with compensation<sup>15</sup>; and

1519 (3) must state that it would not be reasonably practicable for the operations to be carried out without entry on the land specified in the notice<sup>16</sup>.

A notice of entry must be served on the owner of the land<sup>17</sup>, on the occupier of the land (if not the owner)<sup>18</sup>, and on every relevant undertaker<sup>19</sup>. A copy of every such notice of entry must be posted in some conspicuous place on or near the land specified in the notice not less than 28 days before entry is proposed to be made<sup>20</sup>.

A person<sup>21</sup> served with a notice of entry may, within 28 days from the date on which the notice is served on him, serve on the board a counter-notice stating that he consents unconditionally to the entry by the board on the land described in the notice and to the carrying out of the relevant operations specified in the notice, in the manner so specified (the 'proposals of the notice of entry')<sup>22</sup>; or stating that he objects to the proposals of the notice of entry on any one or more of the following grounds, which must be specified in the counter-notice<sup>23</sup>. Those grounds are:

1520 (i) that it would be reasonably practicable for the operations mentioned in the notice to be carried out in some other way not involving entry on to the land specified in the notice<sup>24</sup>;

1521 (ii) that the carrying out of the relevant operations is unnecessary<sup>25</sup>;

- 1522 (iii) that the maximum duration of the relevant operations, as stated in the notice of entry, is excessive, having regard to the nature of the relevant operations<sup>26</sup>;
- 1523 (iv) that there has been some informality, defect or error in, or in connection with, the notice<sup>27</sup>;
- 1524 (v) that the notice should lawfully have been served on another person<sup>28</sup>;
- 1525 (vi) that the proposals of the notice of entry will interfere unreasonably with the use and enjoyment of the land by the recipient of the notice of entry and that the board should be required to comply with the conditions specified in the counter-notice with respect to those proposals, or that the proposals should be modified in the manner specified in the counter-notice for the purpose of reducing or preventing such interference<sup>29</sup>;
- 1526 (vii) (where the recipient is a relevant undertaker) that the proposals of the notice of entry would be detrimental to the carrying on by the recipient of its undertaking and that having regard to the detriment entry by the board should not be permitted; or the board should be required to comply with the conditions specified in the counter-notice with respect to those proposals, or that the proposals should be modified in the manner specified in the counter-notice, for the purpose of reducing or preventing such detriment<sup>30</sup>.

If the recipient of a notice of entry does not within 28 days serve a counter-notice on the board, he is deemed to have granted his consent unconditionally to the proposals of the notice of entry<sup>31</sup>.

Upon receipt of a counter-notice the board must within 28 days: (A) inform the recipient of the notice of entry in writing<sup>32</sup> that the notice of entry has been withdrawn (without prejudice to the right of the board to serve a further notice of entry on the recipient or on any other person)<sup>33</sup>, or the board will accept and comply with the conditions with respect to matters such as are mentioned in head (vi) or (vii) above and specified in the counter-notice or modify the proposals of the notice of entry<sup>34</sup>; (B) where the person is a relevant undertaker, refer the counter-notice to arbitration<sup>35</sup>; or (C) in any other case, appeal against the counter-notice to a magistrates' court<sup>36</sup>.

In so far as a counter-notice is based on the ground of some informality, defect or error in or in connection with the notice of entry the court or, as the case may be, the arbitrator must uphold the notice of entry if it or he is satisfied that the informality, defect or error was not a material one<sup>37</sup>. On the hearing of the appeal the court may make such order as it thinks fit<sup>38</sup>. A person aggrieved<sup>39</sup> by an order of a magistrates' court may appeal to the Crown Court<sup>40</sup>.

Power to enter land and carry out relevant operations pursuant to notice of entry.

764. Power to enter land and carry out relevant operations pursuant to notice of entry.

On or after the date mentioned in the notice of entry<sup>1</sup>, or, if such a notice of entry is upheld on appeal<sup>2</sup> (with or without modification) after service of a counter-notice<sup>3</sup>, after the notice of entry has been upheld, any person authorised in writing<sup>4</sup> in that behalf by the British Waterways Board<sup>5</sup> may enter on the land<sup>6</sup> and carry out on that land or on any adjoining land of the board the relevant operations<sup>7</sup> of the nature specified in the notice during the hours and in the manner so specified<sup>8</sup>.

A person so authorised by the board to enter on land must not exercise any of the powers under the above provisions unless notice of his intention to do so has been served<sup>9</sup> by the board, not less than 28 days before he does so, on any relevant undertakers<sup>10</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/D. POWERS OF ENTRY ON LAND UNDER THE BRITISH WATERWAYS ACT 1995/765. Further provisions as to entry.

765. Further provisions as to entry.

The power of the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> to carry out relevant operations<sup>2</sup> includes power:

- 1527 (1) to place and leave on the land<sup>3</sup> apparatus for use in connection with the relevant operations in question, and to remove such apparatus<sup>4</sup>; and
- 1528 (2) to carry out excavations<sup>5</sup>.

The nature of any apparatus and of any proposed excavations such as are referred to in heads (1) and (2) above must be specified in the notice of entry<sup>6</sup> in the case of relevant operations which are not emergency operations<sup>7</sup>. In carrying out any relevant operations in pursuance of entry on to land in cases of emergency<sup>8</sup>, the board must secure that as little damage as may be is done<sup>9</sup>.

A person authorised by the board to enter on land<sup>10</sup> to carry out relevant operations must, if so required before or after entering on the land, produce evidence of his authority to enter<sup>11</sup>. He may take with him on to the land such other persons and such vehicles, materials and equipment as are necessary for the relevant operations<sup>12</sup>, and he must leave the land as effectually secured against trespassers as he found it unless the occupier of the land or his agent indicates that he does not wish the land to be so secured<sup>13</sup>.

However, nothing in the relevant provisions of the British Waterways Act 1995<sup>14</sup> authorises the board to:

- 1529 (a) enter any building or any operational railway, tramroad or any part of a tramway laid otherwise than in a highway<sup>15</sup>;
- 1530 (b) use or interfere with any apparatus of a relevant undertaker<sup>16</sup>, unless the board is entitled to do so otherwise than by virtue of those provisions<sup>17</sup>; or
- 1531 (c) construct any permanent works on any land unless the board has a sufficient right or interest in the land apart from those provisions<sup>18</sup>.

The board, when it has entered any land<sup>19</sup>, must commence the relevant operations for the purposes of which entry was made as soon as is reasonably practicable and must complete them with all reasonable dispatch<sup>20</sup>.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the completion of any relevant operations and any making good carried out under s 8(1)(c) the board must remove any apparatus, vehicles and equipment and any unused materials from the land: s 8(4).

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(i) Duties and Powers of the British Waterways Board/D. POWERS OF ENTRY ON LAND UNDER THE BRITISH WATERWAYS ACT 1995/766. Payment for entry.

766. Payment for entry.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> must pay to the occupier of any land<sup>2</sup> upon which entry is made<sup>3</sup> a sum in respect of such entry which is assessed as follows<sup>4</sup>. The sum so payable is such sum as would have been paid if the occupier had entered into an agreement with the board granting it rights to enter the land for such period and for such purposes as entry has been made<sup>5</sup> and, where entry is made pursuant to a notice of entry<sup>6</sup>, on such conditions as are specified in any counter-notice<sup>7</sup> and accepted by the board or imposed either on any reference to arbitration of a counter-notice, by an arbitrator<sup>8</sup>, or on any appeal against a counter-notice, by a court<sup>9</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions requires the board to defer or suspend entry on land or the carrying out of relevant operations<sup>10</sup> while any dispute as to the sum so payable<sup>11</sup> is determined<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

The rights of any person to a payment under s 9(1) are without prejudice to the rights of that or any other person to recover compensation under s 10 (see PARA 767): s 9(5). The Land Compensation Act 1961 Part II (ss 5-16) (see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 754 et seq) so far as material, applies to the assessment of the sum payable under the British Waterways Act 1995 s 9(1) as though the rights deemed by s 9(2) (see the text to notes 5-9) to be granted to the board had been acquired by it compulsorily; and in assessing that sum regard must be had to the degree of inconvenience caused to the occupier by the entry: s 9(3). ## 767. Compensation.

If a person<sup>1</sup> suffers loss or damage in consequence of:

- 1532 (1) entry on to land<sup>2</sup> in accordance with the British Waterways Act 1995<sup>3</sup>;
- 1533 (2) the carrying out<sup>4</sup> of relevant operations<sup>5</sup>; or
- 1534 (3) the failure by the British Waterways Board<sup>6</sup> to comply with any condition:
  - (a) specified in a counter-notice and accepted by the board<sup>7</sup>; or (b) imposed on any reference to arbitration of a counter-notice by an arbitrator or imposed on any appeal against a counter-notice by a court<sup>8</sup>,

769. Offences under the provisions as to entry on land.

- 1537 (1) intentionally obstructs another person in the exercise of any power of entry conferred on the other person by the British Waterways Act 1995<sup>3</sup>;
- 1538 (2) while another person is on any land<sup>4</sup> intentionally obstructs him in carrying out any emergency operations<sup>5</sup>, or any relevant operations<sup>6</sup> specified in a notice of entry<sup>7</sup> (and not superseded by any conditions accepted or modifications<sup>8</sup> or by the order of any court or the award of an arbitrator), as the case may be<sup>9</sup>; or
- 1539 (3) without reasonable excuse removes or otherwise interferes with apparatus left<sup>10</sup> on or in land<sup>11</sup>.

It is a defence in any prosecution for an offence under head (1) or (2) above that the person obstructed could not reasonably be identified as a person entitled to exercise the powers<sup>12</sup> in question<sup>13</sup>.

If a person who has entered on any land<sup>14</sup> discloses to another person information obtained by him there about a manufacturing process or trade secret, he is guilty of an offence<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 See the British Waterways Act 1995 s 12(1). The penalty for such an offence is, on summary conviction, a fine: (1) in the case of an offence of obstructing another person in the exercise of a power conferred by s 4 (entry on to land in cases of emergency: see PARA 762), not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale (s 12(1)(i)); and (2) in the case of any other offence, not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale (s 12(1)(ii)). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18.

Power to make canal byelaws under local Acts.

E. POWERS AVAILABLE UNDER OTHER LOCAL ACTS

(A) POWER TO MAKE CANAL BYELAWS

770. Power to make canal byelaws under local Acts.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has power to make byelaws (except in relation to tidal waters) for regulating the use of canals, including the express power to make byelaws for excluding any vessel from its canals, prohibiting the use by any vessel of canals or prohibiting the use of its canals except in compliance with such conditions as the board may prescribe<sup>2</sup>. The board may also from time to time make byelaws for regulating the use of its canals and the conduct of all persons<sup>3</sup>, including its officers and servants, who may be on canals<sup>4</sup>. In particular, byelaws may be made for all or any of the following purposes:

- 1540 (1) for determining the description, size and construction of vessels that may be used on the canal or on specified parts of it and the means by which, and the conditions on which, those vessels may be navigated and used<sup>5</sup>;
- 1541 (2) for regulating the markings of vessels and the loading, discharging and mooring of vessels<sup>6</sup>;
- 1542 (3) for prohibiting or imposing conditions and restrictions on the conveyance, handling and storage of any goods which might endanger the safety of the canal, except where the conveyance, handling or storage is subject to the provisions of a public general Act<sup>7</sup>;
- 1543 (4) for requiring the owner, master or person in charge of any vessel conveying goods to declare in writing its correct tonnage and the weight and description of any goods on board<sup>8</sup>;
- 1544 (5) for prescribing the person or persons to whom and the place or places at which the board's rates, tolls, dues and charges are to be paid<sup>9</sup>;
- 1545 (6) for preventing damage or injury to the canal or any vessel or goods on it and the removal, alteration, damage or destruction of any work or thing set up by the board or with its consent in connection with the canal<sup>10</sup>;
- 1546 (7) for preventing any rubbish or live or dead animal from being thrown or discharged or being permitted to be thrown or discharged into the canal<sup>11</sup>;
- 1547 (8) for preventing obstructions, and preventing or regulating bathing, in the canal<sup>12</sup>; and
- 1548 (9) for prohibiting, without prejudice to any public or private rights, the passage without the board's consent of any person, animal or vehicle over any canal towpath<sup>13</sup>.

The board has additional powers to make byelaws for prohibiting or controlling water-skiing or any similar activity on canals, either generally or during specified periods<sup>14</sup>. Any byelaws so made by the British Waterways Board may provide that any person contravening them is to be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding £100 for each offence and, in the case of a continuing offence, a further penalty not exceeding £2 for each day on which the offence is continued after conviction<sup>15</sup>.

Byelaws made by the British Waterway Board do not come into operation until they have been confirmed by the Secretary of State<sup>16</sup>, and provision is made for their publication and proof<sup>17</sup>.

The enactments conferring the power to make canal byelaws do not affect the validity or operation of any byelaws made by the former British Transport Commission or its predecessors under any public general Act or restrict the British Waterways Board from making further byelaws under any such Act<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 See the British Waterways Act 1975 s 5.

3 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

4 See the British Transport Commission Act 1954 s 16(2). So far as they were inconsistent with this provision, local enactments authorising the board to make canal byelaws have been repealed: s 16(1), (5). This repeal was subject to a saving of existing byelaws made under those enactments but power is conferred to repeal those byelaws: s 16(1), (3), (5). As to the power conferred on all navigation authorities to make waterways byelaws see PARA 720; and as to byelaws made by canal companies under special Acts see PARA 780.

(B) POWERS TO MAINTAIN AND CONTROL WATERWAYS

771. Miscellaneous powers under local Acts.

In addition to the general powers conferred on the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> by the British Waterways Act 1995<sup>2</sup>, and the specific powers to make byelaws for regulating the use of its canals and the conduct of persons who may be on those canals<sup>3</sup>, local Acts also confer on the board the following powers<sup>4</sup>:

- 1549 (1) to require canal basins to be kept watertight<sup>5</sup>;
- 1550 (2) to carry out or complete works to fill in a canal basin where a person has either failed to complete those works or failed to complete them in accordance with the necessary requirements<sup>6</sup>;
- 1551 (3) to recover charges due to the board under or by virtue of specified enactments<sup>7</sup>;
- 1552 (4) to obtain information as to the master or the owner (as the case may be) of any vessel which is or has been on an inland waterway or on a reservoir owned or managed by the board<sup>8</sup>;
- 1553 (5) to control vessels on any inland waterway or on any reservoir owned or managed by the board which are, in the opinion of the board, unsafe<sup>9</sup>;
- 1554 (6) to remove any relevant craft after giving not less than 28 days' notice to the owner<sup>10</sup>;
- 1555 (7) to remove from any inland waterway or from any reservoir owned or managed by the board anything (other than a vessel) which is: (a) causing (or likely to become) an obstruction to (or likely to cause interference with) navigation; (b) causing or likely to cause interference with the operation of any works of the board, or damage to any such works or to any property; or (c) in the waterway or reservoir without lawful authority<sup>11</sup>;
- 1556 (8) to obtain, for the purpose of performing any of the board's statutory duties, particulars of persons interested in land<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is made for the service of notices pursuant to the exercise of the powers under heads (4) to (8) above<sup>13</sup>.

2 As to powers of entry onto land see PARA 762 et seq. As to powers of regulation of waterways see PARA 784 et seq.

3 As to the power conferred by the British Transport Commission Act 1954 s 16: see PARA 770.

4 As to the treatment of local Acts in this title see PARA 725 note 7. It should be noted also that, notwithstanding the powers and duties applicable to the British Waterways Board under general and local legislation of the nature described in this paragraph, the board remains subject to, and has the benefit of, over 500 special Acts under which the waterways it is now responsible for were created: see PARA 714.

- 10 See the British Waterways Act 1983 s 8. For these purposes, 'relevant craft' means any vessel which is sunk, stranded or abandoned in any inland waterway or in any reservoir owned or managed by the board or which is left or moored therein without lawful authority and includes any part of such vessel; and 'owner', in relation to any relevant craft, means the owner of the relevant craft at the time of sinking, stranding or abandonment and includes a person letting a vessel for hire, whether or not that person owns the vessel: see s 8(1). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. This provision is the enforcement power most commonly used by the British Waterways Board and regularly features in county court litigation, especially in relation to unlicensed vessels (being 'vessel[s] . . . left or moored therein without any lawful authority'). ### A. IN GENERAL

772. Power to make waterways byelaws.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may, on the application of any qualified body which owns or manages an inland waterway and after consultation with the relevant authority, by order confer on that body power to make byelaws in relation to that waterway for such purposes as may be specified in the order<sup>2</sup>. The Broads Authority<sup>3</sup> has powers to make byelaws for the purposes of preventing damage to the land and interference with the enjoyment of the land<sup>4</sup>, and for the purposes of the good management of the navigation area, the conservation of its natural beauty and amenities and the promotion of its use for purposes of recreation<sup>5</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(ii) Duties and Powers of Other Navigation Authorities/A. IN GENERAL/773. Revision of charges made by inland waterway undertakings.

773. Revision of charges made by inland waterway undertakings.

An independent statutory undertaking, including an inland waterway undertaking<sup>1</sup>, together with any person<sup>2</sup>, or any body representative of persons, appearing to the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> to have a substantial interest, may make an application<sup>4</sup> to the Secretary of State for a revision of the amount of any of the charges which that undertaking is for the time being authorised to demand and take in pursuance of any statutory provision<sup>5</sup>. However, this power to apply for revision does not apply to any charge which, by the statutory provisions authorising the charge, is left to the discretion of the undertakers without any restriction or subject only to a requirement that the charge is to be reasonable<sup>6</sup>.

1 See the Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 s 6(1)(b) (amended by the Transport Act 1962 ss 52(3), 95(1), Sch 12 Pt I). 'Inland waterway undertaking' means an undertaking engaged in conserving, maintaining, improving or working a canal or other inland navigation not navigated by sea-going ships or the navigation of a tidal water not so navigated: Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 s 13 (amended by the Harbours Act 1964 s 39(1)).

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

3 The Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 refers to 'the minister' which expression is defined as meaning the Minister of Transport: see ss 6, 13(1) (definition amended by SI 1959/1768). As to the devolution of the functions of the Minister of Transport to the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719.

4 As to the requirements for information to be provided and published in relation to any such application see the Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 s 6(4).

5 See the Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 s 6(2). The provisions of s 6 do not apply to any undertaking in relation to any charge if the statutory provisions relating to that undertaking confer a power of revising that charge on the Secretary of State and some other minister acting together: s 6(1) (amended by SI 1959/1768). As to the exercise of the power of the Secretary of State to make an order under the Transport Charges etc (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1954 s 6 see s 6(2), (3), (5). Any such order is made by statutory instrument and an order made under s 6(2) may vary or revoke any previous order made under that provision: s 6(6). Such orders, being of local effect, are not recorded in this work.

774. Environment Agency's general environmental and recreational duties.

The Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> has a general duty to promote the conservation and enhancement of the natural beauty and amenity of inland and coastal waters and of land associated with such waters, the conservation of flora and fauna which are dependent on an aquatic environment, and the use of such waters and land for recreational purposes<sup>2</sup>. The Agency is also subject to a general duty to further the conservation and enhancement of the environment<sup>3</sup>, and under a duty to take steps for securing, so long as the Agency has rights to the use of water or land associated with water, that those rights are exercised so as to ensure that the water or land is made available for recreational purposes and is so made available in the best manner<sup>4</sup>.

Where any navigable waters in England and Wales<sup>1</sup> are not subject to the control of any navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority, the Environment Agency<sup>2</sup> may apply to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers for an order imposing tolls in respect of the navigation of vessels in those waters<sup>3</sup>. The Agency may apply to the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers for an order transferring to it the functions of a navigation or conservancy authority<sup>4</sup>.

Where it appears necessary or expedient to do so for the purposes of its relevant statutory functions, the Agency may make byelaws regulating the use of inland waters<sup>5</sup>, the use of navigable waters<sup>6</sup>, and the use of the Agency's waters<sup>7</sup>.

The Agency also has powers to carry out drainage works in respect of main rivers<sup>8</sup>, and to make drainage and flood defence byelaws but no such byelaw may conflict or interfere with the operation of any byelaw made by a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority<sup>9</sup>.

776. Authority's powers in relation to navigation and conservation.

The general duty of the Broads Authority<sup>1</sup> to manage the Broads includes management for the purposes of protecting the interests of navigation<sup>2</sup>. The Authority has a duty to maintain the navigation area for the purposes of navigation and to improve and develop it as it thinks fit<sup>3</sup>; and it has powers to make byelaws for the good management of the navigation area, for its conservation and for the promotion of its use for purposes of recreation<sup>4</sup>. Other duties of the Authority relate to the conservation and enhancement of the Broads, and to the promotion of opportunities for the understanding and enjoyment of the special qualities of the Broads by the public<sup>5</sup>.

777. Power of local authorities to assist in maintaining waterways for amenity purposes.

Without prejudice to the provisions relating to the power of certain bodies to maintain or take over waterways and connected works<sup>1</sup>, a local authority<sup>2</sup> may assist any other person<sup>3</sup> (whether financially, by the provision of services or facilities, or otherwise) in maintaining or improving for amenity or recreational purposes, including fishing: (1) any inland waterway<sup>4</sup> situated wholly or partly in the area of the authority<sup>5</sup>; and (2) any other waterway which is so situated that it can conveniently be used for those purposes by persons residing in the area of the authority<sup>6</sup>.

Within internal drainage districts<sup>1</sup>, internal drainage boards<sup>2</sup> have flood defence powers in respect of ordinary watercourses (that is, watercourses that are not main rivers<sup>3</sup>), and outside such districts local authorities have those powers<sup>4</sup>. An internal drainage board or a local authority may make such drainage or flood defence byelaws as it considers necessary to secure the efficient working of the drainage system in its district or area respectively so long as no byelaw so made conflicts or interferes with the operation of any byelaw made by a navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority<sup>5</sup>.

In the case of waters within an internal drainage district which do not form part of a main river, the powers of the Environment Agency to levy navigation tolls are exercisable by the drainage board for that district concurrently with the Agency<sup>6</sup>.

(D) CANAL COMPANIES

780. Canal companies' powers and duties.

The powers and obligations of a canal company are normally governed by the special Act under which it was formed<sup>1</sup>. The special Acts often included the power to make byelaws and regulations<sup>2</sup>, which are subject to the approval of the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, and no byelaw or regulation disallowed by the Secretary of State has any effect<sup>4</sup>. Any power to borrow money possessed by a canal company must be given to it by its special Act<sup>5</sup>.

Where a canal company is obliged by its Act to repair a canal and to keep it in repair for the use of those members of the public who desire to use it and are prepared to pay the prescribed tolls, an injunction will be granted restraining the company from impeding navigation by failing to keep the canal in repair, but a mandatory order to repair will not be granted<sup>6</sup>. A railway company which owns or manages a canal is bound at all times to keep or maintain the canal and all the works appertaining to it, as well as maintaining a supply of water so as to permit rights of navigation to be exercised<sup>7</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by order direct, in respect of any canal not comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board, that any local Act is to cease to have effect so far as it confers public or private rights of navigation or imposes a duty to maintain a canal or supply of water from it<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the special Act see PARA 799. As to the exercise of statutory powers by canal undertakers see PARA 781. It should be noted also that, notwithstanding the powers and duties applicable to the British Waterways Board under general and local legislation (see PARA 725), the board remains subject to, and has the benefit of, over 500 special Acts under which the waterways it is now responsible for were created: see PARA 714. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 In the case of canals in England and Wales belonging to or under the control of the British Waterways Board, powers to make byelaws contained in special Acts have now been largely superseded: see PARA 770.

3 In this case the Secretary of State for Transport, as to whom see PARA 719.

4 See the Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 s 40(2), (3) (s 40(2) amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1908).

5 Where a special Act gave power to borrow on the security of the undertaking and the tolls and rents authorised to be charged, it was held that the property mortgaged was alone liable and that the company was not liable in an action for interest due: Pontet v Basingstoke Canal Co (1837) 3 Bing NC 433; and see Rogers v Oxford, Worcester and Wolverhampton Rly Co (1858) 25 Beav 322. As to the borrowing powers of the British Waterways Board see PARA 751.

6 See PARA 827. Where the construction and maintenance of a canal is permissive only, and part of it is closed to navigation for want of repair, reopening will not be enforced if the expense of so doing makes it unreasonable: see PARA 827.

7 See the Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17; and PARA 826.

8 See the Transport Act 1968 s 112; and PARA 828.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(ii) Duties and Powers of Other Navigation Authorities/B. PARTICULAR DUTIES AND POWERS/(D) Canal Companies/781. Exercise of statutory powers by canal undertakers.

781. Exercise of statutory powers by canal undertakers.

The law as to the exercise of statutory powers by canal undertakers is the same as in the case of railway undertakers<sup>1</sup>. Damage inevitably caused by the exercise of statutory powers is not actionable unless the powers were exercised negligently<sup>2</sup>, but the special Acts creating the canal undertakers<sup>3</sup> usually make provision for compensation to persons injured by the exercise of the statutory powers and, in such cases, compensation, in the manner provided, is the only remedy<sup>4</sup>. The right to compensation is not affected by the fact that the cause of the damage is the negligent intervention of a third person<sup>5</sup>. If the canal undertakers exceed their statutory powers by an act which would not otherwise be actionable, it will become actionable only if the claimant can show that the statutory limitation was made for the benefit of a class of persons of whom he is one<sup>6</sup>.

The right of a canal undertaker to supply water from its canal is limited to the extent of its express powers<sup>7</sup>. In the absence of express power, it is ultra vires the general powers of canal undertakers to make a grant of the water in their canal; consequently a right to use such water cannot be obtained by prescription<sup>8</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(ii) Duties and Powers of Other Navigation Authorities/B. PARTICULAR DUTIES AND POWERS/(D) Canal Companies/782. Carrying powers of canal companies.

782. Carrying powers of canal companies.

Most canal companies originally had no powers to engage in the business of carrying. In 1845, as a further inducement to competition between railways and canals, Parliament authorised canal companies which adopted the Canal Carriers Act 1845<sup>1</sup>:

- 1557 (1) to carry as common carriers on their own or any other canals and railways<sup>2</sup>;
- 1558 (2) to obtain, own and use the means for collecting, carrying, warehousing and delivering traffic<sup>3</sup>;
- 1559 (3) to make such reasonable charges in respect of such conveyance, warehousing, collection and delivery as any such company or undertakers may respectively from time to time determine (in addition to the several tolls or dues which they are authorised to take)<sup>4</sup>;
- 1560 (4) to provide and use boats and means of hauling or towing them on their own and other canals<sup>5</sup>; and
- 1561 (5) to make reasonable charges for the services mentioned in head (4) above<sup>6</sup>.

Such canal companies may sue and be sued in their capacity as carriers for charges due or losses caused<sup>7</sup>, but they are not liable beyond the liability of a common carrier<sup>8</sup>. Such a company may, by contract, divide its tolls and charges with, and provide passage over its canal for the vessels of, another canal company<sup>9</sup>.

1 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 12 (repealed). However, nothing in the Canal Carriers Act 1845 is to be construed as exempting any canal company that adopts its powers from the operation of any general Act regulating the manner of charging tolls and other charges upon canals or navigations in respect of passengers, goods, etc which may be passed in any future session of Parliament: see s 13 (ss 1, 3, 5-7, 13 amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1891).

4 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 1 (as amended: see note 1).

5 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 3 (as amended: see note 1).

6 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 3 (as amended: see note 1).

7 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 5 (as amended: see note 1).

8 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 6 (as amended: see note 1). However, independent canal companies are not to be regarded as common carriers: see the Transport Act 1962 ss 43(6), 52(2); and CARRIAGE AND CARRIERS vol 7 (2008) PARA 5. The British Waterways Board has express powers to carry goods and passengers by inland waterways but is also not to be regarded as a common carrier by virtue of s 43(6): see PARA 738. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(3) DUTIES AND POWERS OF AUTHORITIES/(ii) Duties and Powers of Other Navigation Authorities/B. PARTICULAR DUTIES AND POWERS/(D) Canal Companies/783. Canal company's power to lease tolls and duties.

783. Canal company's power to lease tolls and duties.

After giving public notice by advertisement of its intention, a canal company<sup>1</sup> which has adopted the Canal Carriers Act 1845<sup>2</sup> may from time to time lease the tolls and duties on the whole or any part of its canal to any other canal company for any period not exceeding 21 years<sup>3</sup>. If any such lease of tolls and duties becomes void or voidable by reason of the lessee's failure to comply with any of its terms, or if the rent is 21 days in arrear, then, on the application of the lessor company, a magistrate has power to order a constable<sup>4</sup> to enter upon any toll house, dwelling house, office, weighing machine or other building of the company, to remove from it any employee of the lessees and to deliver to the lessor company the premises together with any of its property found there<sup>5</sup>. Upon possession being thus obtained, the lease is determined, except as to the remedies of the lessor company for rent due and for breaches of contract, and the lessor company has power to relet the tolls as if the former lease had never been made<sup>6</sup>.

1 The British Waterways Board may have succeeded to this power in relation to such nationalised canal companies as had adopted the Canal Carriers Act 1845, but in practice the board's power to make charges for the use of its facilities is not confined to tolls: see the Transport Act 1962 s 43(3); and PARA 785. The board may also dispose (whether absolutely or for a term of years) of any part of its undertaking not required for the purposes of its business: see s 14(1)(e); and PARA 739. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq. As to the nationalisation of the canal companies see PARA 714.

2 As to the adoption of the Canal Carriers Act 1845 see s 12 (repealed); and PARA 782.

3 See the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 8 (ss 8-11 amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1891). During the continuance of any such lease the lessees are deemed collectors of the tolls: see the Canal Carriers Act 1845 s 9 (as so amended). Where a railway company obtained powers to purchase the property of the X canal, and the exercise of all the 'rights, powers, and privileges' of that company, it was held that, after such purchase, the railway company had power to take a lease of the Y canal, this being a 'right, power, or privilege' of the X company which passed to the railway company; and a motion by a shareholder of the railway company for an injunction restraining that company from taking a lease of the Y canal was therefore refused: Rogers v Oxford, Worcester and Wolverhampton Rly Co (1858) 25 Beav 322.

4 As to the office of constable see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 101 et seq.

(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS

(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board

784. Board's general powers of regulation and management.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has the power that is conferred on all navigation authorities to make waterways byelaws<sup>2</sup>. The board also has extensive powers conferred on it by both local and public general Acts to allow for the regulation and management of its inland waterways<sup>3</sup> as well as specific powers that are conferred in order to impose standards on vessels using those waterways and to take other measures to prevent pollution and to improve safety on those waterways<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 See PARA 720.

3 See PARA 738 et seq.

4 See PARA 786 et seq.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/785. Board's general power to charge for its services and facilities.

785. Board's general power to charge for its services and facilities.

The British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> has power to demand, take and recover, or waive, such charges<sup>2</sup> for its services and facilities<sup>3</sup> and to make the use of those services and facilities subject to such terms and conditions as it thinks fit<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 'Charges' includes fares, rates, tolls and dues of every description: Transport Act 1962 s 92(1).

3 The services and facilities referred to include the use of any inland waterway owned or managed by the British Waterways Board by any ship or boat: see the Transport Act 1962 s 43(8). As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 720 note 3. 'Ship' includes every description of vessel used in navigation: s 92(1). See R v Goodwin [2005] EWCA Crim 3184, [2006] 2 All ER 519, [2006] 2 All ER (Comm) 281, in which it was held, in interpreting a definition in the same terms in the Merchant Shipping Act 1995 s 313, that a jet ski was capable of being a 'vessel' but that craft, such as jet skis, that were simply used for having fun on the water without the object of going anywhere were not 'used in navigation', and were accordingly excluded from the definition.

4 Transport Act 1962 s 43(3) (amended by the Transport Act 1968 s 50(10); the Transport Act 2000 s 252, Sch 27 para 1(1), (3); and the Railways Act 2005 s 59(1), (6), Sch 12 para 1(1), (2)(b)). This power is subject to the Transport Act 1962 and to any local enactment so far as it expressly provides for freedom from charges or otherwise prohibits the making of any charge: see s 43(2), (3) (s 42(2) amended by the Transport Act 2000 Sch 27 para 1(1), (2), the Railways Act 2005 Sch 12 para 1(1), (2)(a)). As to the power of the board to recover sums due to it under these provisions see the British Waterways Act 1983 s 5; and PARA 771. As to the imposition of terms and conditions see Burnett v British Waterways Board [1973] 2 All ER 631, [1973] 1 WLR 700, CA.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/786. Pleasure boat and houseboat certificates issued by the board.

786. Pleasure boat and houseboat certificates issued by the board.

In relation to certain river navigations controlled by the British Waterways Board (known as 'river waterways')<sup>1</sup>, provision is made under the British Waterways Act 1971 making it unlawful to keep, let for hire or use any pleasure boat unless a certificate in relation to the pleasure boat is then in force or unless there is then in force in relation to it a licence issued by the board authorising the use of all inland waterways without further payment<sup>2</sup>.

A houseboat certificate<sup>3</sup> issued or renewed after 16 January 1995<sup>4</sup> under the British Waterways Act 1971 is, unless the certificate or some other document referred to in the certificate provides otherwise, subject to the general terms set out in the British Waterways Act 1995<sup>5</sup> in addition to such conditions (if any) as the board may determine<sup>6</sup> under the British Waterways Act 1971<sup>7</sup>. The board must on demand provide a copy of the general terms for the time being in force<sup>8</sup> to any person<sup>9</sup> requiring the same and to the holder on the issue or renewal of the certificate<sup>10</sup>. A houseboat certificate must contain or refer to some other document containing the general terms and any conditions to which it is subject<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'river waterways' for these purposes see the British Waterways Act 1971 s 4, which provides for the British Waterways Board to register pleasure boats and houseboats under the British Waterways Act 1971 for such periods and on payment of such charges as it may from time to time determine, notwithstanding any common law public right of navigation. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 See the British Waterways Act 1971 s 5(1), Sch 1 (Sch 1 amended by the British Waterways Act 1974 s 36(2); British Waterways Act 1995 s 30). Any person contravening these provisions is liable to a fine not exceeding £50 and a daily fine of £5: see the British Waterways Act 1971 s 5(2) (amended by the British Waterways Act 1975 s 7). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. It is not a defence to a charge under the British Waterways Act 1971 s 5 that the accused believed that the boat in question was not a pleasure boat and therefore did not require a licence: see British Waterways Board v James [2003] EWHC 881 (Admin), [2003] All ER (D) 81 (Apr). See also VAT case 19786: Stephen Richard Peters (Manchester Tribunal Centre, 18 September 2006) (the board, in issuing licences permitting the holder to use and keep a pleasure boat on river waterways, is making supplies of services to boat-owners and may correctly charge VAT on its supplies). Information as to licences is available on the board's website at www.britishwaterways.co.uk.

On receiving due payment, due documents and any required additional information, the board must assign to each boat a number, register its details and issue to the applicant a pleasure boat certificate in respect of the registration bearing the number assigned to the pleasure boat: see the British Waterways Act 1971 s 6. The board is able to make a charge for the registration of every pleasure boat on a river waterway: see s 7 (amended by the British Waterways Act 1974 s 36, Schedule). Every powered pleasure boat so registered must have its name or number conspicuously painted or otherwise displayed on the outside in letters of such colour, character and size as to be clearly legible at all times and must have similarly displayed the mark and number which the board assigns in respect of the boat: see the British Waterways Act 1971 s 9(1). Similar provisions apply to unpowered pleasure boats, but with exceptions: see s 9(2). Failure to comply with the provisions of the British Waterways Act 1971 concerning the display of the mark, name or number on a pleasure boat registered under the Act may render the master of the pleasure boat liable to a fine not exceeding £50: see s 9(4) (amended by the British Waterways Act 1975 s 7(b)).

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/787. Terms of houseboat certificates regarding sites controlled by the board.

787. Terms of houseboat certificates regarding sites controlled by the board.

The following provisions apply where the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> owns an interest in, or rights over, the site<sup>2</sup>, and the site is managed by the board or its agent<sup>3</sup>.

Subject to the statutory provisions as to the terms of houseboat certificates<sup>4</sup>, the holder<sup>5</sup> has the right to moor<sup>6</sup> the houseboat at the site throughout the period of validity of the certificate<sup>7</sup>. If the interest of the board in the site is insufficient to enable it to grant the right to moor the houseboat there for an indefinite period, the period for which that right subsists may not extend beyond the date when the estate or interest of the board determines<sup>8</sup>. If planning permission for the use of the site as a mooring has been granted in terms such that it will expire at the end of a specified period, the period for which the right to moor the houseboat at the site subsists may not extend beyond the date when the planning permission expires<sup>9</sup>.

The holder is entitled to assign the certificate to a person (being aged 18 or over<sup>10</sup>) approved by the board whose approval must not be unreasonably withheld<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 2(1)(a). 'Site' means the mooring or other location specified in the certificate: Sch 1 para 1. 'Certificate' means the certificate relating to any houseboat; and 'houseboat' means the houseboat named or otherwise identified in the certificate: Sch 1 para 1.

3 British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 2(1)(b). As to terms applicable to all certificates see PARA 788. As to houseboat certificates generally see PARA 786. As to conditions in respect of certificates see PARAS 789-791.

4 I.e. the provisions of the British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 PARAS 4-15: see note 7, the text to notes 8-11 and PARA 788.

5 'Holder' means the person named in a certificate as the person having control of the houseboat specified in the certificate or the assignee or personal representative (ie within the meaning of the Administration of Estates Act 1925 s 55: see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 4) of the person so named: British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 1.

6 'Moor' includes place, keep or maintain, and 'moored' is to be construed accordingly: British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 1.

7 British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 3. The provisions of Sch 1 para 3 do not prejudice or affect the right of the board to move or to require the removal of a houseboat under s 19 (removal of vessels to permit works, etc: see PARA 793) or any other powers available to the board but, if it so moves or requires the removal of a houseboat during the period of validity of a certificate, the board (unless it would be entitled under Sch 1 para 6 to determine the certificate (see PARA 788)) must make available for it a suitable mooring or other location (which must be broadly comparable to the site) situated as near as is practicable to the site, and must permit the houseboat to be replaced at the site as soon as practicable after the circumstances necessitating the removal have ceased to apply: Sch 1 para 4(3). Any costs and expenses occasioned by the removal and replacement of a houseboat under Sch 1 para 4(3) must be paid by the board: Sch 1 para 4(4).

8 British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 4(1).

9 British Waterways Act 1995 Sch 1 para 4(2). As to planning permission see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 213 et seq.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/788. Terms applicable to all houseboat certificates issued by the board.

788. Terms applicable to all houseboat certificates issued by the board.

The following provisions apply to all certificates<sup>1</sup> issued by the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup>.

The certificate relating to any houseboat<sup>3</sup> remains in force for the period or until the date specified therein unless:

- 1562 (1) the certificate is surrendered<sup>4</sup>;
- 1563 (2) the certificate is<sup>5</sup> withdrawn<sup>6</sup>;
- 1564 (3) the holder's interest in or other right to moor<sup>7</sup> at the site<sup>8</sup> (otherwise than by virtue of the certificate) ends<sup>9</sup>; or
- 1565 (4) the certificate is determined<sup>10</sup>.

The holder must not without the consent in writing of the board moor the houseboat otherwise than at the site except in the following circumstances<sup>11</sup>. The houseboat may be moved from place to place but while being so moved may not be navigated for hire<sup>12</sup>. While the houseboat is in the course of being moved the certificate is deemed to be either a pleasure boat certificate<sup>13</sup>, where the houseboat is on a river waterway<sup>14</sup>, or a pleasure boat licence issued by the board, when the houseboat is on any other inland waterway<sup>15</sup>; and its use at such times is subject to any conditions for the time being in force for the control of pleasure boats and the holder must comply with any requirements made by or under any enactment<sup>16</sup> applicable to pleasure boats<sup>17</sup>.

The certificate must be displayed on the houseboat so as to be clearly visible from the outside of the houseboat at all times<sup>18</sup>. The holder of a certificate must comply in all respects with the terms of any planning permission given in relation to the houseboat and with any other enactment or byelaw in force applying to houseboats within the area in which it is moored<sup>19</sup>. The holder must comply with the requirements of any notice served by a local authority<sup>20</sup> in respect of the houseboat, and must also comply with any limitation as to the number of persons permitted to sleep on board which may be imposed by the local authority for the area where the site is located<sup>21</sup>.

The holder must ensure that no sanitary appliance which in the normal course of operation discharges (or can discharge) polluting matter<sup>22</sup> into any inland waterway is used on the houseboat<sup>23</sup>. The holder must ensure that there are available for the use of the occupants of the houseboat means for disposing of sewage arising from the occupation of the boat which are satisfactory to the board<sup>24</sup>, the Environment Agency<sup>25</sup>, and the local authorities for the area in which the site is located<sup>26</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/789. Board's power to refuse certificates or licences in respect of any vessel.

789. Board's power to refuse certificates or licences in respect of any vessel.

- 1566 (1) the applicant for the relevant consent satisfies the board that the vessel complies with the standards<sup>4</sup> applicable to that vessel<sup>5</sup>;
- 1567 (2) an insurance policy<sup>6</sup> is in force in respect of the vessel and a copy of the policy, or evidence that it exists and is in force, has been produced to the board<sup>7</sup>; and
- 1568 (3) either: (a) the board is satisfied that a mooring<sup>8</sup> or other place where the vessel can reasonably be kept and may lawfully be left is available for the vessel, whether on an inland waterway or elsewhere<sup>9</sup>; or (b) the applicant for the relevant consent satisfies the board that the vessel to which the application relates is to be used bona fide for navigation throughout the period for which the consent is valid without remaining continuously in any one place for more than 14 days or such longer period as is reasonable in the circumstances<sup>10</sup>.

If:

- 1569 (i) the vessel does not comply with the standards applicable to the vessel on the date when the consent was granted<sup>11</sup>; or
- 1570 (ii) an insurance policy is not in force in respect of the vessel<sup>12</sup>; or
- 1571 (iii) either: (A) (in the case of a vessel in respect of which a relevant consent is issued pursuant to head (3)(a) above) it appears to the board that a mooring or other place such as is referred to in head (3)(a) above is not available for the vessel<sup>13</sup>; or (B) (in the case of a vessel in respect of which a relevant consent is issued pursuant to head (3)(b) above) the vessel has not in fact been used bona fide for navigation in accordance with head (3)(b) above<sup>14</sup>, the board may give notice<sup>15</sup> requiring the holder of the relevant consent to remedy the default within such time as may be reasonable (not being less than 28 days)<sup>16</sup>. If the holder of the relevant consent does not comply with any notice so served then the relevant consent determines on the date the notice expires<sup>17</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions<sup>18</sup> affects any power of the board under any other enactment to refuse or withdraw a relevant consent<sup>19</sup>; or the operation of the provisions<sup>20</sup> relating to the control of unsafe vessels<sup>21</sup>. The refusal or withdrawal by the board of a relevant consent in respect of any vessel on the grounds that the vessel does not comply with the standards applicable to that vessel does not preclude the movement or use of the vessel with the consent of the board (which is not to be unreasonably withheld) and subject to such reasonable conditions (if any) as it may determine<sup>22</sup>; but, without prejudice to the generality of this provision, the board must not so withhold its consent to the movement or use of a vessel for the purpose of taking it to a place where it may be repaired or modified so as to comply with the standards applicable to it, or for the purpose of taking the vessel to be destroyed, unless such movement or use would give rise to the risk of obstruction or danger to navigation or to persons or property<sup>23</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 'Relevant consent' means a houseboat certificate, a licence or a pleasure boat certificate: British Waterways Act 1995 s 17(1). 'Houseboat certificate' means a houseboat certificate issued under the British Waterways Act 1971 (see PARA 786); British Waterways Act 1995 s 17(1). 'Licence' means a licence issued by the board in respect of any vessel allowing the use of the vessel on any inland waterways: s 17(1). 3 British Waterways Act 1995 s 17(3). Section 17(3) has effect notwithstanding anything in any enactment but is subject to s 17(7): see s 17(3). Accordingly, the board was not permitted (1) in the case of any designated vessel constructed after 31 December 1970, before the first anniversary of the passing of the British Waterways Act 1995 (which received Royal Assent on 16 January 1995) (s 17(7)(b)(i)); or (2) in the case of any designated vessel constructed before 1 January 1971, before the second anniversary of the passing of the Act (s 17(7)(b)(ii)), to refuse or withdraw a relevant consent in respect of the vessel on the grounds that the vessel did not or had ceased to comply with the standards applicable to it (s 17(7)(b)). 'Designated vessel' means any vessel in respect of which a relevant consent has been in force at any time during the qualifying period other than: (a) a houseboat registered under the British Waterways Act 1971 for the first time after 31 December 1979 (British Waterways Act 1995 s 17(7)(a)(i)); (b) any hire pleasure boat, that is, any pleasure boat which is let, lent, hired or engaged for gift, pay, hire or reward or promise of payment or carries or conveys passengers for a charge or payment (s 17(7)(a)(ii)); or (c) any pleasure boat (not being a hire pleasure boat) adapted or used for the carriage or conveyance of passengers, being a vessel in respect of which the board is satisfied that a multi-user licence would be appropriate (s 17(7)(a)(iii)). 'Qualifying period' means the period commencing 12 months before the date of the passing of the British Waterways Act 1995 and ending six months before the date of the passing of the Act: s 17(7)(a). INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/790. Requirements for insurance policies as to vessels on the board's waterways.

790. Requirements for insurance policies as to vessels on the board's waterways.

An insurance policy must be issued by an insurer authorised<sup>3</sup> to carry on in Great Britain<sup>4</sup> or in Northern Ireland insurance business of a relevant class or who has corresponding permission under the law of another member state of the European Community<sup>5</sup>. The policy must insure the owner of the vessel and such other person<sup>6</sup>, persons or classes of persons (if any) as is or as are authorised by the owner to have control of the vessel, in respect of any liability (other than a liability specified below<sup>7</sup>) which may be incurred by the owner or any such other person resulting from the presence of the vessel on any inland waterway<sup>8</sup> in respect of the death of or bodily injury to any person or any damage to property<sup>9</sup>.

The policy is not by virtue of the British Waterways Act 1995 required:

- 1572 (1) to cover liability in respect of the death, arising out of and in the course of his employment, of a person in the employment of a person insured by the policy or of bodily injury sustained by such a person arising out of and in the course of his employment<sup>10</sup>;
- 1573 (2) to cover liability in respect of damage to the vessel to which the policy relates<sup>11</sup>;
- 1574 (3) to cover liability in respect of goods carried on or in the vessel to which the policy relates, or any vessel drawn or propelled by such vessel<sup>12</sup>;
- 1575 (4) to cover any liability of a person in respect of damage to property in his custody or under his control<sup>13</sup>;
- 1576 (5) to cover any contractual liability<sup>14</sup>; or
- 1577 (6) to provide cover in respect of any one accident for a sum in excess of such sum as may for the time being be prescribed by the British Waterways Board<sup>15</sup> for these purposes<sup>16</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/791. Board's power to prescribe standards for vessels, etc used on its waterways.

791. Board's power to prescribe standards for vessels, etc used on its waterways.

The following provisions have effect with respect to standards<sup>1</sup> for the construction and equipment of vessels<sup>2</sup>.

The British Waterways Board<sup>3</sup> may<sup>4</sup> from time to time prescribe standards for the construction of vessels to be used on inland waterways<sup>5</sup>, and standards for any appliances, fittings or equipment in such vessels and for making provision with regard to the use and operation of such appliances, fittings and equipment with a view to securing the safety of passengers in such vessels and of other vessels or persons on the inland waterway, and the prevention of pollution, noise and interference with the operation of radio or television equipment<sup>6</sup>. Without prejudice to the generality of this provision<sup>7</sup>, standards prescribed<sup>8</sup> may make provision:

- 1578 (1) with regard to the construction, maintenance and operation of engines used for the propulsion of powered boats and to the storage and supply of fuel for such engines<sup>9</sup>;
- 1579 (2) requiring the provision of sufficient and effective fire extinguishers<sup>10</sup>;
- 1580 (3) regulating appliances for cooking, heating, lighting or refrigeration and the storage and supply of fuel for such appliances<sup>11</sup>.

Different standards may be prescribed<sup>12</sup> in relation to different categories of vessels, and in relation to different inland waterways or parts thereof<sup>13</sup>.

The board may from time to time revoke or amend any standards so prescribed<sup>14</sup>. Before prescribing, revoking or amending such standards the board must:

- 1581 (a) have regard to the requirements of the byelaws of any inland navigation undertakers whose waterways are contiguous with those of the board where those byelaws deal with the subject matter of the proposed standards<sup>15</sup>;
- 1582 (b) take such steps as appear to the board to be appropriate to bring the proposed standards to the attention of builders, owners and operators of vessels who are likely to be affected by them, and thereafter consider any representations made by any such persons<sup>16</sup> with regard to the proposed standards<sup>17</sup>;
- 1583 (c) consult the Inland Waterways Advisory Council<sup>18</sup>; and
- 1584 (d) consult such organisations as represent a substantial number of builders, owners and operators of vessels who may be affected by the proposed standards<sup>19</sup>.

Following the taking of the steps and the completion of the consultation so required, the board must:

- 1585 (i) give notice<sup>20</sup> to the Inland Waterways Advisory Council, and to such other organisations as were so consulted, of the date (the 'prescribed date'<sup>21</sup>) upon which the proposed standards are to be prescribed, revoked or amended<sup>22</sup>; and
- 1586 (ii) take such steps as appear to the board to be appropriate to bring the proposed standards and the prescribed date to the attention of the builders, owners and operators of vessels who are likely to be affected by the standards<sup>23</sup>, unless the board decides not to prescribe, revoke or amend the standards, in which case it must give notice of its decision to the Inland Waterways Advisory Council and to the organisations which were so consulted<sup>24</sup>.

The board may on application by any person or any organisation appearing to the board to represent a substantial number of owners or operators of such vessels as may be affected by any standards grant exemptions in writing<sup>28</sup> on such conditions (if any) as the board thinks fit, from the requirements of any standards in respect of any individual vessel, or any category of vessels, being a vessel or, as the case may be, a category of vessels which cannot reasonably be expected to be altered or adapted or otherwise made to comply therewith, having regard in particular to its or their traditional construction or historical character<sup>29</sup>.

Any dispute as to any refusal or withdrawal by the board of a relevant consent<sup>30</sup> on the grounds that the vessel does not comply, or has ceased to comply, with the standards applicable to it<sup>31</sup>, or any refusal by the board of an exemption for which such application is made or any condition subject to which an exemption is granted<sup>32</sup>, is to be determined by the standards appeal panel whose decision is final and binding on the parties<sup>33</sup>. The standards appeal panel for the purpose of determining such appeals consists of two persons appointed by the board and three other persons of whom one each is appointed by: (A) the Inland Waterways Advisory Council<sup>34</sup>; (B) in the case of any appeal relating to a narrow boat or other similar vessel normally used on canals, the Inland Waterways Association, and in the case of any other appeal, the Royal Yachting Association<sup>35</sup>; and (C) the British Marine Industries Federation<sup>36</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/792. Prohibition on obstruction by vessels on the board's waterways.

792. Prohibition on obstruction by vessels on the board's waterways.

No person<sup>1</sup> may moor or otherwise leave a vessel<sup>2</sup> on an inland waterway<sup>3</sup> so as to cause obstruction or hindrance to navigation or to the free passage of persons or vehicles over and along the towing path beside the inland waterway<sup>4</sup>.

Any person who without reasonable excuse contravenes this prohibition in such a way as to cause, or give rise to the risk of, injury to any person or damage to property is guilty of an offence<sup>5</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/793. Board's power to remove vessels in order to permit works.

793. Board's power to remove vessels in order to permit works.

When any vessel<sup>1</sup> is moored or lying in such a position as is likely to interfere with any dredging, repairs, maintenance works or any other works or operations of the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup>, or any works or operations proposed to be carried out by any other authority or body in pursuance of any statutory functions, the board may serve on the owner of such vessel a notice<sup>3</sup> requiring him within 28 days of the date upon which the notice is served to remove the vessel for such time as the board or such other authority or body may reasonably require for the completion of such works or operations<sup>4</sup>. Where any vessel is moored or allowed to remain in contravention of a notice so served the board may without further notice remove the vessel<sup>5</sup>. If the board so removes a vessel it must, if it was lawfully moored, provide a suitable temporary mooring for the vessel and replace the same as soon as practicable after the completion of the works or operations which required its removal<sup>6</sup>. Where any vessel is removed by the owner or the board pursuant to these provisions, the board must if the vessel was lawfully moored at the time of the removal make available a suitable temporary mooring for the vessel until the completion of the works or operations which required its removal<sup>7</sup>.

If the board in exercise of these powers<sup>8</sup> removes a vessel to a place not readily visible from the place from which it was removed it must serve on the owner: (1) as soon as practicable after the removal, a notice that it has exercised these powers stating the place to which the vessel has been removed<sup>9</sup>; and (2) as soon as practicable after the replacement of the vessel, a notice that the vessel has been replaced<sup>10</sup>. However, heads (1) and (2) do not have effect if the board after reasonable inquiry is unable to establish the name and address of the owner or for any other sufficient reason is unable to serve the notice<sup>11</sup>.

The removal or replacement by the board under these provisions<sup>12</sup> of any vessel which at the time of the removal was lawfully moored is at the cost and risk of the board, and if any person<sup>13</sup> suffers loss or damage in consequence of the exercise of these powers in relation to any hire pleasure boat<sup>14</sup>, he is entitled to recover compensation for the loss or damage from the board<sup>15</sup>. Any dispute as to a person's entitlement to such compensation or as to the amount of the compensation is to be determined by arbitration<sup>16</sup>.

794. Board's power to control moorings, etc.

As from such day as the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> may by resolution appoint, no person<sup>2</sup> may, in an inland waterway<sup>3</sup> specified in that resolution, construct or maintain any structure being a mooring, gangway, landing stage or other erection or installation for any vessel<sup>4</sup> unless there is in force in relation to that structure a certificate granted by the board<sup>5</sup>. An application for the grant or renewal of such a certificate must be made in writing<sup>6</sup> and must give the name and address of the person responsible for the structure, specify the type of structure and its precise location, and contain such other particulars as the board may reasonably require<sup>7</sup>. Upon receipt of an application made in accordance with these requirements, the board must grant (or as the case may be, renew) such a certificate for such period not being less than five years as it may determine<sup>8</sup>. It is a condition of every certificate so granted that the structure is maintained in good repair and not allowed to become unsafe or an obstruction or danger to navigation<sup>9</sup>.

The board may at any time, upon giving written notice<sup>10</sup>, refuse to grant or renew a certificate (or, as the case may be, revoke a certificate) if it is satisfied that the structure which is the subject of the application or certificate, or any part of it, is not in good repair, or is or will become unsafe or an obstruction or danger to navigation<sup>11</sup>. Any dispute between the board and any applicant for (or person named in) a certificate as responsible for the structure respecting a failure or refusal by the board to grant or renew a certificate or respecting a decision by the board to revoke a certificate must be determined by arbitration<sup>12</sup>. Pending the determination of any such reference to arbitration in relation to an existing structure, there is deemed to be a certificate in force in relation to that structure and any failure or refusal by the board to grant or renew a certificate in relation to the structure or a revocation of the certificate in relation to a structure is ignored<sup>13</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions<sup>14</sup> applies to: (1) any item of equipment designed to secure or to afford access to or from a vessel which when not in use is normally carried on board the vessel<sup>15</sup>; (2) any mooring, erection or installation no part of which is situated on, in, under or over the waters of any inland waterway<sup>16</sup>; (3) any structure or apparatus belonging to or required by the Environment Agency<sup>17</sup>. Also, nothing in these provisions or in any certificate thereunder:

- 1587 (a) relieves any person of the obligation under the Water Resources Act 1991<sup>18</sup> to obtain the consent of the Environment Agency to the erection of any structure in, over or under a watercourse which is designated as a main river<sup>19</sup>;
- 1588 (b) entitles a person to construct or maintain any mooring, gangway, landing stage or other erection or installation for any vessel on land<sup>20</sup> in respect of which he does not hold such rights as are necessary to enable him to exercise the powers of the certificate<sup>21</sup>;
- 1589 (c) requires the board to grant any right or interest in any land<sup>22</sup>; or
- 1590 (d) prejudices the right of the board to require any payment for any right or interest granted by it in any land to enable the powers to be exercised<sup>23</sup>.

The board may by notice require a person who contravenes these provisions<sup>24</sup>: (i) to remove or abate within a reasonable time specified in the notice any works to which the contravention relates and to restore the site to its former condition<sup>25</sup>; or (ii) in the case of any contravention of the condition of every certificate so granted that the structure is maintained in good repair<sup>26</sup>, to repair or alter the structure so as to avoid such contravention<sup>27</sup>. If the person to whom the notice is given fails to comply with the notice, the board may carry out the work required by the notice and recover the cost of so doing from that person<sup>28</sup>.

INLAND WATERWAYS/(4) REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF INLAND WATERWAYS/(i) Waterways of the British Waterways Board/795. Board's power to regulate private rights of mooring.

795. Board's power to regulate private rights of mooring.

Conditions attached to a certificate granted under the power conferred on the British Waterways Board<sup>1</sup> to control moorings<sup>2</sup> may regulate the exercise of private rights of mooring<sup>3</sup> on any inland waterway<sup>4</sup> but, in exercising these powers, the board must have due regard to the desirability of refraining from interference with private rights and established mooring practices and must not prevent the mooring of any vessel<sup>5</sup> which could lawfully have been moored pursuant to any such private right but for the exercise of such powers<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

2 Ie the power under the British Waterways Act 1995 s 21: see PARA 794.

3 'Private rights of mooring' include any rights conferred by the board or (in England or Wales) enjoyed as an incident of an interest in land: British Waterways Act 1995 s 20(3). ## (ii) Waterways of Other Navigation Authorities

796. Powers of regulation and management available to other navigation authorities.

All navigation authorities have the power to make waterways byelaws<sup>1</sup>. On many rivers and inland waterways pleasure boats must be registered with or licensed by the appropriate navigation authority or local authority<sup>2</sup>. Subject to the powers conferred upon other authorities, local authorities have a general power to license pleasure boats and vessels to be let for hire or to be used for carrying passengers for reward and they have powers to make byelaws for a range of specified purposes regulating such boats and vessels<sup>3</sup>. The Environment Agency<sup>4</sup> may make byelaws to the same effect<sup>5</sup>; and the Broads Authority<sup>6</sup> has power to make byelaws for the management of the navigation area for which it is responsible and the promotion of its use for purposes of recreation<sup>7</sup>.

797. Power to levy tolls.

Where any navigable waters in England and Wales are not subject to the control of any navigation authority, harbour authority or conservancy authority, the Environment Agency<sup>1</sup> may apply to the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> for an order imposing tolls in respect of the navigation of vessels in those waters<sup>3</sup>. In the case of waters within an internal drainage district which do not form part of a main river, these powers are exercisable by the drainage board for that district concurrently with the Agency<sup>4</sup>.

A. POWERS UNDER SPECIAL ACT

799. Authorisation under special Act.

Until the coming into force of the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>1</sup>, promoters obtained the authority to construct purpose-built canals (and the necessary compulsory acquisition of land for that purpose) by special Acts made in each case under the private Bill procedure<sup>2</sup>.

The law as to the exercise of statutory powers by canal undertakers has already been covered in this title<sup>3</sup>.

1 The Transport and Works Act 1992 received Royal Assent on 16 March 1992 and came into force in accordance with various commencement orders made under s 70. A regime consisting of ministerial orders made under that Act has replaced, for most purposes, the former authorisation procedure described in the text and note 2: see PARA 801 et seq.

B. ORDERS AUTHORISING WORKS

800. Authorisation of inland waterways works by ministerial order.

The effect of the Transport and Works Act 1992 is that inland waterways projects (as well as other similar types of project)<sup>1</sup> can now be authorised by ministerial orders<sup>2</sup> so that, except in highly exceptional circumstances, they cannot now be made the subject of private Bills<sup>3</sup>. Ministerial orders may only be made on an application made in accordance with statutory rules<sup>4</sup>. Such rules<sup>5</sup> include provision for the environmental impact assessment of proposed projects so as to comply with the requirements of the Environmental Impact Directive<sup>6</sup>, and no order may be made without the consideration of such assessment<sup>7</sup>.

2    See the Transport and Works Act 1992 ss 3, 4; and PARA 801 et seq.

3    The preamble to every private Bill has to maintain the averment that the purposes of the Act cannot be effected without the authority of Parliament, and this could not be maintained for the purposes of projects to which the ministerial orders regime attaches once that regime had been established: see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 846.

A. TYPES OF ORDER AND THEIR SCOPE

801. Orders authorising works as to inland waterways.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> may make an order<sup>3</sup> relating to, or to matters ancillary to: (1) the construction or operation of an inland waterway<sup>4</sup> in England and Wales<sup>5</sup>; (2) the carrying out of works which interfere with rights of navigation in waters within or adjacent to England and Wales, up to the seaward limits of the territorial sea<sup>6</sup> and are of a description prescribed by order made for this purpose<sup>7</sup>.

A body which has power to promote or power to oppose Bills in Parliament also has power to apply for, or as the case may be power to object to, such orders<sup>8</sup>. Where the power of a body to promote or to oppose Bills is subject to any condition, then with certain exceptions<sup>9</sup>, the corresponding power conferred on the body by this provision<sup>10</sup> is subject to the like condition<sup>11</sup>.

If the appropriate authority<sup>12</sup> agrees, an interest which subsists in land in which there is a Crown or Duchy interest<sup>13</sup>, but is not itself a Crown or Duchy interest, may be acquired compulsorily by virtue of an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>14</sup>, and any provision of the Transport and Works Act 1992 or of such an order (other than a provision by virtue of which an interest in land is compulsorily acquired) may apply in relation to land in which there is a Crown or Duchy interest<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The order-making function of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, was transferred to the National Assembly for Wales except where any order made thereunder would have effect both in Wales and England; and, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, the order-making function of the Secretary of State under s 3 was exercisable only with the agreement of the Assembly: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, arts 2, 5(1), Schs 1, 2. Such functions of the National Assembly for Wales are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

3 The power to make orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 3(3). For the matters as to which provision may be made by an order under s 3 see PARA 802; and as to the validity of orders so made see PARA 813. As to the procedure for making such orders see PARA 804 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law no such order of general application had been made. Orders of local effect are not recorded in this work.

The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq. On making an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3 which includes provision for development, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers may direct that planning permission for that development is deemed to be granted, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the direction: see the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 90(2A) (added by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 16(1)); and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 238. On making any such order which includes any provision that would involve the presence of a hazardous substance in circumstances requiring hazardous substances consent, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers may direct that hazardous substances consent is deemed to be granted, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the direction: see the Planning (Hazardous Substances) Act 1990 s 12(2A) (added by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 18); and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol

46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1254. Land whose compulsory acquisition is authorised by an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 (or which falls within the limits of deviation within which powers of compulsory acquisition conferred by such an order are exercisable) is blighted land for the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990: see s 149(1), Sch 13 para 23 (added by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 16(2)); and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(2) (Reissue) PARA 986.

4 'Inland waterway' includes both natural and artificial waterways, and waterways within parts of the sea that are in Great Britain, but not any waterway managed or maintained by a person who is a harbour authority within the meaning of the Harbours Act 1964 (see PORTS AND HARBOURS vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 619) in relation to the waterway: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 67. The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers must not make an order under s 3 if in his or their opinion the primary object of the order could be achieved by means of an order under the Harbours Act 1964: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3(2). 5 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3(1)(a).

6 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3(1)(b)(i). As to the territorial sea see PARA 31.

7 See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3(1)(b)(ii). The Secretary of State may by order prescribe descriptions of works for the purposes of s 3(1)(b): s 4(1). The power to make such orders is exercisable by statutory instrument; but no order must be made unless a draft of it has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament: s 4(2). The order-making power under s 4 is not transferred to the Welsh Ministers: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. As to the laying of documents before Parliament see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 941.

In exercise of these powers, the Secretary of State has, for the purposes of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3(1)(b)(ii), prescribed works relating to a barrage, bridge, cable, fountain, land reclamation, navigational aid, observation structure, offshore installation, pier, pipeline, tunnel and utilities structure: see the Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 2 (amended by SI 1997/2906). 'Barrage' includes a dam, weir, barrier, embankment, breakwater and any other structure for impounding, or diverting or controlling the flow of, water; 'bridge' includes a viaduct, an aqueduct and a gantry and the abutments of and approaches to a bridge; and 'cable' means a telegraph, telephone or electric power cable (whether submerged or airborne), an aerial cableway or a cable or chain used to guide a ferry: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1). 'Fountain' means a structure or device (whether fixed or floating) used, or intended to be used, to project jets of water from static or manoeuvrable nozzles: art 3(1) (definition added by SI 1997/2906). 'Land reclamation' means works for restoring or converting to dry land or to a polder areas of land which are continuously or intermittently covered by water and also means other works in, on or over such land; and 'navigational aid' means any structure or device (whether fixed or floating) providing a light, sound or other signal or other aid for the safety of navigation in or over water or in the air: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1). 'Observation structure' means a structure (whether fixed or floating) with a platform or gallery for viewing events, objects or the surrounding region: art 3(1) (definition added by SI 1997/2906). 'Offshore installation' means an installation or device (whether fixed or floating) for the exploitation, or exploration with a view to exploitation, of the natural resources of any waters, the bed or subsoil thereof or the air-space thereover and also means any other installation or device performing, or intended to perform, or which has performed, any activity of a kind specified in the Offshore Installations and Pipeline Works (Management and Administration) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/738 (see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 53 (2009) PARA 733) in so far as the activity relates to such bed or subsoil: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2). 'Pier' includes a jetty, quay, wharf, mole, staging, slipway and any similar structure, device or facility (whether fixed or floating), together with any building thereon, used for the mooring, landing, launching or beaching of vessels or for commercial, residential or leisure purposes: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1) (definition amended by SI 1997/2906). 'Pipeline' means a pipe or system of pipes for the conveyance of any thing and also means a sewer, drain, duct and any apparatus or works associated with such a pipe or system of a kind specified in the Petroleum Act 1998 (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1741) and for the purposes of this definition references to 'the pipe or system' are to be construed accordingly: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2). 'Tunnel' means a tunnel for the passage of vehicles, persons on foot or animals and includes a submerged tube used for any of those purposes, the approaches to a tunnel and works for the operation or protection of a tunnel; and 'utilities structure' means a structure or plant, whether attached to dry land or otherwise and whether fixed or floating, used, or intended to be used, or which has been used, for a transport, communications, electricity generation, water extraction (including desalination), waste disposal or similar purpose: Transport and Works (Descriptions of Works Interfering with Navigation) Order 1992, SI 1992/3230, art 3(1). References to 'works' are to be construed as including the construction, emplacement, removal, demolition, alteration or modification of the works in question, or of any part thereof, and any works ancillary thereto: art 3(2).

8 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 20(1).

9 The powers conferred by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 20(1) (see the text to note 8) on the British Waterways Board are exercisable without the consent of the Secretary of State: s 20(3) (amended by the Transport Act 2000 s 274, Sch 31 Pt IV; SI 2003/1615). As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq. As to the promotion and opposition of Bills in Parliament by the British Waterways Board see PARA 747.

11 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 20(2) (amended by the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 168(1), (2)).

12 'Appropriate authority' means: (1) in the case of land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown and forming part of the Crown Estate, the Crown Estate Commissioners; (2) in the case of other land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown, the government department having the management of the land; (3) in the case of land belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Chancellor of the Duchy; (4) in the case of land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, such person as the Duke of Cornwall, or the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall, appoints; (5) in the case of land belonging to a government department or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department, that department: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 25(3). If any question arises as to what authority is the appropriate authority in relation to any land, that question must be referred to the Treasury, whose decision is final: s 25(4). The functions of a minister of the Crown under s 25, except under s 25(4), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, are transferred to the Welsh Ministers: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1; Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 14 note 21. As to the Crown Estate Commissioners see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 280 et seq. As to the Duchy of Lancaster see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 300 et seq. As to the Duchy of Cornwall see CROWN PROPERTY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 318 et seq. As to the meaning of 'Treasury' see PARA 108 note 6.

13 'Crown or Duchy interest' means an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster, or belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, or belonging to a government department, or held in trust for Her Majesty for the purposes of a government department: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 25(2).

INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(ii) Orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992/A. TYPES OF ORDER AND THEIR SCOPE/802. Subject matter of orders as to inland waterways.

802. Subject matter of orders as to inland waterways.

The matters as to which provision may be made by an order as to inland waterways<sup>1</sup> include the following<sup>2</sup>:

- 1591 (1) the construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, demolition and removal of railways<sup>3</sup>, tramways, trolley vehicle systems<sup>4</sup> and other transport systems within the meaning of the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>5</sup>, waterways, roads, watercourses, buildings and other structures<sup>6</sup>;
- 1592 (2) the carrying out of any other civil engineering or other works<sup>7</sup>;
- 1593 (3) the acquisition of land<sup>8</sup>, whether compulsorily or by agreement<sup>9</sup>;
- 1594 (4) the creation and extinguishment of rights over land<sup>10</sup> (including rights of navigation over water), whether compulsorily or by agreement<sup>11</sup>;
- 1595 (5) the abrogation and modification of agreements relating to land<sup>12</sup>;
- 1596 (6) the conferring on persons<sup>13</sup> providing transport services of rights to use systems belonging to others<sup>14</sup>;
- 1597 (7) the protection of the property or interests of any person<sup>15</sup>;
- 1598 (8) the imposition and exclusion of obligations or of liability in respect of any acts or omissions<sup>16</sup>;
- 1599 (9) the making of agreements to secure the provision of police services<sup>17</sup>;
- 1600 (10) the carrying out of surveys and the taking of soil samples<sup>18</sup>;
- 1601 (11) the payment of compensation<sup>19</sup>;
- 1602 (12) the charging of tolls, fares (including penalty fares) and other charges, and the creation of summary offences in connection with non-payment<sup>20</sup>;
- 1603 (13) the making of byelaws by any person and their enforcement, including the creation of summary offences<sup>21</sup>;
- 1604 (14) the payment of rates<sup>22</sup>;
- 1605 (15) the transfer, leasing, discontinuance and revival of undertakings<sup>23</sup>;
- 1606 (16) the submission of disputes to arbitration<sup>24</sup>;
- 1607 (17) the imposition of requirements to obtain the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>25</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>26</sup>.

Such an order may make provision in relation to more than one scheme, system or mode of transport<sup>27</sup>. It may also apply, modify or exclude any statutory provision<sup>28</sup> which relates to any matter as to which such an order could be made<sup>29</sup>; and make such amendments, repeals and revocations of statutory provisions of local application as appear to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to be necessary or expedient in consequence of any provision of the order or otherwise in connection with the order<sup>30</sup>.

The provisions that may be made by such an order include:

- 1608 (a) any provision that appears to the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers to be necessary or expedient for giving full effect to: (i) any other provision of the order<sup>31</sup>; (ii) any provision of an earlier order<sup>32</sup>; or (iii) any provision which is contained in an Act of Parliament passed before 1 January 1993<sup>33</sup>, or in an instrument made under an Act of Parliament before that time, and which is of a kind which could be included in an order under these provisions<sup>34</sup>; and 1609 (b) such supplemental and transitional provisions as appear to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to be necessary or expedient in connection with the order<sup>35</sup>.

An order may not extinguish any public right of way over land unless the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers is satisfied that an alternative right of way has been or will be provided<sup>36</sup>, or that the provision of an alternative right of way is not required<sup>37</sup>.

Where an order is required under the Transport Act 1968 in relation to the classification of the waterways of the British Waterways Board<sup>38</sup>, or the maintenance of those waterways<sup>39</sup>, or in relation to the maintenance and use of other waterways<sup>40</sup>, so as to give effect to any proposal, no provision must be included in an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>41</sup> which would either remove that requirement or alter the requirements of the Transport Act 1968<sup>42</sup> relating to the orders so required under that Act<sup>43</sup>.

1    le an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 5 and Sch 1 also apply to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

2    See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 5(1). This provision is expressed to be without prejudice to the generality of s 3 (see PARA 801): see s 5(1). The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 5 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq.

3    'Railway' means a system of transport employing parallel rails which provide support and guidance for vehicles carried on flanged wheels, and form a track which either is of a gauge of at least 350 millimetres or crosses a carriageway (whether or not on the same level), but does not include a tramway: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 67(1). 'Vehicle' includes mobile traction unit: s 67(1). 'Tramway' means a system of transport used wholly or mainly for the carriage of passengers and employing parallel rails which provide support and guidance for vehicles carried on flanged wheels, and are laid wholly or mainly along a street or in any other place to which the public has access (including a place to which the public has access only on making a payment): s 67(1). 'Street' means a street within the meaning of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 48 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 9), together with land on the verge of a street or between two carriageways: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 67(1). 'Carriageway' has the same meaning as in the Highways Act 1980 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 64): Transport and Works Act 1992 s 67(1).

4    'Trolley vehicle system' means a system of transport by vehicles constructed or adapted for use on roads without rails under electric power transmitted to them by overhead wires (whether or not there is in addition a source of power on board the vehicles): Transport and Works Act 1992 s 67(1).

5    le other transport systems within the meaning of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 1(1) (railways etc): see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

803. Orders made by the Secretary of State without application.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> may, without any application being made to them<sup>3</sup>: (1) make an order as to inland waterways<sup>4</sup> making any provision which appears to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to be necessary or expedient, in the interests of safety, for the purpose of suspending or discontinuing any operations<sup>5</sup>, or in consequence of the abandonment or neglect of any works<sup>6</sup>; or (2) make an order as to inland waterways<sup>7</sup> repealing or revoking provisions which appear to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers to be spent<sup>8</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers proposes to make an order by virtue of these provisions, he or they must: (a) prepare a draft of the order<sup>9</sup>; (b) publish a notice of the intention to make the order, which notice must include such particulars as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>, in the London Gazette and in a local newspaper circulating in the area (or each of the areas) in which the proposals contained in the draft order are intended to have effect<sup>11</sup>, and (c) give such further notices of the proposal as may be prescribed<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The powers of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 7, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. However, there was excepted from such transfer the rule-making powers under s 7(4) (see note 10) with the proviso that such powers were exercisable only with the agreement of the Assembly: see arts 2, 5(1), Schs 1, 2. These functions of the National Assembly for Wales are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

3 As to applications for orders see PARA 804. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 7 also applies to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 7 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq.

4 I.e. an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. An order under s 7(1)(b) may include provision for the recovery by the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers of the costs of making the order and of carrying its provisions into effect: s 7(2). See further, in relation to orders made under s 7, s 9 (proposals of national significance: see PARA 812); s 10 (objections: see PARA 806); s 11 (inquiries and hearings: see PARA 807); s 13 (making or refusal of orders: see PARA 809); s 14 (publicity for making or refusal of orders: see PARA 809); and s 15 (assimilation of procedures): see PARA 811).

10 The power to make provision by rules under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6 (see PARA 804) in relation to applications includes power to make such corresponding provision as the Secretary of State (see note 2) considers appropriate in relation to proposals to make orders by virtue of s 7; and 'prescribed' means prescribed by rules under s 6: s 7(4). As to the provision made see the Transport and Works (Applications and Objections Procedure) (England and Wales) Rules 2006, SI 2006/1466, rr 20, 28, Sch 7.

B. PROCEDURE FOR MAKING ORDERS

804. Applications for orders.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may not make an order as to inland waterways<sup>2</sup> except on an application made to him in accordance with rules made by him<sup>3</sup>. However, in certain cases an order may be made without such application having been made<sup>4</sup>.

The Secretary of State may make rules as to: (1) the form of such an application<sup>5</sup>; (2) the documents and information that must be submitted with it<sup>6</sup>; (3) the giving and publication of notices of an application<sup>7</sup>; and (4) any other steps that must be taken before an application is made or in connection with the making of an application<sup>8</sup>. This power to make rules includes power: (a) to make provision for or in connection with requiring the Secretary of State in such cases or circumstances as may be prescribed in the rules to give to a person<sup>9</sup> who proposes to make an application an opinion on the information, if any, to be supplied in connection with that application<sup>10</sup>; and (b) to make rules as to the publicity to be given to any environmental information provided in relation to such an application<sup>11</sup>.

Any provision made by the rules as to the consultation that must be carried out before an application is made, or as to the provision of information by a relevant authority<sup>12</sup> to a person for the purposes of an application which the person proposes to make, may include provision requiring compliance with general or special directions given by the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup>. The rules may make different provision for different cases, and may include provision authorising the Secretary of State: (i) to dispense with compliance with rules that would otherwise apply<sup>14</sup>; or (ii) to require compliance with rules that would not otherwise apply, in any case where he considers it appropriate to do so<sup>15</sup>. The rules may also provide for fees of such amounts as may be determined by or in accordance with the rules to be payable to the Secretary of State on the making of applications<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. The rule-making powers conferred on the Secretary of State by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(2)-(6) (see note 3 and the text to notes 5-16) were excepted from the functions under the Transport and Works Act 1992, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. However, those powers are exercisable by the Secretary of State only with the agreement of the Welsh Ministers: see art 5(1), Sch 2; Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

2 An order made under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6 also applies to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

3 See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(1). The power to make rules under s 6 is exercisable by statutory instrument, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 6(6). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516. As to the rules made see the Transport and Works (Applications and Objections Procedure) (England and Wales) Rules 2006, SI 2006/1466. The rules make provision as to: (1) preliminary procedure and consultation: see rr 5, 8; (2) the preparation of environmental statements: see rr 6, 7; (3) the application for the order including the deposit of a copy and publicity for the application: see rr 9-14, Schs 1-3, 5, 6; and (4) information and notices including notice to other states likely to be affected: see rr 15-17. The rules also provide for the waiving of certain requirements: see r 18; fees: see r 19; for the Secretary of State to set later time limits: see r 26; for objections and representations to be made and heard: see rr 21-25; and specific provision as to applications relating solely to Wales: see r 28.

As to the powers in relation to applications under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6, see further s 8 (model clauses: see PARA 805); s 9 (proposals which are of national significance: see PARA 812); s 10 (objections to an application: see PARA 806); s 11 (inquiries and hearings: see PARA 807); s 13 (making or refusal of orders: see PARA 809); s 14 (notice of determination to applicants: see PARA 809); and s 15 (assimilation of procedures: see PARA 811). The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq.

4 The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(1) is expressed to be subject to s 7 (see PARA 803): see s 6(1).

5 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(2)(a).

6 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(2)(b).

7 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(2)(c).

8 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(2)(d). The power conferred on the Secretary of State by s 6(2) to make rules includes power to make rules for a case where an application has been made under s 6 and another member state is affected by the project in question, as to:

50 (1) the provision by the Secretary of State to the member state (or to authorities in, or the public of, the member state) of documents and information relating to the application (s 6A(1)(a) (s 6A added by SI 1998/2226));

51 (2) consultation by the Secretary of State with the member state in connection with the application (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6A(1)(b) (as so added)); or

52 (3) notification by the Secretary of State to the member state of the decision, or of matters relating to the decision, on the application (s 6A(1)(c) (as so added)).

For these purposes, the cases where another member state is affected by the project in question are those cases where it appears to the Secretary of State that the project would be likely to have significant effects on the environment in another member state or where that other member state is likely to be significantly affected by the project and requests information relating to the application: s 6A(2) (as so added). As to the meaning of 'member state' see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1; European Communities Act 1972 s 1(2), Sch 1 Pt II. 'Member state' in this context includes a state which is a contracting party to the Agreement on the European Economic Area (Oporto, 2 May 1992; EC 7 (1992); Cm 2183) as adjusted by the Protocol (Brussels, 17 March 1993; EC 2 (1993); Cm 2183): see the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6A(3) (s 6A as so added; s 6A(3) added by SI 2000/3199). As to the rules made see further the Transport and Works (Applications and Objections Procedure) (England and Wales) Rules 2006, SI 2006/1466, r 16.

12 'Relevant authority' means any authority in relation to which EC Council Directive 85/337 (OJ L175, 5.7.85, p 40) art 5(4) (as amended by EC Council Directive 97/11 (OJ L73, 14.03.1997, p 5) (authorities holding relevant information to make it available to the developer)) applies, and includes: Natural England, the Countryside Council for Wales, and a local planning authority within the meaning of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt I (ss 1-9) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 28); Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6(7) (added by SI 1998/2226; amended by the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 s 105, Sch 11 Pt 1 para 136, Sch 12; and by virtue of SI 2002/794). ### 805. Model clauses.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may by order<sup>2</sup> prescribe model provisions<sup>3</sup> for incorporation in any draft orders which, in accordance with rules made under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>4</sup>, may be required to be submitted with applications<sup>5</sup> for orders as to inland waterways<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. The order-making powers conferred on the Secretary of State by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 8 were excepted from the functions under the Transport and Works Act 1992, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. However, those powers are exercisable by the Secretary of State only with the agreement of the Welsh Ministers: see art 5(1), Sch 2; Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

2 The power to make such orders is exercisable by statutory instrument: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 8(4). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made in relation to orders under s 3 (inland waterways: see PARA 801).

The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 8 also applies to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

3 The prescribing of a model provision under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 8 does not of itself make it mandatory for a provision in the terms of the model to be incorporated in a draft order or in any order eventually made under s 3 (see PARA 801): see s 8(3).

4 Ie rules made under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6: see PARA 804.

5 Ie applications under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6: see PARA 804.

6 See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 8(1). Different provisions may be prescribed under s 8 for different cases: s 8(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(ii) Orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992/B. PROCEDURE FOR MAKING ORDERS/806. Objections.

806. Objections.

- 1610 (1) the making of objections to an application<sup>3</sup> for an order as to inland waterways or to a proposal to make such an order<sup>4</sup> otherwise than by application<sup>5</sup>;
- 1611 (2) the information to be comprised within or submitted with an objection<sup>6</sup>;
- 1612 (3) the submission by the person making the application of written<sup>7</sup> representations or information in relation to objections<sup>8</sup>;
- 1613 (4) the submission of further written representations or information<sup>9</sup>;
- 1614 (5) such other matters relating to the consideration of objections as appear to the Secretary of State to be appropriate<sup>10</sup>.

The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers<sup>11</sup> may not make a determination<sup>12</sup> in respect of an order without first taking into consideration the grounds of any objection in respect of which such rules have been complied with<sup>13</sup>. However, if an objection is withdrawn or appears to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to be frivolous or trivial<sup>14</sup>, or to relate to matters which fall to be determined by a tribunal concerned with the assessment of compensation<sup>15</sup>, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may make such a determination without further consideration of the objection<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. The functions of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10, other than the rule-making powers conferred on the Secretary of State thereunder, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. The functions so transferred are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. The rule-making powers under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10 are exercisable by the Secretary of State only with the agreement of the Welsh Ministers: see art 5(1), Sch 2; Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2.

2 The power to make rules under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10 is exercisable by statutory instrument, subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 10(6). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516. Rules under s 10 may make different provision for different cases, and may include provision authorising the Secretary of State or, as appropriate the Welsh Ministers to dispense with compliance with rules that would otherwise apply (s 10(5)(a)), or to require compliance with rules that would not otherwise apply, in any case where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers considers it appropriate to do so (s 10(5)(b)). As to the rules made see the Transport and Works (Applications and Objections Procedure) (England and Wales) Rules 2006, SI 2006/1466; and PARA 804. In relation to objections and representations, see especially rr 21-25.

3 Ie an application under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6: see PARA 804.

4 Ie by virtue of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 7: see PARA 803.

5 See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10(1)(a). Where a person makes an objection in accordance with rules made under s 10 to an application under s 6 (see PARA 804), the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers must send to that person a copy of any notice published pursuant to s 9(2): see s 9(3); and PARA 812. Further, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may give to that person, and to a person who makes an objection to a proposal to make an order by virtue of s 7 (see PARA 803), an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by an appointed person at a public local inquiry held under s 11: see s 11(2); and PARA 807. - 11 See note 1.
- 12 Ie a determination under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 13(1): see PARA 809.
- 13 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10(2). Section 10(2) does not apply where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers causes an inquiry to be held under s 11(1) (see PARA 807) or causes an objection to be dealt with in accordance with s 11(2) (see PARA 807), but the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must not make a determination under s 13(1) (see PARA 809) without first taking into consideration the report of the person holding the inquiry or, as the case may be, of the person appointed under s 11(2): s 10(4). The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq.

807. Inquiries and hearings.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> may cause a public local inquiry<sup>3</sup> to be held for the purposes of an application for an order as to inland waterways<sup>4</sup>, or a proposal by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to make such an order<sup>5</sup> otherwise than on application<sup>6</sup>. The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may give to a person<sup>7</sup> who makes an objection<sup>8</sup> an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers for the purpose<sup>9</sup>.

Where an objection is made by a specified person<sup>10</sup> who informs the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers in writing<sup>11</sup> that he wishes the objection to be referred to an inquiry or to be given an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed for that purpose<sup>12</sup>, then, unless certain exceptions apply<sup>13</sup>, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must either cause an inquiry to be held or, if the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers so determines, give the objector an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed<sup>14</sup> for that purpose<sup>15</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

3 The provisions of the Local Government Act 1972 s 250(2)-(5) (attendance and evidence at, and costs of, inquiries: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 105) apply to an inquiry held under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(1): s 11(5). However: (1) in its application by virtue of s 11(5), the Local Government Act 1972 s 250(4) has effect with the omission of the words 'and any amount' onwards (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(5)(a)); and (2) the power to make an order as to costs under the Local Government Act 1972 s 250(5) as applied by the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(5) is exercisable not only where the inquiry takes place but also where arrangements are made for it but it does not take place (s 11(5)(b)).

4 Ie an application under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6: see PARA 804.

5 Ie by virtue of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 7: see PARA 803.

6 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(1).

7 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

8 Ie in accordance with rules made under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10: see PARA 806.

9 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(2). The provisions of the Local Government Act 1972 s 250(4), (5) (costs: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 105) apply in relation to proceedings under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(2) as they apply in relation to an inquiry under s 11(1) (see note 3): s 11(6).

10 The specified persons are: (1) any local authority for an area in which any works authorised by the proposed order are to be carried out (s 11(3), (4)(a)); and (2) where the proposals include the compulsory acquisition of land, any person who, if the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 Pt II (ss 10-15) (purchases by local and other authorities: see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 557 et seq) applied to the acquisition, would be entitled to a notice under s 12 (notice to owners, lessees and occupiers: see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 560) (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(3), (4)(b)). For these purposes, 'local authority' means a county council, a district council, a London borough council, the Common Council of the City of London, the Council of the Isles of Scilly, a county borough council, and a Passenger Transport Executive: s 11(4) (amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 22(1), Sch 7 para 34(1)). As to local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to the London boroughs and their councils see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 35 et seq. As to the Common Council of the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 51-55. As to passenger transport areas, Authorities and Executives generally see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 63.

11 As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 22 note 1.

12 Ie appointed in accordance with the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(2): see the text to notes 7-9.

13 Ie unless the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10(3) applies: see PARA 806.

14 Ie in accordance with the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(2): see the text to notes 7-9.

15 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(3). After making a determination under s 13(1), the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must give notice of that determination to every person who made an objection which was referred to an inquiry or hearing in accordance with s 11(3): see s 14(1); and PARA 809.

16 See the Transport and Works (Inquiries Procedure) Rules 2004, SI 2004/2018. The rules cover the preliminary action to be taken by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers (see r 4) and by official bodies (see r 5), the procedure where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers causes a pre-inquiry meeting to be held (see rr 6, 8, 11, 12), the service of documents (see rr 7, 24), the arrangement of a timetable for the inquiry (see rr 9, 23), the appointment of an assessor (see r 10), the date and notification of an inquiry (see r 13), appearances at an inquiry (see r 14), representation of official bodies (see r 15), proofs of evidence (see r 16), the procedure to be followed (see rr 17, 18, 20), site inspections (see r 19), notification of decisions (see r 21) and the procedure following the quashing of a decision (see r 22). In relation to any inquiry held by the Welsh Ministers the procedures of which are prescribed by these rules, and especially regarding any references to government policy and government departments therein, see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 2000, SI 2000/253, art 6, Sch 4.

808. Special parliamentary procedure.

An order as to inland waterways<sup>1</sup> authorising a compulsory purchase is subject to special parliamentary procedure<sup>2</sup> to the same extent as it would be by virtue of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981<sup>3</sup> if the purchase were authorised by an order<sup>4</sup> under that Act<sup>5</sup>. In relation to such an order which is subject to special parliamentary procedure, there are certain statutory modifications<sup>6</sup>.

1    le an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12 also applies to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

2    As to special parliamentary procedure see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 912 et seq.

3    le by virtue of the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 s 18 or Sch 3 para 5 (National Trust land: see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 603 et seq) or s 19 or Sch 3 para 6 (commons, open spaces etc: see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 604 et seq): see the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12(1). Orders made by the Welsh Ministers are subject to special parliamentary procedure to such extent as is provided for by the references under s 12, to the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 s 18 and Sch 3 para 5: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1; Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

4    le an order under the Acquisition of Land Act 1981 s 2(1) (order authorising a compulsory purchase): see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 557.

5    Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12(1).

6    See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12(3). In relation to an order which is subject to special parliamentary procedure: (1) s 13(5) (see PARA 809) does not apply (s 12(3)(a)); (2) s 22 (see PARA 813) does not apply if the order is confirmed by Act of Parliament under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 s 6 (see PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARAS 925-926) (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12(3)(b)); and (3) in any other case, s 22(1) (see PARA 813) has effect as if for the reference to the day on which the notice required by s 14(1)(b) is published there were substituted a reference to the day on which the order comes into operation under the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act 1945 (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 12(3)(c)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(ii) Orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992/B. PROCEDURE FOR MAKING ORDERS/809. Making or refusing orders.

809. Making or refusing orders.

Where an application has been made to the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> for an order as to inland waterways<sup>3</sup>, or where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers propose to make an order otherwise than on application<sup>4</sup>, and (in either case) the relevant requirements of the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>5</sup> in relation to any objections have been satisfied, the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>6</sup> may determine<sup>7</sup>:

- 1615 (1) to make an order<sup>8</sup> which gives effect to the proposals concerned without modifications<sup>9</sup>;
- 1616 (2) to make an order which gives effect to those proposals with modifications<sup>10</sup>;
- or
- 1617 (3) not to make an order<sup>11</sup>.

The power of the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to make a determination includes power to make a determination in respect of some only of the proposals concerned, while making a separate determination in respect of, or deferring consideration of, others<sup>12</sup>. Where an application for an order has been<sup>13</sup> made to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers and he or they consider that any of the objects of the order applied for could be achieved by other means, he or they may on that ground determine not to make the order<sup>14</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers propose to make an order which gives effect to the proposals concerned with modifications which will in the opinion of the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers make a substantial change in the proposals, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers: (a) must notify any person<sup>15</sup> who appears to them to be likely to be affected by the modifications<sup>16</sup>; (b) must give that person an opportunity of making representations about the modifications within such period as may be specified in the notice<sup>17</sup>; and (c) must before making the order consider any representations duly made<sup>18</sup>.

As soon as practicable after making a determination, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers must give notice of the determination to the person (if any) who applied for the order and to every person who made an objection which was referred<sup>19</sup> to an inquiry or hearing<sup>20</sup>, and publish a notice of the determination in the London Gazette<sup>21</sup>. The notice<sup>22</sup> of a determination to make an order must<sup>23</sup> give such particulars of the terms of the order as the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers consider appropriate, and in particular must state the name and address of the person who applied for the order<sup>24</sup>.

Where a determination relates to relevant applications or proposals<sup>25</sup> the notices<sup>26</sup> must state that, before the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers made the determination<sup>27</sup>: (i) he or they considered the environmental statement<sup>28</sup>; (ii) he or they complied with any statutory obligations<sup>29</sup> in respect of any objection made in accordance with rules which relates to the environmental statement<sup>30</sup>; and (iii) he or they considered (or referred to an inquiry<sup>31</sup> or to a person appointed for the purpose<sup>32</sup>) any representation duly made (other than an objection) which relates to the environmental statement<sup>33</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers make a determination, the appropriate person<sup>34</sup> must publish a notice in a local newspaper circulating in the area, or in each of the areas, in which the relevant proposals<sup>35</sup> are or were intended to have effect<sup>36</sup>. As soon as practicable after the making of an order, the person who applied for the order<sup>37</sup> must: (A) deposit in the office of the Clerk of the Parliaments<sup>38</sup> a copy of the order, and of any plan or book of reference prepared in connection with the application (or proposed order)<sup>39</sup>; and (B) deposit with each of the specified councils<sup>40</sup> in whose area works authorised by the order are to be carried out a copy of each of those documents, or of so much of them as is relevant to those works<sup>41</sup>. A council with which such documents are deposited must make them available for inspection free of charge at all reasonable hours<sup>42</sup>.

6 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 ss 13, 14 (see the text to notes 19-42), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2.

7 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 13(1). See also in relation to such determinations s 10(2)-(4): and PARA 806. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 13 must be read in conjunction with the Conservation (Natural Habitats etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2716, regs 79-82: see PARA 814 et seq.

8 I.e. an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. The Transport and Works Act 1992 ss 13, 14 (see the text to notes 19-42) also apply to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302. Except in relation to an order which is subject to special parliamentary procedure (see s 12(3)(a); and PARA 808), such an order comes into operation on the date on which the notice required by s 14(1)(b) (see the text to note 21) is first published, or on such later date, if any, as may be specified in the order: s 13(5).

17 See the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 13(4)(b). A notice or other document required or authorised to be served for the purposes of the Transport and Works Act 1992 may be served by post: s 66(1). Where the person on whom a notice or other document to be served is a body corporate, the notice or document is duly served if it is served on the secretary or clerk of that body: s 66(2). For the purposes of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (see PARA 22 note 5) as it applies for the purposes of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 66, the proper address of any person in relation to the service on him of a notice or document under s 66(1) above is, if he has given an address for service, that address, and otherwise: (1) in the case of the secretary or clerk of a body corporate, the registered or principal office of that body (s 66(3)(a)); (2) in any other case, his last known address at the time of service (s 66(3)(b)). Where a notice or other document is required or authorised to be served on a person as having any interest in, or as the occupier of, land and his name or address cannot be ascertained after reasonable inquiry, the notice may be served by: (a) addressing it to him by name or by the description of 'owner', or as the case may be 'occupier', of the land (describing it) (s 66(4)(a)); and (b) either leaving it in the hands of a person who is or appears to be resident or employed on the land or leaving it conspicuously affixed to some building or object on the land (s 66(4)(b)). Section 66 must not be taken to exclude the employment of any method of service not expressly provided for by it: s 66(5). As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 14 note 21.

19 In accordance with the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 11(3): see PARA 807.

20 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(1)(a). A notice under s 14(1)(a) must: (1) give the reasons for the determination and the considerations upon which it is based (s 14(2)(a) (s 14(2) substituted by SI 2006/958)); (2) give information about the public participation process (Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(2)(b) (as so substituted)); and (3) give information regarding the right to challenge the validity of the determination and the procedures for doing so (s 14(2)(c) (as so substituted)). As to persons wishing to question the validity of an order see PARA 813.

21 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(1)(b). A notice under s 14(1)(b) must state: (1) the terms of the determination (s 14(2A)(a) (s 14(2A) added by SI 2006/958)); (2) that the notice under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(1)(a) (see the text to notes 19-20) gives the information referred to in s 14(2) (see note 20) (s 14(2A)(b) (as so added)); and (3) where copies of the notice under s 14(1)(a) may be obtained (s 14(2A)(c) (as so added)). An order under s 3 (see PARA 801) comes into operation on the date on which the notice required by s 14(1)(b) is first published or on such later date as may be specified in the order: see s 13(5); and note 8.

25 In to any application under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 6 (see PARA 804) for an order or any proposal to make an order by virtue of s 7 (see PARA 803) where the order would authorise: (1) works or other projects in a class listed in Annex I to EC Council Directive 85/337 (OJ L 175, 5.7.85, p 40) (amended by EC Council Directive 97/11 (OJ L 73, 14.3.97, p 5)) on the assessment of the effects of certain public and private projects on the environment; or (2) works or other projects in a class listed in Annex II to EC Council Directive 85/337 (OJ L 175, 5.7.85, p 40) (as so amended) which are, by virtue of their nature, size or location, likely to have significant effects on the environment: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3B) (s 14(3A), (3B)-(3D) added by SI 1995/1541; Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3B) amended by SI 1998/2226).

26 In the notices under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(1): see the text to notes 19-21.

27 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3A) (as added: see note 25). The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must send a copy of any notice to which the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3A) applies to any person who made an objection to which head (ii) in the text refers, which was not referred to an inquiry or hearing in accordance with s 11(3) (see PARA 807), or to any person who made a representation to which head (iii) in the text refers: see s 14(3C) (as so added). If, in a case where s 14(3A) has effect, an order is to be made, the notices under s 14(1) (see the text to notes 19-21) must also contain a description of the main measures to avoid, reduce and, if possible, remedy the major adverse environmental effects: s 14(3AA) (added by SI 1998/2226).

28 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3A)(a) (as added: see note 25). 'Environmental statement' means a statement: (1) which is required by virtue of rules made under s 6 (see PARA 804) to accompany an application under that section for an order, or to be prepared in connection with the publication of a notice of a proposal to make an order by virtue of s 7 (see PARA 803); and (2) which sets out particulars of the likely impact on the environment of the implementation of the order applied for or proposed: s 14(3D) (as so added).

29 In under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 10: see PARA 806.

30 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 14(3A)(b) (as added: see note 25). The rules referred to are rules under s 10 (see PARA 806): see s 14(3A)(b) (as so added).

INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(ii) Orders under the Transport and Works Act 1992/B. PROCEDURE FOR MAKING ORDERS/810. Exercise of Secretary of State's or Welsh Ministers' functions by appointed person.

810. Exercise of Secretary of State's or Welsh Ministers' functions by appointed person.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> may by regulations<sup>3</sup> prescribe classes of application<sup>4</sup> which are to be dealt with by a person appointed by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers for the purpose instead of by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers may if he or they think fit direct that an application which would otherwise fall to be determined by an appointed person is to be determined by the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers<sup>6</sup>.

An order made on an application dealt with by an appointed person may not authorise the compulsory acquisition of land<sup>7</sup>, or the compulsory creation or extinguishment of rights over land (including rights of navigation over water)<sup>8</sup>. However, subject to this qualification, an appointed person has in relation to the application<sup>9</sup>: (1) the same powers and duties as the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers have<sup>10</sup> to make an order<sup>11</sup>; and (2) such other powers and duties conferred on the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers under or by virtue of the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>12</sup> as may be specified in the regulations<sup>13</sup>. Where an application has been dealt with by an appointed person, any order made by him<sup>14</sup> is to be treated as made by the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers<sup>15</sup>.

At any time before the appointed person has determined the application, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers may: (a) revoke his appointment<sup>16</sup>; and (b) appoint another person under these provisions to deal with the application instead<sup>17</sup>. Where such a new appointment is made, the consideration of the application must begin afresh, except to the extent that regulations provide otherwise<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the modification of the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23(10) in relation to functions so exercisable by the Welsh Ministers see note 5.

3 The power to make regulations under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23 is exercisable by statutory instrument, subject, in the case of regulations made by the Secretary of State, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 23(11). As to the annulment of statutory instruments see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1516. As to the procedure in relation to subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers see the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 paras 33-35; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

4 As to applications see PARA 804.

5 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23(1). Where a person appointed under s 23 is an officer of the Department for Communities and Local Government, the Department for Transport, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform or the Welsh Office, his functions must be treated for the purposes of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1967 (see generally ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 41 et seq):

- 53 (1) if he was appointed by the Secretary of State for the time being having general responsibility in transport matters in relation to England, as functions of the Department for Transport;
- 54 (2) if he was appointed by the Secretary of State for the time being having general responsibility in planning matters in relation to England, as functions of the Department for Communities and Local Government;
- 55 (3) if he was appointed by the Secretary of State for the time being having general responsibility in energy matters, as functions of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform;
- 56 (4) if he was appointed by the Secretary of State for the time being having general responsibility in planning matters in relation to Wales, as functions of the Welsh Office: Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23(10) (amended by SI 2002/2626; SI 2006/1926; SI 2007/3224).

As to the meaning of 'England' see PARA 19 note 8. For the purpose of the functions under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23 transferred to the Welsh Ministers (see note 2) s 23(10) has effect as if the references to the Welsh Office were references to the Welsh Ministers and in relation thereto the reference to the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1967 has effect as if it were a reference to the Government of Wales Act 1998 Sch 9 (Welsh Administration Ombudsman) (repealed): see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1; Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 11 para 30. As to the ombudsman in Wales see now the Public Services Ombudsman (Wales) Act 2005; and ADMINISTRATIVE LAW.

7 As to the meaning of 'land' see PARA 14 note 21.

8 Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23(4). As to the meaning of 'rights over land' see PARA 802 note 10.

9 For this purpose, any reference in any Act or instrument (including the Transport and Works Act 1992 and any instrument made under it) to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers, or to anything done or authorised or required to be done by or to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers, is to be construed, so far as the context permits and subject to regulations under s 23, as a reference to the appointed person: s 23(3).

10 Ie under the Transport and Works Act 1992 s 3: see PARA 801. The Transport and Works Act 1992 s 23 also applies to an order under s 1 (orders as to railways, tramways etc), as to which see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 302.

811. Assimilation of procedures.

Where an application is made<sup>1</sup> for an order as to inland waterways (or where such an order is proposed by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup>) relating to proposals for the purposes of which the giving of a consent, permission or licence under any enactment<sup>3</sup> (or the making or confirmation of an order under any enactment) is required<sup>4</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> may make regulations<sup>6</sup> for securing that, where that requirement would not be removed by the order to which the application or proposal relates:

- 1618 (1) the procedure for obtaining, or otherwise relating to, the consent, permission, licence, order or confirmation<sup>7</sup>; and is wholly or partly assimilated (and in particular that proceedings relating to the one may be held concurrently with proceedings relating to the other)<sup>9</sup>. Such regulations may include provision: (a) excluding or modifying the application of any enactment<sup>10</sup>; (b) authorising the Secretary of State or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>11</sup> to give directions or take such other steps as may be appropriate for the purpose of securing the object of assimilation<sup>12</sup>.
- 1619 (2) the procedure relating to the application or proposal<sup>8</sup>,

Regulations have been made under these provisions modifying procedures where listed building consent or conservation area consent or where scheduled monument consent is required for the purposes of proposals included in an application<sup>13</sup> for an order as to inland waterways<sup>14</sup>. Likewise, regulations have been made modifying procedures where certain orders are required in relation to the classification and maintenance of the British Waterways Board's waterways or the maintenance and use of other waterways<sup>15</sup> is required for the purposes of proposals included in an application<sup>16</sup> for an order as to inland waterways or for the purposes of a proposal by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers to make<sup>17</sup> such an order<sup>18</sup>.

C. SCHEMES OF NATIONAL SIGNIFICANCE

812. Schemes of national significance.

Where an application<sup>1</sup> for an order as to inland waterways relates (wholly or in part) to proposals which in the opinion of the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>3</sup> are of national significance<sup>4</sup>, then, before the end of the period of 56 days beginning with the day on which he or they receive the application, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers must publish in the London Gazette a notice identifying the application and the proposals which in his or their opinion are of national significance<sup>5</sup>.

On, or as soon as practicable after, the day on which such notice is published, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers must:

- 1620 (1) publish a like notice in a local newspaper circulating in the area (or each of the areas) in which the proposals contained in the application are intended to have effect<sup>6</sup>; and
- 1621 (2) send a copy of the notice<sup>7</sup> to the applicant and to those persons<sup>8</sup> who objected to the application in accordance with rules made<sup>9</sup> as to the making of objections<sup>10</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>11</sup> must not make an order on the application unless each House of Parliament, on a motion moved by a minister of the Crown<sup>12</sup> which identifies the proposals referred to above, passes a resolution approving them at some time later than 56 days after the day of publication of the said notice<sup>13</sup>. An order made on the application must not include any provision that is inconsistent with a proposal approved by such a resolution unless that provision gives effect to modifications of the proposal which have themselves been approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament passed on a motion moved by a minister of the Crown<sup>14</sup>.

These provisions<sup>15</sup> apply, with certain modifications, in relation to an order which the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers make or propose to make<sup>16</sup> without an application<sup>17</sup>.

813. Questioning the validity of orders.

If a person aggrieved<sup>1</sup> by an order as to inland waterways<sup>2</sup> desires to question the validity of it, or of any provision contained in it, on the ground:

- 1622 (1) that it is not within the powers of the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>3</sup>; or
- 1623 (2) that any statutory requirement<sup>4</sup> has not been complied with<sup>5</sup>, he may, within the period of 42 days beginning with the day on which the notice of the determination as to order is published<sup>6</sup>, make an application for the purpose to the High Court<sup>7</sup>. On any such application, the court:

- 1624 (a) may by interim order suspend the operation of the order (or of any provision contained in it) either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant, until the final determination of the proceedings<sup>8</sup>; and
- 1625 (b) if satisfied that the order or any provision contained in it is not within the powers of the Transport and Works Act 1992, or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced by a failure to comply with any statutory requirement as mentioned in head (2) above, may quash the order or any provision contained in it, either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant<sup>9</sup>.

Subject to the above provisions<sup>10</sup>, an order may not, either before or after it has been made, be questioned in any legal proceedings whatever<sup>11</sup>.

E. CONSIDERATION OF CONSERVATION OBLIGATIONS

814. Conservation of natural habitats.

815. Application of general requirements.

The requirement to consider the effect on a European site<sup>1</sup> applies in relation to the making of an order as to inland waterways<sup>2</sup> under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>3</sup>. Where in such a case the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> or the Welsh Ministers<sup>5</sup> consider that any adverse effects of the plan or project on the integrity of a European site would be avoided by making modifications to the proposals, he or they may make an order subject to those modifications<sup>6</sup>.

The requirement to review existing decisions and consents<sup>7</sup> applies to an order as to inland waterways unless the works to which the order relates have been completed before the site became a European site<sup>8</sup>. Where, on the review of such an order, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers consider that any adverse effects on the integrity of a European site of the carrying out (or, as the case may be, the continuation of the plan or project) would be avoided by a variation of the order, he or they may vary it accordingly<sup>9</sup>. In conjunction with the review of any such order, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers must review any direction deeming planning permission to be granted for the plan or project and may vary or revoke it<sup>10</sup>.

816. Procedure on review.

- 1626 (1) on the person<sup>7</sup> (if any) on whose application the order was granted or, as the case may be, in whose favour the direction was made<sup>8</sup>; and informing them of the decision and specifying a period of not less than 28 days within which any person on whom the notice is served may make representations to him or, as appropriate, them<sup>10</sup>. The Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers must also serve notice on the local planning authority<sup>11</sup> and the appropriate nature conservation body<sup>12</sup> informing them of the decision and inviting their representations within the specified period<sup>13</sup>. The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers must consider whether to proceed with the revocation or variation, and must have regard to any representations<sup>14</sup> so made<sup>15</sup>.

If, within the specified period, a person on whom notice was served under head (1) or head (2) above, or the local planning authority, so requires, the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers must, before deciding whether to proceed with the revocation or variation, give to them<sup>16</sup>, and to any other person on whom notice<sup>17</sup> was required to be served<sup>18</sup>, an opportunity of appearing before, and being heard by, a person appointed for the purpose<sup>19</sup>.

817. Effect of review.

The revocation or variation<sup>1</sup> of an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>2</sup> (or of a direction deeming planning permission to be granted<sup>3</sup>) takes effect upon service of the notices that are required<sup>4</sup> or, where there is more than one such notice and those notices are served at different times, upon the service of the last such notice to be served<sup>5</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> or the Welsh Ministers<sup>7</sup> decide not to proceed with the revocation or variation, the order or direction has effect again from the time of that decision, and thereafter has effect as if:

1628 (1) any period specified in the order or direction for the taking of any action, being a period which had not expired prior to the date mentioned above<sup>8</sup>, were extended by a period equal to that during which the revocation or variation had effect<sup>9</sup>; and

1629 (2) there were substituted for any date specified in the order or direction as being a date by which any action should be taken, not being a date falling prior to that date<sup>10</sup>, such date as post-dates the specified date by a period equal to that during which the revocation or variation had effect<sup>11</sup>.

The revocation or variation<sup>12</sup> of an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 (or a direction deeming planning permission to be granted) does not affect anything done under the order or direction prior to the revocation or variation taking effect<sup>13</sup>.

818. Compensation for revocation or variation.

Where a direction deeming planning permission to be granted is revoked or varied<sup>1</sup>, that permission is treated for the purposes of the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 which relate to compensation<sup>2</sup> as having been revoked or modified by order<sup>3</sup> made under that Act<sup>4</sup>.

Where an order as to inland waterways under the Transport and Works Act 1992<sup>5</sup> is revoked or so varied<sup>6</sup>, the provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 which relate to compensation apply with certain modifications<sup>7</sup>. However, this provision does not have effect to confer any right to compensation for any expenditure, loss or damage for which compensation is payable by virtue of the provision<sup>8</sup> above<sup>9</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers decide not to proceed with the revocation or variation of an order under the Transport and Works Act 1992 (or a direction deeming planning permission to be granted) any claim for compensation by virtue of the above provisions is limited to any loss or damage directly attributable to the order or direction ceasing to have effect or being varied for the duration of the period between the revocation or variation taking effect<sup>10</sup> and the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers deciding not to proceed with it<sup>11</sup>.

Where compensation is payable by virtue of these provisions, the question as to the amount of the compensation must be referred to and determined by the Lands Tribunal<sup>12</sup>, unless and to the extent that in any particular case the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers have indicated in writing<sup>13</sup> that such a reference and determination may be dispensed with<sup>14</sup>.

(iii) Canal Works

A. CONSTRUCTION ETC UNDER SPECIAL ACT

819. Execution of canal works.

The powers and obligations of a canal company are normally governed by the special Act under which it was formed<sup>1</sup>. If a time is fixed within which canal works are to be executed, no works adverse to the interests of any individual may be executed after the expiration of that time<sup>2</sup>, but if the Act which authorises the execution of works contains no limitation of time such works may be executed at any time after the passing of the Act<sup>3</sup>.

In the absence of negligence<sup>4</sup>, canal undertakers will not be liable for damage resulting from the exercise of their powers or be restrained by injunction when the execution of the works in exercise of statutory powers has not caused injury to any individual<sup>5</sup>. Damage caused by delay in repairing works authorised by a special Act may give rise to a claim for compensation<sup>6</sup>, but damage caused by failure to repair a wall adjoining a canal and not belonging to canal undertakers cannot be the subject of a claim in nuisance, although such a claim may be made in negligence where it can be proved that the canal undertakers failed to control their undertakings so as to prevent faulty navigation<sup>7</sup>.

820. Acquisition of land authorised under special Act for canals and works.

Where canal undertakers are authorised by special Act<sup>1</sup> to acquire land for the purpose of constructing a canal and works, the land when acquired is vested in the undertakers in fee simple, but only for the purposes of that Act<sup>2</sup>, and they will be restrained from using the land for profit in any way not authorised<sup>3</sup>. Where undertakers exceed their powers, the ordinary courts have jurisdiction to interfere, even if the undertakers' special Act appoints a particular jurisdiction<sup>4</sup>.

Where a special Act contains a limitation on the time for acquisition of proprietary interests, then canal undertakers can only acquire those interests within the time specified<sup>5</sup>.

821. Construction of accommodation works.

Canal undertakers may from time to time be compelled to construct such accommodation works as are provided for in their special Act<sup>1</sup>, and the decision of any tribunal authorised by that Act to decide as to the necessity of such works is final<sup>2</sup>.

1 As to authorisation under special Act see PARA 799.

2 Birmingham Canal Navigation Co Proprietors v Hickman (1892) 56 JP 598, CA, where the special Act provided that the company should construct such bridges over its canal as justices 'should from time to time judge necessary' for the use of occupiers of the adjoining land; and it was held that it was for the justices to decide whether a bridge was reasonably necessary, and, they having decided it was necessary, the company was bound to erect the bridge.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(iii) Canal Works/A. CONSTRUCTION ETC UNDER SPECIAL ACT/822. Bridges associated with canals.

822. Bridges associated with canals.

When canal undertakers are empowered by their special Act<sup>1</sup> to construct a bridge for the use of the public in lieu of public rights interfered with by the construction of the canal, the undertakers are bound for all time to maintain the bridge in proper condition for the use of the public even if their Act may be silent on the subject of such maintenance<sup>2</sup>. If, in connection with a bridge which the undertakers are bound to maintain, fencing is reasonably necessary for public safety, the undertakers are bound to fence sufficiently, and are liable, apart from negligence, as for a nuisance, for injury caused by the want of such sufficient fencing<sup>3</sup>. However, the undertakers are not bound to fence as against persons merely permitted to pass alongside the canal<sup>4</sup>.

Canal undertakers erecting swing bridges to carry a highway over their canal must see that such bridges are not kept open for an unreasonably long time<sup>5</sup>, and that, while they are properly open, a member of the public runs no danger of walking unawares into the canal<sup>6</sup>. Responsibility for the maintenance of highways on bridges lies with the appropriate highway authority and such bridges are maintainable at public expense<sup>7</sup>.

The statute conferring the powers may be the sole guide to the liability; thus the obligations to repair may only extend to maintaining the bridge as originally constructed or taken over: see A-G for Ireland v Lagan Navigation Co [1924] AC 877, HL.

3 Manley v St Helens Canal and Rly Co (1858) 2 H & N 840, where a canal undertaking was held liable in nuisance for death caused by lack of fencing and lighting on a swivel bridge left open by the negligence of a third person. 823. Alteration of works to prevent interference with navigation.

824. Right to support.

The owners of a canal made under statutory powers<sup>1</sup> are usually entitled to reasonable and necessary support for their canal from the adjacent land<sup>2</sup>. The right of such owners to support from the subjacent soil, and the right of the owners of the subjacent soil to work mines and minerals under the canal, depends in every case on the provisions of the special Act under which the canal was made or, if incorporated with it, one or other of the statutory mining codes<sup>3</sup>.

825. Right to use of towing-path.

The towing-path is part of the canal, and so when a special Act<sup>1</sup> gives the owners of land through which the canal passes the right to make and use wharfs on land adjoining the canal, provided the navigation is not obstructed, the owner of land adjoining the towing-path has the right to erect a wharf on his own property and to land goods on the towing-path, provided he does not interfere with the navigation<sup>2</sup>. Likewise, the grantees of an exclusive fishery have the right to use the towing paths and banks of the canal for the exercise of the right of fishery<sup>3</sup>.

B. MAINTENANCE ETC

826. Liability of railway company to maintain canals.

A railway company<sup>1</sup> which owns or manages<sup>2</sup> a canal<sup>3</sup> is bound at all times to keep or maintain the canal and all the works appertaining to it in thorough repair, dredged and in good working condition; and it must preserve the supplies of water to it so that the whole canal may be kept open and navigable for the use of all persons<sup>4</sup> desiring to use and navigate it, without any unnecessary hindrance, interruption or delay<sup>5</sup>.

The statutory obligation to repair is not absolute and a railway company is not liable, except upon proof of negligence, for damage caused by the interruption of navigation by the canal falling into disrepair<sup>6</sup>.

1 'Railway company' includes any person being the owner or lessee of or working any railway in the United Kingdom constructed or carried on under the powers of any Act of Parliament: Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 3.

2 Actual management, even if ultra vires the statutory powers of the undertaking, is a sufficient management for this purpose: Foster v Great Western Rly Co (1877) 3 Ry & Can Tr Cas 14; and see South Eastern Rly Co v Railway Comrs (1880) 5 QBD 217, DC (on appeal (1881) 6 QBD 586, CA).

3 'Canal' includes any navigation which has been made under or upon which tolls may be levied by authority of Parliament, and also the wharves and landing-places of and belonging to such canal or navigation, and used for the purposes of public traffic: Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 3.

4 'Person' includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate: Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 3.

5 Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17. The Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17 does not apply to any inland waterway which on 18 November 1968 was comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board: see the Transport Act 1968 s 105(5). In the case of any canal which is not comprised in the undertaking of the board, the Secretary of State may by order direct that the Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17, if applicable to that canal, is to cease to apply to it: see the Transport Act 1968 s 112(1)(c); and PARA 828. As to the meaning of 'inland waterway' see PARA 720 note 3. As to the meaning of references to any right of navigation over a waterway or canal see PARA 741 note 13. Nothing in any order under s 112 (see PARA 828) must be construed as abrogating any rights of navigation which subsist otherwise than by virtue of the Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17; and in the Transport Act 1968 s 12(1) references to rights conferred by the Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 17 do not include references to rights which are merely confirmed by it and which, if that enactment had not been passed, would subsist otherwise than by virtue thereof: see the Transport Act 1968 s 115(2). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29. The Secretary of State is the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719. As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq.

In Willow Wren Canal Carrying Co Ltd v British Transport Commission [1956] 1 All ER 567, [1956] 1 WLR 213, an application by the commission for stay of an action for failure to maintain the Kennet and Avon Canal in navigable condition pending the passing of a special Act limiting its liability as respects this canal was refused. (The liability to maintain the canal was limited by the British Transport Commission Act 1956 s 18; see also the preamble to that Act). Power to discontinue the maintenance of particular canals or parts of canals was commonly conferred on the commission and the British Waterways Board by their special Acts: see PARA 828.

6 Blundy, Clark & Co Ltd v London and North Eastern Rly Co [1931] 2 KB 334, CA, where it was held that there was no evidence of negligence on the part of a railway company which, on the appearance of cracks in the walls of a lock and subsidence of the soil at the side of the walls, failed to investigate the foundations, an operation which might have involved the closing of the canal for some months.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/12. INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(iii) Canal Works/B. MAINTENANCE ETC/827. Liability under special Act to repair canals.

827. Liability under special Act to repair canals.

Where a canal company is obliged by its special Act<sup>1</sup> to repair a canal and to keep it in repair for the use of those members of the public who desire to use it and are prepared to pay the prescribed tolls, an injunction will be granted restraining the company from impeding navigation by failing to keep it in repair, but a mandatory order to repair will not be granted<sup>2</sup>. Where the construction and maintenance of a canal is permissive only, and part of it is closed to navigation for want of repair, reopening will not be enforced if the expense of so doing makes it unreasonable<sup>3</sup>.

When persons lawfully using a canal for hire suffer damage through the canal being out of repair, the canal undertakers are liable<sup>4</sup>; but the undertakers are not liable in the case of persons merely allowed to use the premises of the undertakers, but who are not using the premises on business or for the benefit of the undertakers<sup>5</sup>.

In order to found a claim for damages for the closing of a canal the claimant must show that he has thus been caused peculiar damage greater than that caused to the general public<sup>6</sup>. Any person who has property near a canal which he uses for the purposes of his business suffers such peculiar damage if, in consequence of the canal being unlawfully obstructed, he is put to greater expense in the conduct of his business, or suffers loss by the diminution of his business<sup>7</sup>.

In respect of any canal<sup>1</sup> which is not comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> may by order direct all or any of the following<sup>4</sup>:

- 1630 (1) that any local enactment passed with respect to the canal is to cease to have effect so far as it confers any public or private right of navigation over it<sup>5</sup>;
- 1631 (2) that any such enactment is to cease to have effect in so far as it imposes a duty to maintain the canal for the purpose of navigation, including any duty to supply or maintain a supply of water for the canal for that purpose<sup>6</sup>;
- 1632 (3) that the statutory provision relating to the maintenance of canals by railway companies<sup>7</sup> is to cease to apply to that canal<sup>8</sup>.

Such an order may be made on the application of the person<sup>9</sup> who owns or manages the canal, on the application of the Environment Agency<sup>10</sup> or any local authority<sup>11</sup> in whose area the canal is situated, or without any application being made<sup>12</sup>.

The order must specify the person or body by whom any compensation is to be paid<sup>13</sup> as a result of the order having been made<sup>14</sup>, and may:

- 1633 (a) confer on a person specified in the order power to authorise any use of the canal which would have been authorised by a statutory right of navigation which by virtue of the order ceases to be exercisable as respects the canal<sup>15</sup>;
- 1634 (b) make provision<sup>16</sup>, in relation to the canal or any works connected therewith, for the maintenance by, or the transfer of the canal to, another body<sup>17</sup>;
- 1635 (c) include such incidental or supplementary provisions as the Secretary of State thinks fit<sup>18</sup>.

The making of any such order must comply with the statutory procedure<sup>19</sup> and is subject to annulment by a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>20</sup>.

1 'Canal' includes any navigation which has been made under, or in respect of which tolls may be levied by virtue of, any enactment, and references to a canal include references to part of a canal: Transport Act 1968 s 112(6). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31.

3 I.e. the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719. In the case of an order made under the Transport Act 1968 s 112 in respect of any canal in Scotland which is not comprised in the undertaking of the British Waterways Board, any reference (however expressed) to the Secretary of State is to be construed as a reference to the Scottish Ministers: see s 112(6A) (added by SI 2000/3251). As to the Scottish Ministers see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

13 Ie whether it is to be paid by the person who owns or manages the canal, a local authority, the Environment Agency or the Secretary of State: see the Transport Act 1968 s 112(3)(a) (amended by the Water Act 1989 Sch 25 para 38(2); and by virtue of SI 1996/593).

14 See the Transport Act 1968 s 112(3)(a) (as amended: see note 13). Any person who suffers loss by reason of the extinguishment of any private right because of an order under s 112, is entitled to compensation to be determined, in case of dispute, by the Lands Tribunal; and in determining the compensation the tribunal must take into account any contractual right offered by the person who owns or manages the canal in substitution for the right that is extinguished: see ss 112(4), 115(1)(b). As to the Lands Tribunal see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 720 et seq. At the date at which this volume states the law, draft legislation proposes the abolition of the Lands Tribunal and its replacement by the Upper Tribunal (as to which see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) para 13A).

Such provisions may include provisions for applying the Public Health Act 1936 s 259 (see NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 156) and the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 215 (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(2) (Reissue) PARA 887) to the canal: see the Transport Act 1968 s 112(3)(d) (amended by the Planning (Consequential Provisions) Act 1990 s 4, Sch 2). Canals closed for navigation under the Transport Act 1968 s 112 are deemed to be watercourses for the purposes of the Public Health Act 1936 s 259: see the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 23. For the purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 s 215, each of those canals is deemed to be a vacant site, except where any part of them is changed pursuant to planning permission granted after its closure for navigation: see the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 24(1).

19 Before making an order under the Transport Act 1968 s 112 the Secretary of State must comply with the requirements of Sch 13 applicable to that order and may then make the order as originally proposed or with such modifications as he thinks fit: Sch 13 para 1(1) (numbered as such by SI 2000/3251). Any reference in the Transport Act 1968 Sch 13 (however expressed) to the Secretary of State is to be construed as a reference to the Scottish Ministers: see Sch 13 para 1(2) (added by SI 2000/3251). In the case of a proposed order in respect of a canal or part of a canal which appears to the Secretary of State to be used to a significant extent for the purpose of navigation, the Secretary of State must consult with any organisation appearing to him to represent persons using it as aforesaid: Transport Act 1968 Sch 13 para 4. The Secretary of State must publish in the London Gazette (or, if the waterway is situated in Scotland, the Edinburgh Gazette), in a national newspaper and in one or more local newspapers circulating in the area in which the waterway is situated, and cause to be displayed in one or more places adjacent to the waterway, a notice containing a statement of the general effect of the proposed order, and that objections to the order can be made to him within such time (not being less than 28 days) and in such manner as is specified in the notice: Sch 13 para 5(1). The Secretary of State must consider any such objection which is duly made and not withdrawn, and, if he has caused an inquiry to be held in connection with the proposed order, the report of the person holding it: Sch 13 para 5(1). The holding of an inquiry is obligatory: (1) if an objection is duly made to the proposed order (and is not withdrawn) by a local authority or the Environment Agency (see Sch 13 para 5(2)(a) (amended by the Water Act 1989 s 190, Sch 25 para 38; and by virtue of SI 1996/593)); (2) in connection with any proposed order relating to a canal or part thereof which appears to the Secretary of State to have been used to a significant extent for the purpose of navigation at the time when notice of the proposed order was published, if an objection is duly made to the proposed order (and is not withdrawn) by any organisation appearing to him to represent a substantial number of persons using it as aforesaid at that time (see the Transport Act 1968 Sch 13 para 5(2)(b), (3)). As to the exercise of the duty to consult see JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 627.

829. Duties of persons filling in canal basins not comprised in the network of the board.

Any person<sup>1</sup> filling in any canal basin<sup>2</sup> (or part of one) not vested in or under the control of the British Waterways Board<sup>3</sup> but communicating either directly or indirectly with an inland waterway which is so vested or controlled must execute in connection with it all such works as may be necessary for: (1) damming off the basin and its site from the waterway so as effectively to prevent, so far as reasonably practicable, any future loss or leakage of water<sup>4</sup> from the waterway through or into the basin or its site<sup>5</sup>; (2) continuing the towpath of the waterway, if situated on the same side of the waterway as the basin, over and across the canal basin site on the same line and level, as nearly as may be, as the existing towpath on either side of the basin and for removing any bridge previously carrying such towpath over the entrance to the basin; and (3) fencing off such new portion of towpath from the remainder of the canal basin site<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

2 As to the meaning of 'canal basin' in this respect see the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 26(1), (4).

3 As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq. As to the other bodies which act as navigation authorities in England and Wales see PARA 718.

4 As to the powers of the board under local Acts to require canal basins to be kept watertight see PARA 771.

5 The works under head (1) in the text must be completed to the satisfaction of an engineer appointed by the board before any part of the basin is filled in: see the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 26(1), (3)(f) (amended by the Transport Act 1962 s 32(1), Sch 2 Pt III).

6 See the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 26(1), (3)(a). When completed, any such new portion of towpath, its site and such fence vests in the board and is deemed for all purposes to form part of the inland waterway with which the former basin communicated: s 26(3)(h) (amended by the Transport Act 1962 Sch 2 Pt III). See further the British Transport Commission Act 1959 s 26(3)(b)-(e) (amended by the Transport Act 1962 Sch 2 Pt III).

INLAND WATERWAYS/(5) STRUCTURE WORKS AND CONSTRUCTION/(iii) Canal Works/B. MAINTENANCE ETC/830. Requirement for independent canal companies to report stoppage of canals.

830. Requirement for independent canal companies to report stoppage of canals.

Whenever a canal company<sup>1</sup> other than the British Waterways Board<sup>2</sup> intends to stop its canal for more than two days, it must report its intention to the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, stating the time the stoppage is intended to last; and when the canal has been re-opened it must also so report to him<sup>4</sup>.

1 'Canal company' includes any person being the owner or lessee of, or working, or entitled to charge tolls for the use of any canal in the United Kingdom constructed or carried on under the powers of any Act of Parliament: Regulation of Railways Act 1873 s 3 (definition applied by the Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 ss 1, 55). As to the meaning of 'canal' see PARA 826 note 3; and as to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 826 note 4: definitions as so applied.

2 The Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 s 39 does not apply to the British Waterways Board: see the Transport Act 1962 s 24(4). As to the British Waterways Board see PARA 725 et seq. As to the other bodies which act as navigation authorities in England and Wales see PARA 718.

3 The Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 s 39 refers to the Board of Trade, the functions of which are now exercisable by the Secretary of State for Transport. As to the Secretary of State for Transport see PARA 719. As to the Board of Trade see further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 505.

4 See the Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 s 39(3). A company failing to comply with this provision, and also any director, manager, and officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises and permits the default, is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine of £5 for every day during which default lasts: see s 39(4).

831. Secretary of State's power to inspect canals.

Whenever the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> has information that the works of any canal<sup>2</sup> are in such a condition as to be dangerous to the public, or to cause serious inconvenience or hindrance to traffic, he may direct some person to inspect the canal and report to him<sup>3</sup>.

1 The Railway and Canal Traffic Act 1888 s 41 refers to the Board of Trade, the functions of which are now exercisable by the Secretary of State for Transport. As to the Secretary of State for Transport see PARA 719. As to the Board of Trade see further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 505.

13. FERRIES

(1) DEFINITION AND NATURE OF A FERRY

832. In general.

Ferries are specifically excluded from the definition of 'highway' in the Highways Act 1980<sup>1</sup>, but at common law a ferry is considered to be a highway of a special description<sup>2</sup>. The Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 enabled local authorities to acquire existing ferries by agreement and to continue to run them subject to the provisions of any Act of Parliament under which the ferry was established<sup>3</sup>.

1 In the Highways Act 1980, except where the context otherwise requires, 'highway' means the whole or a part of a highway other than a ferry or waterway: see the Highways Act 1980 s 328(1); and HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 7.

2 See Huzzey v Field (1835) 2 Cr M & R 432. As to the meaning of 'ferry' at common law see PARA 833.

3 See PARA 840.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/13. FERRIES/(1) DEFINITION AND NATURE OF A FERRY/833. Meaning of 'ferry' at common law.

833. Meaning of 'ferry' at common law.

There are two kinds of ferry which exist at common law: (1) a ferry which is a highway over water uniting two highways<sup>1</sup> on land; and (2) a ferry from town to town<sup>2</sup>. In the case of a highway-to-highway ferry the termini cannot be varied to any substantial extent, but in a town-to-town ferry the termini can be varied within the boundaries of the town<sup>3</sup>. A ferry may be created for one way only, the owners of opposite banks each having a ferry<sup>4</sup>.

The right to charge tolls is usually incident to a ferry<sup>5</sup>, and a right of ferry is primarily a toll franchise<sup>6</sup>.

A ferry exists in connection with the use of a highway<sup>7</sup>. There must be a line of way on land, coming to a landing place on the water's edge, or, where the ferry is from or to a town, from or to one or more landing places in the town<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'highway' at common law see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 1.

In order to establish a right of ferry from town to town, the town must be of a certain size, ie a 'vill' rather than a mere district: see Cowes UDC v Southampton, Isle of Wight, and South of England Royal Mail Steam Packet Co Ltd (above).

5 See PARA 846.

6 See PARA 835. As to grants of franchises see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 890.

7 A ferryman working from a highway is not entitled to land his passengers on private property over which the public does not have a right of way: Bournemouth-Swanage Motor Road and Ferry Co v Harvey & Sons (1930) 144 LT 132, CA. As to private rights of way see EASEMENTS AND PROFITS A PRENDRE vol 16(2) (Reissue) PARA 156 et seq.

8 Newton v Cubitt (1862) 12 CBNS 32; affd (1863) 13 CBNS 864, Ex Ch. In Jacob's Law Dictionary, a ferry is stated to be a liberty by prescription of the King's grant to have a boat for passage upon a river for carriage of horses and men for reasonable tolls. See also Webb's Case (1608) 8 Co Rep 45b at 46b.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/13. FERRIES/(1) DEFINITION AND NATURE OF A FERRY/834. Right of ferry independent of ownership of land.

834. Right of ferry independent of ownership of land.

A right of ferry is wholly unconnected with the ownership or occupation of land<sup>1</sup>; and it is not necessary that a ferry owner should have any property in the soil of the river over which he has a right of ferry<sup>2</sup>, or that he should be the owner of the landing places of the ferry, it being sufficient that they are in a public highway or that otherwise he has a right to land upon them<sup>3</sup>. The ferry owner does not occupy the highway over the river, but has merely a right to make a special use of it<sup>4</sup>.

A ferry detached altogether from real property is not rateable, but where the ferry owner occupies the landing places he is rateable in respect of them and, although the tolls are not rateable, the existence of the tolls cannot be wholly excluded in relation to the value of the landing places<sup>5</sup>.

If the approach to a ferry is a highway, the adjoining owner has a right of access to it for all purposes and toll free except when using the ferry: East Riding of Yorkshire County Council v Company of Proprietors of Selby Bridge [1925] Ch 841 at 846. However, the owner of the ferry may own the landing places subject to the highway over them to the ferry (see PARA 838), and there is a right to charge a toll in respect of an approach to the ferry otherwise than from the highway: see Robinson v Balmain New Ferry Co Ltd [1910] AC 295, PC.

4 R v Nicholson (1810) 12 East 330. As to ferries as highways see PARAS 832, 833.

Halsbury's Laws of England/WATER AND WATERWAYS (VOLUME 100 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 1-452; VOLUME 101 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 453-851)/13. FERRIES/(2) CREATION OF FERRIES/835. Creation of ferry by grant or statute.

(2) CREATION OF FERRIES

835. Creation of ferry by grant or statute.

A ferry is a franchise and is created by royal grant<sup>1</sup> or by Act of Parliament<sup>2</sup>, as was done in the case of the Woolwich ferry<sup>3</sup>. It can be acquired by prescription at common law, which presumes a grant prior to 1189<sup>4</sup>, or by proof of facts from which a modern grant can be inferred<sup>5</sup>.

If there is already an existing ferry between two towns in the hands of any person, the grant of another ferry between the same towns is void<sup>6</sup>.

A grant of a ferry may be in more or less extensive terms<sup>7</sup>. A grant of 'all our ferriages and passages' over a certain river only applies to existing ferries and does not confer on the grantee a right to create new ferries over the same river<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the Crown's right to grant a ferry with a toll see Bac Abr, Prerogative (F) 1; 2 Roll Abr 171; Com Dig, Prerogative (D 48); Vin Abr, Prerogative (M b) 18. As to grants of franchises see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 890.

2 It is primarily a toll franchise: see Hammerton v Earl of Dysart [1916] 1 AC 57 at 78, 91, HL, per Lord Parker of Waddington. No grants of the Crown creating ferries have been found before 1330: Hammerton v Earl of Dysart (above) at 72, 82. See also Letton v Goodden (1866) LR 2 Eq 123; Londonderry Bridge Comrs v M'Keever (1890) 27 LR Ir 464, Ir CA. If the Act does not confer an exclusive right of ferry, the owner may not prevent anyone carrying passengers near the ferry: Bournemouth-Swanage Motor Road and Ferry Co v Harvey & Sons [1930] AC 549, HL. There is no exclusive right of ferry or power to charge tolls in the case of ferries provided for long-distance routes across country (see PARA 836), or in the case of the Woolwich ferry (see the Metropolitan Board of Works (Various Powers) Act 1885 s 19).

3 See the Metropolitan Board of Works (Various Powers) Act 1885 ss 14-24; and LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 258. The duty of the Secretary of State under s 16 to work a ferry-boat across the River Thames has been transferred to Transport for London: see the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 257; and LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 258.

837. Provision, maintenance and improvement of road-ferries.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 15 note 1. As to the Secretary of State in relation to the Highways Act 1980, and as a highway authority, see also HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 49.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Highways Act 1980 s 24, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5. As to the Welsh Ministers as a highway authority see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 49.

3 As local highway authorities see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 56.

4 'Maintenance' includes repair, and 'maintain' and 'maintainable' are to be construed accordingly: Highways Act 1980 s 329(1). As to maintenance see further HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 272.

5 Highways Act 1980 s 24(4). 'Road-ferry' means a ferry connecting the termination of a highway which is, or is to become, a highway maintainable at the public expense with the termination of another highway which is, or is to become, such a highway: s 329(1). As to the meaning of 'highway' see PARA 832 note 1. As to highways maintainable at the public expense see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 248.

6 As to highway authorities see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 49 et seq.

7 'Improvement' means the doing of any act under powers conferred by the Highways Act 1980 Pt V (ss 62-105) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 484 et seq) and includes the erection, maintenance, alteration and removal of traffic signs, and the freeing of a highway or road-ferry from tolls: s 329(1). For the purposes of the Highways Act 1980 and of any other enactment relating to highways, the widening of the carriageway of a highway is not to be treated as being otherwise than an improvement by reason only of the fact that it involves diminution or removal of a footway thereon: s 332. As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 14 note 31. As to tolls see PARAS 846-847.

8 See the Highways Act 1980 s 105. Functions under s 105 can be contracted out, ie may be exercised by, or by employees of, such person (if any) as may be authorised in that behalf by the local highway authority whose functions they are: see the Local Authorities (Contracting Out of Highway Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/2106, art 2, Sch 1 para 1; and HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 58.

(3) TRANSFER AND EXTINGUISHMENT OF FERRIES

838. Conveyance.

A ferry, being an incorporeal hereditament<sup>1</sup>, is transferable by deed<sup>2</sup>. If the owner of the ferry owns also the soil of the landing places they will be included in the conveyance, but ownership of the soil is not necessary if there is a right to embark and disembark passengers and goods<sup>3</sup>.

A right of ferry may pass under a conveyance of land with its 'profits and commodities' where the owners of the land have enjoyed the ferry as far as living memory goes<sup>4</sup>.

2 See DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 10.

3 Peter v Kendal (1827) 6 B & C 703; and see PARA 834. As a ferry is a continuation of a public highway, it may perhaps be more correct to say that the right to use the landing places is a right of the public and not of the ferry owner: see East Riding of Yorkshire County Council v Company of Proprietors of Selby Bridge [1925] Ch 841.

4 R v Great Northern Rly Co (1849) 14 QB 25. As to general words implied in conveyances see the Law of Property Act 1925 s 62; and DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 236. As to disturbances of rights see PARAS 848-851.

839. Lease.

As a ferry is an incorporeal hereditament<sup>1</sup>, a lease of it must be by deed<sup>2</sup>; and, as rent in the proper sense cannot at common law be reserved out of such a hereditament<sup>3</sup>, there cannot be any distress in respect of it<sup>4</sup>. The amount reserved by the lease may be recoverable, although not as rent, in a claim for breach of contract<sup>5</sup>.

A lease of a ferry which exists only one way across a river is good, even though the lease describes the ferry as existing both ways<sup>6</sup>.

Where a ferry is appurtenant to land it may pass under a lease of the land with its 'profits and commodities'<sup>7</sup>.

In Peter v Kendal, no point as to the insufficiency of an oral lease was raised at the trial, the plaintiff relying upon a subsequent surrender of the lease. See also Anguish v Ebdon (1830) cited in Gunning on Tolls 111, where in an action for tolls a nonsuit was applied for on the ground that the plaintiff had leased the tolls for a number of years. The nonsuit was refused as, the lease not being under seal, no interest in law passed under it. Cf R v Fladbury Inhabitants (1839) 10 Ad & El 706 at 709 (poor law settlement). #### 840. Acquisition of ferry by local authority.

With the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> or, in relation to Wales, the Welsh Ministers<sup>2</sup> a local authority<sup>3</sup> may purchase or accept the transfer of any existing ferry<sup>4</sup> which is within the authority's area or which serves the inhabitants of that area, and the owner may sell or transfer the ferry upon such terms as may be agreed between them<sup>5</sup>. On the acquisition of a ferry the authority must make regulations, to be confirmed by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers, for the protection from injury of passengers and the general public<sup>6</sup>.

Subject to the provisions of any Act of Parliament under which the ferry was established and to the rights of any other persons<sup>7</sup>, the authority may work, maintain and improve the ferry and charge such tolls<sup>8</sup> as were legally chargeable before the sale or transfer, or may free the ferry from tolls<sup>9</sup>. The authority has the same rights and powers as the owner of the ferry possessed and is subject to the same obligations and liabilities<sup>10</sup>. The local authority may join with any other local authority in acquiring, working, maintaining or improving a ferry, or may contribute to the expenses thereof<sup>11</sup>. A local authority may borrow for these purposes<sup>12</sup>; and a county council or a district council may give financial assistance to a ferry service<sup>13</sup>.

1 The Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1 refers to the Minister of Transport. The functions of that minister are now vested in the Secretary of State for Transport: see PARA 719 note 2. As to the Secretary of State for Transport see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 509.

2 The functions of the Secretary of State under the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 (except s 3: see note 10), so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, art 2, Sch 1. These functions are now vested in the Welsh Ministers: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30. As to the meaning of 'Wales' see PARA 16 note 2. As to the Welsh Ministers see PARA 16 note 5.

3 'Local authority' means and includes a county council, a county borough council, and the council of any urban district: see the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(6) (amended by the Local Government Act 1972 s 272(1), Sch 30). The Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 applies to the passenger transport executive for a passenger transport area as if the executive were a local authority for that area: Transport Act 1968 s 10(5) (amended by the Transport Act 1985 ss 57(6), 139(2), Sch 3 para 2(a), Sch 7 para 7, Sch 8). As to local government areas and authorities in England and Wales see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq. As to passenger transport executives see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 64.

4 'Existing ferry' means any ferry legally established by Act of Parliament or otherwise at the date of the purchase or transfer, and includes all boats or other vessels, landing stages, approaches, apparatus, plant and other property used in connection with the ferry: Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(4).

5 Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(1). For the purpose of exercising his or their functions under the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919, the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Welsh Ministers may hold local inquiries: s 1(4A) (added by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993 s 1, Sch 2 Pt II para 20).

6 See the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 2. Offenders against such regulations are liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale or a lesser amount as may be prescribed by the regulations: see s 2 (amended by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 46). As to the standard scale see PARA 141 note 18.

7 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 13 note 29.

8 As to persons who are exempt from the payment of tolls see PARA 847.

9 See the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(2) (amended by the Local Government Act 1972 ss 186(6), 272(1), Sch 30).

10 See the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(2) (as amended: see note 9). Crown rights, and particularly those in the foreshore, are preserved: see s 3.

11 See the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(3). Any difference which may arise between any local authorities which are acting jointly or jointly bearing any expenses is to be determined by the Secretary of State or, as appropriate, the Welsh Ministers, or by an arbitrator appointed by him or them, and such determination is final and binding: see s 1(3). The provisions of the Arbitration Act 1996 Pt I (ss 1-84) apply to any such arbitration: see s 94; and ARBITRATION vol 2 (2008) PARA 1209.

12 Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919 s 1(8) (amended by the Local Government Act 1933 s 307, Sch 11 Pt IV). As to borrowing by local authorities see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 594 et seq.

841. Extinguishing or relinquishing a ferry.

In early times a ferry might be extinguished or relinquished by scire facias<sup>1</sup> or by a writ ad quod damnum<sup>2</sup> and an inquisition thereon followed by a licence from the Crown<sup>3</sup>. However, the procedure by the writ ad quod damnum has in modern days fallen into disuse and a ferry is generally extinguished or relinquished by an Act of Parliament<sup>4</sup>. The remedy by scire facias, on the other hand, is still available<sup>5</sup>.

1    le a proceeding for the purpose of rescinding or repealing Crown grants, charters and franchises.

2    le 'at what loss?', or 'what damage would the extinguishment or relinquishment cause?'. This was an original writ issuing out of Chancery to a sheriff directing him to summon a jury to inquire whether the proposed step would be detrimental to the public; if the jury found in the negative the Crown might grant a licence authorising the extinguishment or relinquishment.

(4) OWNER'S RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES

(i) Maintenance and Continuation of a Ferry

842. Duty to keep ferry available.

A ferry, being a monopoly, is not granted for the benefit of the ferry owner, but for the benefit of the public, so that the public may be certain of finding the means of transit across a river<sup>1</sup>. In return for the monopoly the ferry owner must give attendance at all reasonable hours<sup>2</sup>, keep a reasonable and sufficient number of men and craft in proper order and take reasonable and uniform tolls. He must carry all peaceable wayfarers who are willing to pay his toll<sup>3</sup>. If there is no obligation to give attendance or to keep up boats, there is no monopoly of a ferry<sup>4</sup>.

The owner cannot relieve himself of his duties as a ferry owner by building a bridge<sup>5</sup>. Where a person is authorised by Act of Parliament to build and maintain a bridge and take toll from such members of the public as pass over it, and from time to time, whilst the bridge is under repair, to keep a ferry and take the like toll, he may not keep and maintain the ferry only and leave the bridge unrepaired<sup>6</sup>.

A county or district council may give financial assistance for the provision, improvement or continuance of a ferry service which in its opinion will benefit persons in rural areas<sup>7</sup>.

843. Penalty for neglect.

A ferry owner is liable to a fine if he does not keep his ferry in readiness and in good repair<sup>1</sup>, or to a claim by a person who has suffered special damage by neglect of the ferry owner's duties<sup>2</sup>; but the court will not make a declaration that the owner of the ferry is bound to operate the ferry or grant a mandatory injunction to compel him to do so<sup>3</sup>.

Another consequence of such neglect may be that the Crown may by proceedings in the nature of scire facias<sup>4</sup> annul the grant of the ferry, and if necessary vest it in some other person<sup>5</sup>. However, neglect does not of itself destroy the franchise of a ferry<sup>6</sup>.

845. Liability in respect of carriage.

The liability of a ferry owner in respect of goods carried by him is similar to that of a common carrier<sup>1</sup>.

It is a question of fact whether a ferry owner himself undertakes to land goods as well as to carry them across a river; and, if a contract to land is established, there will be a further question as to what amounts to a landing, and whether a slip provided for it is sufficient and suitable<sup>2</sup>. A contract to put on board or land animals or goods cannot be implied from the mere fact that the boat is a ferry boat<sup>3</sup>.

A landing place provided by a ferry owner must be safe, and where loss or damage is caused to goods or animals by reason of its not being so he is liable for that loss or damage<sup>4</sup>. The ferry owner cannot relieve himself from liability for the loss or damage by a notice not brought to the attention of the owner of the goods or animals<sup>5</sup>.

Even though his boat is run for the convenience of the public<sup>6</sup>, a ferry owner should not venture to cross the water in a dense fog, where other traffic may be in his course, if the circumstances are such that he cannot make the passage without committing a breach of the regulations for preventing collisions; if he does so, he takes upon himself the responsibility for injury to life or property which such a proceeding involves<sup>7</sup>.

A ferry boat within the definitions of 'vessel' or 'ship' in the Acts relating to merchant shipping<sup>8</sup> will, unless specially excluded, be subject to the provisions of those Acts<sup>9</sup>. Accordingly if it is a British ship<sup>10</sup> it must, unless exempt from registration, be registered<sup>11</sup>, and if it is a passenger steamer carrying more than 12 passengers, it must be surveyed once at least in each year<sup>12</sup>.

Compulsory pilotage provisions do not apply to ships less than 20 metres in length<sup>13</sup>.

(ii) Tolls

846. Tolls as incident to franchise.

As incident to the franchise of a ferry, a ferry owner has the right to demand and receive tolls<sup>1</sup>. However, a ferry owner may be obliged by custom to carry the inhabitants of a town free, and a claim lies at the instance of any such inhabitant forced to pay a toll contrary to the custom<sup>2</sup>.

The amount of the tolls need not, and generally does not, appear in the instrument granting the ferry, but must be reasonable<sup>3</sup>. What is a reasonable toll appears to be a question for the court<sup>4</sup>. Where a right to tolls is granted without the amount being fixed, the grantee may demand such amount as appears to him to be reasonable; but the demand of an unreasonable toll would expose him to proceedings at the instance of a private individual forced to pay it, or of the Crown<sup>5</sup>. Long usage and acquiescence in payment of a toll are prima facie evidence of its reasonableness<sup>6</sup>.

A variation in the toll does not destroy the franchise of a ferry. Indeed, a single variation may be evidence of the right of the person who demands it, as presumably without such a right he would not have raised the toll; but repeated variations are evidence of usurpation<sup>7</sup>.

In the case of a statutory ferry, the power to revise the amount of the tolls may be in the discretion of the undertakers, or the tolls may only be subject to a requirement that they are to be reasonable in amount, or there may be in the statute provision for the undertaker to apply to the Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> for an order revising the toll<sup>9</sup>. A local authority<sup>10</sup> or a passenger transport executive<sup>11</sup> operating a ferry undertaking may from time to time revise the charges as seems to it to be appropriate, and may if it thinks fit determine not to continue to charge for the ferry<sup>12</sup>.

847. Exemption from tolls.

The Sovereign and the servants and vehicles of the Crown are at common law exempt from customary tolls<sup>1</sup>. They are also exempt from tolls under any enactment unless it contains a provision specially binding the Crown<sup>2</sup>, and where the right to receive tolls in respect of a ferry has been granted by Act of Parliament, the Crown's prerogative right of exemption is not restricted by the fact that the Act contains a specific exemption in favour of certain classes of Crown servants or by the fact that the Crown's rights in other particulars are restricted by the Act<sup>3</sup>.

Members of the regular forces on duty, and their vehicles, goods and animals, are exempt from duties or tolls for embarking or disembarking on any pier, wharf, quay or landing place in the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>. This exemption extends to members of the reserve and auxiliary forces and visiting forces<sup>5</sup>. Moreover, in the case of ferries acquired by local authorities<sup>6</sup>, nothing in the Ferries (Acquisition by Local Authorities) Act 1919<sup>7</sup> extends so as to authorise any tolls to be demanded or received: (1) from any person<sup>8</sup> when on duty in the service of the Crown or the service of a visiting force, or for any animal, vehicle or goods being the property of or used in the service of the Crown or a visiting force; or (2) from any police officer acting in the execution of his duty<sup>9</sup>.

However, the exemption does not apply to a ferry where there is no exclusive right of ferry and no duty to maintain or continue it: see A-G v Londonderry Bridge Comrs [1903] 1 IR 389. The Crown's exemption has been said not to extend to tolls traverse: see Nyali Ltd v A-G [1956] 1 QB 1 at 34, [1955] 1 All ER 646 at 665, CA, per Parker LJ (affd without considering the question of the royal prerogative [1957] AC 253, [1956] 2 All ER 689, HL). However, the Armed Forces Act 2006 s 382 provides that the Army Act 1955 and the Air Force Act 1955 expire at the end of one year beginning with the day on which the Armed Forces Act 2006 is passed (8 November 2006), unless continued in force by an Order in Council (but not beyond the year 2011). The Armed Forces, Army, Air Force and Naval Discipline Acts (Continuation) Order 2008, SI 2008/1780, art 2 continues those Acts in force until 8 November 2009. See further ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 32. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 22 note 5.

5 The exemption is applied to visiting forces by the Visiting Forces and International Headquarters (Application of Law) Order 1999, SI 1999/1736, art 12(2), Sch 6, and it is applied to the reserve land, air and marine forces by the Reserve Forces Act 1996 s 124 (repealed as from a day to be appointed by the Armed Forces Act 2006 ss 358, 378(2), Sch 14 para 51, Sch 17). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. See further ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 32.

(iii) Disturbance of Rights of Ferry

848. What is a disturbance.

It is a disturbance of the rights of a ferry owner for another person to set up a ferry so near to his that his profits are diminished<sup>1</sup>. However, the ferry owner's rights are only commensurate with his obligations, and, as he is obliged to carry across water by ferry only, it is no disturbance of his rights if another person erects a bridge and so diminishes or destroys the ferry owner's profits<sup>2</sup>; and it seems that the ferry owner may not maintain a claim for disturbance if the traffic carried by the person of whose acts he complains is a new and different kind of traffic for which the convenience of the public requires a new passage<sup>3</sup>.

A person may disturb a ferry even though he charges no toll<sup>4</sup>; and an employer may be liable for a disturbance of a ferry by his employee whom he has engaged to ply for hire in the river where the ferry is<sup>5</sup>.

In Hopkins v Great Northern Rly Co (above), the plaintiff failed on another ground also, namely that, as the railway bridge had been built under the authority of an Act of Parliament and the injury to the ferry was caused, not by its construction, but by its subsequent working, the ferry had not been injuriously affected within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 s 68 and the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 s 6. See the observations on the cases cited above in Hammerton v Earl of Dysart [1916] 1 AC 57 at 102, HL, per Lord Sumner. However, it is clear that an incorporeal hereditament, such as the franchise of a ferry, is 'land' within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 ss 3, 68 (see COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 511): Great Western Rly Co v Swindon and Cheltenham Rly Extension Co (1884) 9 App Cas 787, HL.

3 Hammerton v Earl of Dysart [1916] 1 AC 57 at 107, HL, per Lord Sumner ('The principle is to inquire whether the new traffic is de facto part of the burthen and obligation of the old ferry. If it is not, the owner of the old ferry has no right in it . . . On the other hand, a public that is part of the burthen of the old ferry is not new traffic, though as it grows it may compel the ferryman to adapt his ferry to take a larger business'). In that case it was held that traffic created by the opening of a public park was new traffic which the old ferry had enjoyed not because it belonged to it naturally, but because there was no other way across until the new ferry was made, and that the diversion of it by the new ferry was not a disturbance of the old ferry. #### 849. Remedy for disturbance.

The ferry owner's remedy for a disturbance of his rights<sup>1</sup> is a claim in the nature of a claim on the case for nuisance, or, in a proper case, an injunction or declaration of title<sup>2</sup>.

Where a ferry owner is not bound to keep and maintain the ferry ready at all reasonable times for the benefit of the public, the reason for the monopoly ceases, and he will not be entitled to the court's assistance in a claim for disturbance<sup>3</sup>. Where there is a general right of ferry, the imposition by Act of Parliament of a penalty in the case of boats of a certain tonnage disturbing the ferry does not limit the general right, but merely adds a cumulative remedy as regards such boats<sup>4</sup>.

If the ferry is leased<sup>5</sup>, the tenant is primarily the person to institute proceedings for disturbance<sup>6</sup>, but if the disturbance is such that the reversion may be injured, the ferry owner may take action either on his own behalf or in conjunction with the tenant<sup>7</sup>.

850. Evidence of right of ferry in a claim for disturbance.

It is sufficient for a ferry owner in a claim for disturbance of his ferry<sup>1</sup> to prove that a right of ferry<sup>2</sup> exists and that he was in possession at the time the claim was made<sup>3</sup>. If that possession has been for a long period, neither a legal origin of the franchise of the ferry, nor proof of payment of a fixed sum for ferriage, need be proved<sup>4</sup>, nor is it necessary to prove that sufficient men and boats were kept ready for the carriage of passengers or goods<sup>5</sup>, or that the ferry owner owns the soil of the landing places, if he has the use of them<sup>6</sup>, or that the defendant in setting up a rival ferry intended to defraud the ferry owner<sup>7</sup>.

Where a right of ferry both ways is claimed, but proved in respect of one way only, the ferry owner may have judgment in respect of that way<sup>8</sup>.

In cases involving a public right in which all the Queen's subjects are concerned, such as the right to a ferry, a verdict and final judgment between other parties, where proofs were given on both sides, and where the proceedings were not collusive, may be given in evidence<sup>9</sup>. However, if in the proceedings between other parties the court merely made an interim order, reserving final judgment for a future time, the interim order is not evidence<sup>10</sup>.

851. Defences to a claim for disturbance.

Neglect of duty is no answer to a claim for disturbance of a ferry<sup>1</sup>. However, a defendant in such a claim may show that his ferry was set up to accommodate a new and different kind of traffic<sup>2</sup>; or that there has been a change of circumstances creating new highways on land which would carry with it a right to continue these across the water; or that the public cannot be served by the old ferry<sup>3</sup>; or that he carries his traffic to a town different from that to which the ferry owner carries his<sup>4</sup>; or that the Act under which the ferry was constituted does not confer an exclusive right of ferry<sup>5</sup>.
